

OWL LAFFS

BY A WISE OWL

Well, here it is, 1936, a new year, a new leaf and a flock of new resolutions all busted: Why not? After all, what fun is there in making them if you don't intend to break them?

Remember, fellows, this is LEAP YEAR. Look out for all those Leap-in' Lenas, cause when these femmes made up their mind to get a man, it's we poor guys who have to suffer.

On January 1st, about 3 A. M. a fellow on Barbara Street overheard this conversation: The first inebriate (souse, to those guys who don't study their Webster) complained: "Shay, quit following me."

Don't let him know I told you but the only reason he heard it was because he was sitting next to those fellows.....in the gutter.

A man from near town, recently completed a trip to the west coast. He tells of a very snappy retort he heard while attending a rodeo. A cute little Spanish entertainer walked up to a six foot handsome cowboy, and hoping to start a conversation she said: "Hello, big boy, your sombrero is pretty well shot."

Here's a conversation today and in the days of Miles Sandish. Today: The yegg shouts: "Where's that 'copper I just shot?" The frightened pedestrian answers: "Just around the corner, follow the machine gun holes."

Did you, by any chance, see that certain West Main street lady who boarded a bus for Lancaster recently, and when she got there, discovered, to her annoyance, that in the rush to make the bus, she had put on two very different colored hose?....And was her face red? Tsh! Tsh!

Saturday night Fred said to Levi: "Say, your glasses are dirty." Levi, appreciatively answered: "Thanks. My eyes are bad and I couldn't see it."....Helpful, eh what?

A very persistent agent had pestered Dan Brubaker continuously for almost a week. Finally Dan grew impatient (that can happen) and said to the seller: "Let's play the game called Building and Loan?" "How do you play it?" asked the agent. Dan replied: "Get out of this building and leave me alone."....Smart fellow.

A pinocle enthusiast, Edgar Hagenberger, remarked: Anyone can play bridge, but it takes a cannibal to throw up a hand!....yowzah!

A Columbia restaurant displays this sign: "Don't Divorce your wife because she can't cook—Eat Here and Keep Her for a Pet." Here's a little poem I picked out of the ether waves (radio, to you): The fireman are very brave They rush into the fire. They wear red flannel underwear No wonder they perspire. Pretty hot, if I must say so myself.

When a woman nowadays begins to look younger than her daughter, it is a sure sign that she is old.

Two old clichs from town were having a heated discussion. One asked: "What's your opinion of civilization?" The other answered: "It's a good idea. Somebody ought to start it."....Not a bad idea.

And now I'm going to tell you something which I sincerely hope won't cause any hard feelings. I'm quite sure the people concerned can "take it." Am I right? Anyway—

It was December 31, 1935 and fast approaching midnight and the new year. A handsome lad was sitting on a davenport beside "the girl friend" (who lives on Donegal Springs Road. They were listening to the New Year's eve radio programs. At midnight, just as the horns started to blow and the bands to play, the young man jumped up, threw his arms about the girl and hugging her in a big "bear hug" he jubilantly danced her around, wishing her a Happy New Year.

The next day, the girl, went to see a physician because she had some unusual aches. Her physician told her she had several cracked ribs.....What a hug! What a man!

Choice motto for gossips: Stop, look and listen in.

An enthusiastic angler took his friend fishing. The friend knew nothing about the gentle art and the experienced one had to give him all the necessary tackle. The angler started fishing a few yards upstream. Presently the novice said: "How much do those red and green things cost?" "You mean the float? Oh—I guess about a dime."

"Well," said the novice, "I owe you a dime—mine has sunk."

A youngster in our grade school was asked: "What is a synonym?" He quickly answered: "A word you use when you can't spell the other one."

HEY MOTORISTS! LISTEN!

THAT headline doesn't mean holding hands with a gal while you're driving. That's out! It means the proper position of your hands on the steering wheel. Did you ever give that a thought? You can generally spot a new motorist. He clutches the wheel tightly on both sides with arms extended rigidly, teeth gritted, every nerve taut. All wrong. Gradually he'll get over it and acquire more relaxed and less enervating wheel-holding habits. And these may be wrong, too.

Some motorists steer with one hand, sometimes with one finger. Despite the marvelous steering mechanisms of the new cars this is a direct invitation to serious trouble. So is the widely adopted practice of driving with the left elbow sticking out the window or resting on the window sill. Both habits give too little and too slow control of the steering in emergencies.

