A Visitor From The Far West

(From page 1)

In that vast timberland, with its wonderful springs of excellent water ice cold. Talking about snow, he stated that if there was a depth of two feet of snow in the night, by 10 o'clock the next morning it would be all melted.

He tells us his father was from Kentucky and his mother was from Alabama, the family settling in Texas. Uncle Tom was born into a cattle ranching family and was an only child. His mother was very desirous of a musical education for him but he was not interested. When asked as to his education, he stated he went to Bailey University and from there to Roanoke, Va. While in his Junior year there, he was selected as the one person to present an oration on "The Claims of America Upon Its Daughters." This was so eloquently given it won for him the gold medal, of which he is very proud.

Speaking of depression, he claims there is no such thing. This United States of ours has food enough here to feed the world, and there is enough gold and other money here, only it is not all in circulation yet, but was held by a several of our powers in the financial world. He volunteered that the man who is in the chair at Washington at present, is the smartest man ever sat in the chair. He admires the president's methods of business.

He has visited three of the largest cities in the world but has done it only by necessity of business transactions, as city life does not appeal to him—just give him the wide, open spaces where you can live and breathe and not feel all cramped up. Concerning his recent trip to New York with the Schock family, he says as he left the great metropolis, he waved good bye and said he don't want to come there "no more." The people in the cities are too much in a hurry—they have no time to talk. He claims he never saw so many automobiles in all his life as he did in the great city.

Recalling days past and gone, but which always interest the present generation, he says when the cattle big centre at which 40,000 and 50,000 cattle were herded, it required from April to September till the home site was again reached. When he was 18 years old, he says he was already "blazing trails." This cattle business he retired from 20 years ago, when the gold prospect got into his blood. Farming is only done around Phoenix and in that section, while the district surrounding his home, and nearby is an extensive cattle country.

Upon inquiry as to how he liked our boro, he advised there was an excellent comparison in the climates and that he felt at home here more than anywhere else, except his "Royal City." He was here 13 years ago.

"Uncle Tom," who is a continuous smoker, and the pipe is not corn cob either, expressed a keen interest in our local tobacco crop and says it's the prettiest tobacco he ever saw that is raised in this section. He is going to tell the "fellahs back home" that tobacco isn't all gone. He smokes about a pound a month.
In reference to mining, he claims ownership to 32 claims and intends to stage 20 more claims, which measure 150x60 ft. wide. When the ore is mined, it is packed on burros, 250 pounds to one burro and carried one mile to trucks which transport it to the railroad 18 miles away. Thence it is taken to El Paso, Texas, 400 miles away, where it is smelted. The gold is here separated from the silver, lead and other products. Newly mined gold is worth $35.00 an ounce, 50 tons of ore to a car load. The burros he uses for transportation of food, are as faithful as a dog and have more sense than a horse. His food provisions or other necessities he buys by the truckload, at Tucson, Arizona.
The father of two children, which were raised by his parents after the death of his parents, they now live in cities, and states he hasn't seen them for 12 years but desires to visit them on his return home. His parents have also passed away.
A publishing house in the East has heard so much concerning this wonderful "young" man, they sent a representative to secure data in order to publish a book. The book will be entitled "S. 'Sim' M. Willis, Uncle Tom."

To this man, with such a keen foresight and remarkable memory, we wish him many more visits to our boro and hope the "sun shines on him always as it has done in the past."

LIGHTS AND GAMES!

