SOUNDS LIKE BUNK

Newspapers and people tell about the depression and relief rolls and how men shiver on street corners and wrap themselves in newspapers in Central Park, New York, but just the same last Saturday one million dollars, all told, was spent on a foot ball game.

That may have been common enough back in the good old days but nothing like that has happened in a long time.

GOOD OLD SANTA CLAUS

Some literal minded folks think that parents make a mistake when they tell the children the pretty old fable about Santa Claus. When the little ones find out that it is all just a myth, it is claimed, they lose faith in the veracity of their parents.

Children, however, are not literal. They live in a world of imaginings. They constantly read about magic carpets, elves and gnomes, but that does not lead them to distrust all literature. They have to learn when the world is telling fables and when it is talking seriously.

The Santa Claus story had it that the genial old citizen of the North Pole brought his gifts "to good children." It was literally false, but essentially true. We have learned that if people are good and kind and helpful, gifts come to them far more wonderful than any that old Santa brought with his reindeer.

OUR TIME 52 YEARS OLD

Persons who rave and rant against Daylight Saving Time had their prototype 52 years ago when the invention of Standard Time stirred up more righteous indignation and resistance to change than "fast time" does in the general store. Those who find life under Daylight Saving Time both intolerable and sacrilegious either were not living, prior to November 18, 1883, or have forgotten the "good old days" of "sun" or "local time."

Standard Time with its one-hour time belts dividing the United States into four different time zones—Eastern, Central, Mountain and Pacific—is only 52 years old. Before Standard Time there were more than 50 standards of time used in the United States and Canada. "Sun" or "local" time and "railroad" time often were different in the same community. Traveling by the watch was the next thing to impossible because almost no two cities had the same time.

Next to the calendar and the accurate time-piece the greatest contribution in this field is Standard Time. It is difficult to see how this complex civilization could be possible without it. Rapid transportation could not.

William Frederick Allen, editor of "The Official Guide of the Railways," was the author of the system, which congress made law on March 13, 1883, after a General Time Convention at St. Louis had approved it.

Oddly enough the same criticisms and objections were directed against Standard Time in 1883 as are now directed against Daylight Saving Time. It took years for some people to become accustomed to getting their time from the Naval Observatory at Washington instead of from an old-fashioned "time ball" or from the sun.

A FRUIT OF GREAT CULTIVATION

An old man sat with clasped hands and bowed head, giving thanks for the food that was before him. It was a frugal meal—a little bread, a glass of milk and an apple—and the Cynic said, as his eyes took in the worn but neat clothing, the meagerly furnished room, the toil-garled form:

"Pardon me for my rudeness and curiosity, but what do you have to be thankful for?"

"Well," said the old man, slowly, gazing at his visitor with clear, soft eyes that spoke of a long and clean life, "for one thing, I am thankful . . . because I can be thankful." He paused. "I could tell a great many other reasons," he added, "but I believe that is enough."

The Trait of gratitude is one of the finest flowers of a real civilization. The nation that acknowledges the sources of its wealth and its loftier joys is a nation with vision which will not permit the people to perish. Samuel Johnson phrased it thus:

"Gratitude is a fruit of great cultivation; you do not find it among gross people."

"Since the experience of the Pilgrims at Plymouth, Thanksgiving has been especially observed by those who know the feel of the soil, those who can bear witness that the soil's magic brings forth bounty and beauty, those who erect a shrine and call it Home, where they can go from the day's toil and find rest.

"Each cloud-capped mountain is a holy altar; An organ breathes in every grove; And the full heart's a Psalter.

"Rich in deep hymn of gratitude and love."

The season of Thanksgiving to the Giver is here. It is not only for the material things that well afflued people are grateful, but for the fine living brocades and brocades, the landscape rather than the land, the visions more than the actual sight. That vision lays aside the night, the cloud and the frosty bonds and envelopes of nature, to find a new year of expectation.—Editor.

Maytown Fetes New Fire Engine

The Maytown company traces its history back over more than half a century. From 1880 to 1916 it was a hard fighting bucket brigade company. In 1910 Maytown held an Old Home Week celebration and had a small amount of money left after the program was at an end. That money was used to help buy the first fire fighting equipment some years later.

Changes were made in the equipment from time to time and recently the community and company decided a new apparatus was necessary.

Herman O. Shue, president of the Maytown company, presided. The Rev. Kirby Yiengst gave the invocation, and the Rev. William H. Hoover, the doxology. Fire Chief Harry S. Miller, of Marietta, spoke.

Paul R. Beshler was chairman of the parade committee, Mrs. Jack Frank, head of the women's auxiliary, was in charge of serving supper to the visiting firemen.

Manheim Museum Is Sold

Cloisters were gathered by Mr. Danner during his lifetime and since his death have been kept intact at Manheim.

Mr. Danner died eighteen years ago. He left a will providing for the erection of a home for aged men and women of his home town. The will provided that the home be erected as soon as sufficient funds were made available for its construction and maintenance. It designated that the buildings be erected at South Charlotte and West Ferdinand streets, in Manheim.

John W. Gish and M. M. Pfautz, the trustees, had the right to dispose of the museum if they felt the money was needed to carry out the plans for the home.

Several efforts were made to retain the collection for Manheim borough, but Mr. Danner made no provision for the erection of a suitable display place and the town was without funds to erect and maintain such a building.

Home For Aged Planned

The money derived from the sale will be placed in the general funds now being created to erect the home for aged as planned by Mr. Danner.

It is understood that the collection will be moved to Hershey in the very near future. Mr. Hershey's office said today that the new museum unit will be opened just as soon as executives have opportunity to take up the problem.
