You Pay for an Electric Refrigerator Why Not Own It!

Figure it out tonight. Without adequate refrigeration you stand to lose about 20% of your year's food bill. One-half that amount is wasted in foods purchased, but spoiled before being used; the other half is wasted because, through fear of spoilage, you cannot buy in quantities, at bargain prices. That wasted money would soon pay for adequate refrigeration.

Buy an Electric Refrigerator . . . you can pay as it saves. What could be a better investment in home economy . . . in every-day thrift? There's a model and size for every family need. Come in and see them; and ask for a demonstration.

Bucher Family Is Safe In Texas

men stopped on their way to Harlingen I knew then that things must be terrible. I wanted them to take me with them but they said they had no idea what they would get into as the storm was still raging harder than ever. I felt that I couldn't stand it another minute. A state Revenue man was in the Cafe and he said he would try to take me through. He said sometimes one will do things because they feel it a duty that money wouldn't pay them to do. But when we were ready the police wouldn't let us go, said it would be suicide. We waited a little while until I just couldn't stand it any more. Finally he said he would let us go at our own risk. So we started and never will I forget that ride. We went very slowly but I never could conceive of such wind and rain. That at Camp was like a calm compared to this. All shacks signs and trees were down along the way. When we got to Edinburg things were terrible, and no one wanted us to go on. A state patrolman came to the Western Union. I went after him to find out what he knew. He said he had just come from Harlingen and the city was almost entirely destroyed. He came to Edinburg to wire the Government for help Red Cross, water supplies. Well you can imagine how I felt. I knew I was home just a day too late. Then I went to pieces and the man driving me said he would get me down if it was possible. So we started again. We got as far as Weslaco and the rain and winds so bad, the roads entirely under water that our car drowned out, and we couldn't go any farther. It was then about three in the afternoon. It had taken us all that time to go. Well I stood out in the rain along the highway and finally a car came along such an old thing it was, as wet inside as outside with two grown boys in it. I asked them if they would take me to Harlingen. They said they would try. So I got in bag and baggage. We went to Mercedes. The car stopping three times in five miles. Then the patrolman wouldn't let us go thru to Harlingen because it was under water and all the poles down, it wasn't safe. We turned back drove around the town a couple blocks, but I couldn't stand it. We went back. I told him I just had to go. He said he would like to let me go but if anything happened he would be responsible and lose his job. I talked awhile and he said "You get out here, one of our men is going down soon and I will send you down with him." I did. We couldn't get down but went across by Stuart Place to Primero and there at the store I found my family safe. I broke down and wept for joy. No one knows the anxiety and strain of that day and night. Most every person had gone to the big buildings for the night (Monday) but our family stayed in our house, and our house is the only one on the Primero road save one that was not completely destroyed. WHAT PRAYER WILL DO. One other house a stucco is standing but part of the roof is off. All the trees in our yard are down. Those big ones almost against the house in the back all fell but fell three different directions, missing the house. The barn blew off taking the cow and calf with it, but they are not seriously injured. The one Mexican house was entirely destroyed. The other one is standing but was carried off its foundations. The corn barn, everything is flat. All fruit on the trees and every thing under water. The nice yellow house near Primero is entirely destroyed. Some of their furniture they can't even find a trace of. Harlingen is the saddest sight you ever saw. Those nice brick buildings just crumbled. The store where Fred works, that I thought was so strong, is entirely destroyed. Walls crumbled, roof off. You just can't conceive just what the city looks like. The big public Auditorium, every one thought was so strong, is entirely destroyed. There are hundreds of people, homeless and penniless. There is no water, lights or anything. Mothers and babies are around on the streets. They were taking care of them in some of the churches and one of the packing houses that was not destroyed. The houses that did stand, leaked like sieves. Everything in our house is pretty wet and yet not as bad as some places. But I am so glad I am home because Ethel would not have known what to do with the terrible mess. The Mexicans slept all over our floors. I pity them as their sewing machine, dishes, pictures of all their mothers and grandmothers that they prized so—everything is gone. We haven't had a paper because the electricity is off, so no accurate report of the dead and injured can be known. Some say eight were killed others say eighteen, and quite a lot with broken arms, legs etc. If you could see the buildings you could hardly understand that any one is living. The buildings that are standing are ruined with water. Our church is standing but the piano and song books, everything is ruined by water. One school building is entirely destroyed. The new building stood. The big dry goods stores are wet like you had turned a hose on them. No one has storm insurance and unless the R. F. C. helps rebuild and helps in other ways, I don't know what will happen. I was so glad I had those peaches and cakes Harold gave me for the children. We can't cook and nearly thirsted until water got to us. I am so thankful that we have a roof over our heads. Yesterday it was so pitiful to see mothers and children sitting where their home used to be with a few bundles all they had left in the world. This Valley depends so much on the fruit crop. They started to buy fruit on Monday. Now there isn't an orange or a grapefruit left on the trees. A

A Bird Neighbor

The Barn Swallow
One of the most useful of all our birds and likewise one of the most graceful in flight, is this well known friend of the farmer.

The Barn Swallow which is steel blue and reddish brown or chestnut on the breast, may be easily identified by its long forked tail. It being the only swallow in this vicinity with that kind of a tail it has given rise to the expression "Swallow Tailed."

It arrives in these parts late in April and departs about September first. All summer it may be seen skimming over fields and meadows in search of flies which so sorely pester our horses and cattle and vex the tidy housewife. The Swallow has no song but keeps up a musical twitter as it flies.

The Barn Swallow builds its nest high up on a rafter or projecting beam in a barn. The nest is composed of mud and intertwined with grass. The mud is carried from the edge of some pond in small pellets on the top of the bill and the nest is generally plastered against the horizontal surface of a board or beam. It is lined with soft feathers and six spotted eggs are deposited.

great many trees are out by the roots. All we can do is to pray and have faith that the Lord will some how take care of us. Everything is under water. When I got home in order to get into the house, I had to take off my shoes and stockings and wade water up to my knees. I could write for hours and not tell you half. This is one time that the papers can't exaggerate. The people that have wells can hardly use them, there is so much surface water in them. Things are terrible but I am so glad my family is alive and unharmed. I got a wire through to you as soon as I could. The western Union office was completely destroyed. They rigged up a place in the express station using trucks for tables. One cannot keep from crying when they see the beautiful homes and all the trees destroyed. Will write soon again.
Love to all,
ETHEL

All BUNDLES Must Be Left at the DOOR...

STRANGE ruling! Not a ruling that is adhered to strictly by every church. The bundles in question are WORRY, CARE. They must be left at the door when you enter your Church. And when you come out again, the bundles will be gone! No matter how heavy your burdens, no matter how long or far you have carried them, they will be lifted from you as you enter. Remember that! When things are darkest, and you are weary, and the hill ahead looks too steep, and you feel that you cannot take another step, remember your Church.

Leave Worry and Care at Home

Your Church offers you strength, rest, courage. Let your Church help you. Come Let your Church help you. Come often. Come in sorrow, but come, too, in joy. For though the Church can make your sorrow less bitter it can also make your joy more sweet. Come to Church next Sunday and leave WORRY and CARE at the door
