Bronze Medal 4 Outstanding Boy or Girl

An attractive bronze medal is being presented to the outstanding boy or girl of each of the seventy-two School Safety Patrols in Lancaster County by the Lancaster Automobile Club, the winner in each instance being selected by members of the Patrol. In addition more than 1,000 boys and girls who, through promotion or graduation and their patrol duties this Spring, will receive Award of Merit certificates from the Auto Club, which sponsors the Patrols in this county. The medals, suspended from red, white and blue ribbon, bears on one side the AAA insignia and a replica of a school patrolman, and on the reverse side this inscription: "Awarded for meritorious service in protecting the lives of children." The certificates bear the signatures of S. Edward Gable, president of the Club; Mayor James H. Rose, Lancaster; Albert Montgomery, chief of police of Lancaster; Officer Jason K. Nonnenmocher, director of the Lancaster city patrols, and the principal and patrol supervisor of the school in which the child served. Approximately 2,000 boys and girls were enrolled in the School Patrols of the city and county this year, protecting the lives of more than 23,000 children on streets and highways every school day. The familiar white belts and shining badges they wear are symbols of the nationwide American Automobile Association School Patrol. These are furnished by the Auto Club, which also distributes safety posters monthly to the schools, and supplies safety lessons used in classrooms throughout the city and county. The Patrols have done excellent work this year, according to Dean Gable, who is in charge of the Auto Club's School Patrol activities. While accidents involving adults have steadily increased, ones in which children of school age figured have materially decreased, due largely to the fine safety work in the schools. An even more extensive program for child safety is being developed, and will be put into the schools at the opening of the term in the fall.

OWL LAFFS

A WISE OWL

Here it is, June 5. The Firemen's convention is over. The three day carnival is over. The gas is out of all the balloons. The kids have all their parasols, canes, whips, etc., busted. The noodle soup we had for the company Thursday (Decoration Day) lasted Saturday and Sunday and now that's all gone. The kettle of fruit and the box of candy I won at the carnival is "all." In fact, everything that had to do with the "big time" is all a part of the past except for one thing. My wife's still mad at me for staying at the carnival so late because I wanted to see Lizzie Hoy. I'll tell you a secret, if my wife ever finds it out I'll be a man without a home. Bill Ellis introduced me to Lizzie. She's my ideal. But my spouse just don't understand. Ah me, that's life. About ten o'clock Saturday night, when some of the out-of-town firemen were feeling pretty good, one of them stopped a girl from the east end and said: "Lashen, sisster, do you know that I've got Indian blood in me?" The girl took a good look at him and answered: "Yes, I can see it in your nose!" "Red skin, eh?" One of this fireman's pals thought he'd make a little for head way towards creating a friendship so, slightly inebriated, he asked the girl: "Did you ever see me before?" "No" replied the young lady, very truthfully. "Then how do you know it's me?" asked the fire lad. "Just then I heard a loud slap, and was his face red?" When one of our local fire boys stayed at the carnival (?) real late, his wife was waiting for him when he came home. So he apologetically explained: "Shorry I'm late, dear. Bill was sick and I wash sitting up with him." "Is that so?" shouted his wife, who was plenty peeved. "Then how did you get in such a condition?" she asked. "Thash from my sitting up exercises, of course," he continued. "Then came the storm. Yesterday I saw two little Barbara Street boys standing toe to toe, exchanging verbal blows that would have done credit to a professional heckler. Each lad held an apple in his hand about which the argument seemed to revolve. "You are impolite!" one youth observed heatedly. "Here I offered you the choice of my two apples and you took the biggest. Say, I'll betcha if you had offered 'em to me I'd a taken the littler one." "Well," answered the other boy, "if you'd 'a done that you'd have the same one you got now, wouldn't you?" "Yes," agreed the first boy. "Then, for goodness sake," continued the lad, "what are you belly-achin' about?" George Germer, who represented our local World War navy men in the parade Saturday, thought he recognized an old buddy among the out-of-town firemen so he walked up to him and said: "Say, I remember you! Weren't we messmates in the navy?" The fellow looked at George and then shaking hands replied: "Sure. You used to get into the same messes I did." Do you remember our new neighbors who moved in recently? I saw the man of the house sitting in the back yard, looking rather beaten, so hoping to cheer him up I started a conversation by saying: "So your wife's three sisters left their husbands and went home to their mother?" "Yes," he answered, "that's the trouble. They're all living at my house, now." Two fellows from Landisville were discussing their jobs when the one boasted: "Yes, and what's more, what I do for a living takes a lot of guts." "Are you a daredevil?" asked the other. "No," replied the first, "I string violins." At the Barnum Bailey-Ringling Bros. circus at Lancaster yesterday an old lady was expressing sympathy for a young girl with the circus

TOOK OFF 17 LBS. OF UGLY FAT

HEEDED DOCTOR'S ADVICE Mrs. Robert Hickey, Roseville, Calif., writes: "My doctor prescribed Kruschen Salts for me—he said they wouldn't hurt me in the least. I've lost 17 lbs. in 6 weeks. Kruschen is worth its weight in gold." Mrs. Hickey paid no attention to gossipers who said there was no safe way to reduce. She wisely followed her doctor's advice. Why don't YOU? Get a Jar of Kruschen to-day (lasts 4 weeks and costs but a trifle). Simply take half teaspoonful in cup of hot water every morning. All druggists. There is no better way to boost your business than by local newspaper advertising.

Tomatoes Rosy For Spring

MERRY as a day in May is the rosy tomato, and ready to meet Spring cheerily. Use tomatoes plentifully in your fair-weather dishes, even though you know tomatoes are not merely fair-weather friends. They have stood the test. They stuck by you all through the winter, when you were looking for color, flavor and health in the foods you served. You're going to like these two new ways of serving tomatoes.

Cheerful Suggestions

Tomato and Cauliflower Purée: Cook one medium head of cauliflower until it is tender, and press through a sieve. Press the contents of one No. 2 can of tomatoes through a sieve also and add with the contents of one can of consommé and one cup of water to the cauliflower. Bring to boiling. Sauté one tablespoon of minced onion in two tablespoons of fat for a few minutes. Add three tablespoons of flour, stir until smooth, and thin with a little of the hot soup. Then add to the soup, and cook until creamy. Season to taste. This serves six persons.

Control Fruit Pest

Extension entomologists of the Pennsylvania State College suggest that where fruit growers or home gardeners are having trouble with plum curculio that the timing of sprays be made fairly exact, in order to avoid trouble with the first brood and also to reduce the size of infestation of the second brood in the fall.
