Fake Racket Gets The Gate In New York

RECENTLY A "SMART ALECK" TRIED TO WORK THE GAME HERE BUT MET OPPOSITION APLENTY AND WITHERED

Several weeks ago the writer was driving from here to Columbia via Newtown. As he approached the Marietta & Lancaster pike, there was a clear vision in both directions, not a car being in site. He crossed the pike and drove leisurely toward Columbia. As he was passing thru Kinderhook a car approached from the rear and blew the horn continuously but did not attempt to pass.

Finally the car in the rear passed but kept on going. The writer being rather inquisitive drove aside the other car, stopped and inquired: "What's the trouble?"

The car was a black sedan carrying a New York State dealers license and had but one occupant. (Turn to page 2)
