

OWL LAFFS

A WISE OWL

I've got a "June bug" bite and it's pretty well sapped all my energy.

A little fellow from Sporting Hill was visiting a city cousin recently.

I was standing in line at the sports arena at Hershey, awaiting my turn to purchase a ticket.

When Firpy was asked if he's saving anything for a rainy day, he answered: "Sure thing, the telephone number of a little stay-at-home blonde."

Most fellows never thank a girl for a kiss because the pressure was all theirs.

A touring scientist stopped at a local pharmacist and said: "Give me some prepared monacetic-acidester of salicylic acid."

A local lady and her daughter were at Lancaster on Saturday. Noticing quite a number of young men on the street with college initials and colors on their clothes.

A girl may pretend that her hair is naturally curly but a man soon finds out it's a put-up job.

A very attractive blonde from town was asked by a new boy friend if she ever traveled with a trailer.

Recently I visited a friend in Philadelphia, and when he took me to his room to "freshen up" I was amazed to see the very odd looking paper that covered the bed room walls.

Did you hear about the local lady who took every precaution to make the best chicken corn soup she was able, only to find after the guests had eaten it, that she forgot to put in the corn.