LITTLE AMERICA, ANTARCTICA, June 4 (via Mackay Radio)
—And what do you think we are up to now? Archery, no less!
We are not actually shooting arrows around yet but we are going to. Last night Commander Noville announced that, if we have any time at all to play after the sun comes back next August, we are going to have an archery contest. Our dog sled man and Edgar Cox, our carpenter, are making a complete outfit of bows and arrows and, archery being one of the most difficult and scientific of sports, it appeals hugely to this particular crowd. I thought there might be a peculiar problem connected with our archery activities but the crowd last night quickly solved it. It occurred to me that if anybody shot at a target and missed it, the arrow would travel the arc of Grand Forks, along under the N. D., Surveyor's snow and never be found. I mentioned this and it was decided to hang a couple of big pieces of heavy canvas in back of the targets and thus make the arrows drop gently onto the snow. So watch out for details of the tournament of the South Pole Archery League three or four months from now.
We have lots of other tournaments. Half our members are bridge fiends and long and loud are the arguments and "post mortems" after our evening games of "con tracts." We brought down with us 48 sets of the fascinating and tantalizing number puzzle, "Imp," and, in addition to the time spent individually working out the various combinations, we are going to have some regular contests for prizes. Some of the scientists have become very expert. Backgammon is another of our favorite pastimes in the evening. We also have movies frequently and do a lot of reading working, night or day. And when they can concentrate on deep problems of astronomy, or some other weighty subject, in a room full of men talking about baseball, tin attres, movies and a million other topics is wonderful. Most of our daytimes are occupied with school work—lectures and study on the scores of things necessary for us to know down here. These studies have a somewhat greater value with us now than our work did when we were in school or college. The knowledge of some little fact of climate, or trick of the ice, may save our lives some day.
You should hear some of the discussions that take place. They are all held in loud voices and range from deep and sensible philosophy on life to ridiculous theories about gardening, golf, and keeping tropical fish or stamps. Speaking of stamps, some of the people who spent covers down here last year should be receiving them back about now, properly cancelled, and our own first letters should be arriving. About a third of the mail we brought with us or which arrived on the Bear of Oakland, went back on her in February and should be reaching its destination at this time. The rest will come out with our next February—if we come out. Every night here is a long loud discussion—entirely futile—on the probable date when the good old flagship, Jacob Ruppert, will come gleaming back to take us home. Will the ice pack be too thick and tough for her to get through? If so we shall have to spend at least another winter on the ice—maybe two or three. Gosh, what a thought! But it's a possibility.
Our outdoor work is all over now and we are definitely indoors for the next three months—prisoners of the storms and darkness—except in the few calm hours when we can take short, torchlighted walks or ski trips for novelty and exercise. The various groups are tremendously busy making definite plans for the flights, tractor trips, dog sled journeys and other explorations and scientific quests next spring (autumn with you). These plans will be published here during the winter night—and then they'll all be changed. Such is life among explorers!
Our club is still growing. 22,000 members now! If you haven't joined, by all means do now, with no cost or obligation. Membership card and our big map of Antarctica will be sent you if you send your name and address and a loose three-cent stamp to Arthur Abele, Jr., President, Little America Aviation and Exploration Club, Hotel Lexington, 45th Street and Lexington Avenue, New York City, N. Y.

Aborigines Crave Salt
Among savage tribes which live mainly on vegetables, salt is considered much as we consider sugar. Children suck sticks of salt as our children suck sweets. Savages carry small pieces of salt in their pockets and offer it to each other to lick much as Americans will offer another a cigarette. Actually in the past nations fought wars for the possession of sources of common salt. People who eat much meat can do without added salt, because they obtain salt from the blood of the animals they eat. Meat contains considerable quantities of sodium chloride, as do also salt-water fish, but the fruits and vegetables, and particularly fine flours, contain very little salt.
The Word "Sicker"
As the comparative of sick, the word sicker has been in use in English speech since 1450. It is to be found recorded in Lovell's Graft, L. L. folio 187. At that time it was spelled syk-ker. A century later we find, in Gratton's Chronicle, issued in 1558, Vol. II, p. 493, the following: "In his meanwhile, King Henry waked sicker Richard II (1501), act 2, sc. 1, 91, made use of the term, sick, sicker, and sickerest the correct forms of the positive, comparative, and superlative of sick.—Literary Digest.
Useful as "Yardstick"
The constellation of Orion, in addition to containing the finest gaseous nebula, two of the most remarkable stars and a host of interesting double, triple and multiple stars, furnishes us with a most convenient measure for estimating angular distances in the heavens in the form of its strikingly beautiful and conspicuous belt, which is very close to 3 degrees in extent.
Elephant Has No Upper Lip
The elephant has no upper lip, since it is replaced by the trunk. In the pre-natal state the young elephant possesses a well-defined upper lip. This gradually disappears with the development of the trunk until in the grown elephant there is no trace of it to be found.
