FLY CARRIES MILLION GERMS

Swat that fly because science has investigated and found the exact extent of the fly's germ-carrying activities—and they are quite appalling. According to a report by the American Institute of Sanitation each housefly carries at least a million germs. And those flies taken from garbage cans and other places where germs abound carry about 6,000,000 organisms. But the worst of it is they don't keep them long. Any spot the foot of a fly has touched is alive with germs.

A sharp naked eye can detect the germ-carrying hairs on the legs and body of the fly, but it takes the microscope to show that the apparently smooth wings also have facilities for transporting germs and filth.

If the insect walks across your dinner plate it leaves a trail of filth-laden hairs that cover its entire body, and they fall by the thousands from the sticky pads on its feet. The fly is disease's best servant. It would be just as appropriate to eat with the hogs as to have these germ-laden pests swarm over your table and food.

Everyday Cooking Miracles

BY VIRGINIA FRANCIS Director Hatpoint Electric Cookery Institute

Home-made candies just long as holiday time, don't they? Not only do we like to nibble on these sweet, nut-filled dainties at times when we're not eating turkey, or hanging around the cookie jar, but we delight in the gay commotion and activity connected with candy making, too. Young Junior says it's fun to watch out for the "broken" and "off-size" pieces, also to wait his turn to lick the pan. Wouldn't it be grand to be able to make delicious creamy candies without first having to seek the patronage of "old lady luck"? Well, it is grand, because candy making is no longer "tricky" business; it is a science with one of the new automatic electric ranges. Now you have controlled cooling temperature which, after all, is a necessity if smooth, melt-in-your-mouth candies are what you are wanting.

Delicious candies for the holidays, such as these tempting light opera creams, are easy to prepare on the modern electric range.

Light Opera Creams (Makes 1 1/2 lbs. Candy) 2 cups sugar 1/4 tsp. salt 3/4 cup cream 1 tsp. vanilla 1 cup milk 1 cup light corn syrup 1 cup pecan nut meats (cut fine)

Place sugar, cream, milk, corn syrup, and salt in saucepan. Cook on Low Heat, stirring occasionally, to the soft ball stage (235°). Remove from electric heat unit and cool, without stirring, until mixture is lukewarm (110°). Then add vanilla extract and beat until candy becomes creamy. Add nut meats and drop by spoonfuls on a greased platter, or on the smooth working top of the electric range.

Did you get it? Drop the candy on the range to harden? Yes, it's so! The smooth, enameled working top of the electric range is not only conveniently large enough to accommodate these delicious confections, but it is always spotlessly clean, because it is so easy to keep clean!
