Grow Good Garden Successful gardening depends largely upon taking advantage of opportunities to plant when conditions are favorable and to take care of the garden as the needs occur.

Train Young Trees Proper shaping of the young apple tree is done by pruning and budding. In performing the operations the grower should have a definite picture in mind of what the future tree will be.

Have Lawn Right Size The lawn is the foreground of the home grounds picture. It should be large enough to give privacy and expansion but not so large that mowing will be a burden.