Experts usually hold the hands in a position similar to the hands on a clock when it is twenty minutes past ten as the most advantageous for comfort and perfect control. Position of feet is also important. Flat on the floor is best after you've thoroughly learned where the brake and clutch pedals are and can manipulate them instantly. Don't "ride" either clutch or brake. It produces dangerous and costly wear.

GLOOM CHASERS

The following advertisements appeared in various papers some years ago:

"Bulldog for sale; will eat anything; very good of children." "Wanted, a boy to be partly outside and partly behind the counter." "Widow in comfortable circumstances wishes to marry two sons." "Animal sale now on; don't go elsewhere to be cheated; come here." "A lady wants to sell her piano as she is going abroad in a long iron frame." "Wanted an airy bedroom for a gentleman 22 feet long and 11 feet wide."

Recently this line appeared in a daily paper: "A carload of bricks came in for a walk through the Park."

Say it with flowers, Say it with sweets, Say it with kisses, Say it with eels, Say it with cats, Say it with jewelry, Say it with ink!

and Richard Maxwell; Historian, Kenneth Frey.

WHEN lordly saddles of venison appeared on the table in the spacious days of our grandfathers — a spiced grape jelly was so often served along with the roast, that it came to be known as venison jelly. It is no trouble at all to make this jelly nowadays—with bottled grape juice and fruit pectin. Lacking venison, you will find it excellent to serve with lamb, mutton, pork chops, or roast.

Venison Jelly 4 cups (1 1/2 lbs.) sugar; 2 cups (1 lb.) bottled grape juice; 3/4 cup apple vinegar; 1/2 teaspoon cloves; 1 teaspoon cinnamon; 1/2 bottle fruit pectin.

Measure sugar, grape juice, vinegar, and spices into 3-quart saucepan and mix. (Any desired combination of spices may be used.) Bring to a boil over hottest fire and at once add bottled fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 1/2 minute. Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jelly at once. Makes about 5 glasses (6 fluid ounces each).

DO YOU KNOW WHY --- Coming Events Cast Their Shadows Before?

BELIEVE IT OR NOT

"Grandma" Ary, 89, of Lawrence, Kansas, says women are sissies who smoke cigarettes—and to prove it, pulls away on one of her favorite-make cheroots. Despite her age, she reads without glasses, likes wild west stories and pinocle, and recently went on a coon hunt at night. She reared 10 children.

"YES"—A FORGOTTEN WORD

Years ago it was a very common thing to hear the word "yes" in conversation. With the passage of time, however, that refined vocable has become almost as extinct as the dod bird or the three-toed megalopholis, if not the gasticutus—that hybrid animal which has its legs longer on one side than the other because of its long-time habit of feeding on sidehills.

Today, alas, the nearest thing in sound to the original affirmative are such things as "yeh," "yep," "puy," "ye-up," or "yippy." Other current synonyms are "um-hoom," uh-huh," etc. Also a flock of affirmative expressions have been created to take the place of the simple "yes"—such as "You said it," "Ain't it the truth?" "You said a mouthful," "You're telling me!" etc.

In recent years smart fellows have resented being classed as "yesmen."

Don't Wake Up Nights

This 25c Quick Test Free If it fails to flush out waste and excess acids which cause bladder irregularity. Take licium leaves, juniper oil, etc., in little green tablets called BUCKETS. Works on the bladder similar to castor oil on the bowels. Poorly acting bladder can cause scanty flow, frequent desire, burning or backache. In four days if not pleased any druggist will refund your 25c. W. G. GARBER, Druggist.

COULD NOT DO HER HOUSEWORK

WHEN everything you attempt is a burden—when you are nervous and irritable—at your wit's end—try this medicine. It may be just what you need for extra energy. Mrs. Charles L. Cadmus of Trenton, New Jersey, says: "After doing just a little work I had to lie down. My mother-in-law recommended the Vegetable Compound. I can see a wonderful change now."

"THAT LITTLE GAME"

Perhaps that is why so many ways have been found to avoid saying the fatal word "yes." Girls will say it—at the right time and right place and to the right fellow—but even they have invented all sorts of cute little tricks for expressing the idea without actually using the word. And so, "yes" may appear before long in the dictionaries with the explanation "obsolete" or "archaic" after it.
