

Entirely New Fronts At Our Joy Theatre

settled with the announcement that a large marquee will be erected over the pavement on the front of the lobby.

The front of the American store has been torn out preparatory to putting in the new store front which will be built to conform with the lobby and other store entrance. That is, the entire new brick front of both stores and the theatre lobby, the length of the plot, will give the appearance of one large building.

Portions of the store front will be covered with white metal trim and portions of the sides will be black glass over brick.

The entire front of the Beamesderfer residence has been torn out preparatory to lowering the floor to street level, and placing a ten foot extension on the front of the building to bring it up to the building line of the other entrances.

NEGLECTED BIRDS NOT GOOD LAYERS

Low Summer Production May Continue Into Fall.

By Roy S. Dearstine, Head of Poultry Department, North Carolina State College.—WNU Service.

Low egg production in hot weather often causes poultrymen to neglect their flocks, with the result that production continues low in the fall when it should be increasing.

Good management in hot weather not only keeps birds in better condition for heavy production later, but it also keeps up production through the summer.

Shade to protect birds from the sun during the hottest part of the day is essential to thrifty birds. A portable range shelter provides shade where birds can feed and rest.

Since range crops usually become dry and unpalatable in summer, the birds need an ample ration in their feed hoppers. Plenty of fresh water should be available at all times.

Plenty of grain should be fed during the developing season. A good mash should be fed also as it contains vital food elements that are not provided in a grain diet alone.

Where crippled and subnormal birds are found in the flock they should be culled out at once. Such birds never pay a profit and their low vitality often makes them the starting point for an outbreak of contagious disease.

Lice and mite infestations occur frequently in summer and result in heavy losses unless checked at once.

Fowl pox can be prevented by vaccinating the birds at an early age. The disease usually breaks out in the fall when the birds are in full lay and making a profit for their owner. Leghorns are especially susceptible to pox.

Creep-Fed Calves Thrive on Corn, Cottonseed Cake

Calves creep-fed made their best and most economical gains on a ration of shelled corn and cottonseed cake in a test by the United States Department of Agriculture in cooperation with the Missouri state experiment station at Sin-a-Bar Farms, Grain Valley, Mo.

At the end of the 140-day test calves fed the shelled corn and cottonseed cake averaged 8 pounds more than another group fed ground shelled corn and cottonseed cake. The calves fed the shelled corn, cottonseed cake, and alfalfa-molasses mixture, and 22 pounds more than a group receiving shelled corn, cottonseed cake, and alfalfa-molasses mixture.

The calves receiving ground corn, cottonseed cake, and the alfalfa-molasses mixture, ate 25 per cent more feed and acquired a better finish at the end of the feeding period than those fed shelled corn and cottonseed cake. The difference in market price of the two groups, however, did not justify either the cost of grinding the corn or the additional cost of feed.

Calves from each group, when fed in dry lots for 196 days after weaning, on the same rations they had received before weaning, showed no significant difference in total gains. Those fed shelled corn and cottonseed cake were the heaviest at the end of the experiment although not so well finished as the ones fed ground corn.

High-grade Shorthorn calves were used in the feeding tests and the market value was estimated at the end of the feeding experiment by commission merchants on the Kansas City stockyards.

In the Farmplot

Careless handling kills live stock on its way to market.

The greatest boon to farmers and their wives is running water installed in the home.

Except for dresses, shoes represent the largest clothing item bought by farm families.

The horse's collar should be thoroughly cleaned each evening after the day's work is done.

For safety dairy products are best kept covered and in the coldest place in the refrigerator.

Alfalfa leaves are worth saving; they are about three times as valuable in nutritive value as the stems.

Unless cows have an abundance of pure water to which they can go at any time, milk flow will be affected.

The general belief that grasshoppers make excellent turkey feed was not upheld in experiments at Oklahoma A. and M. college.

Except for air, water is the most common, most readily supplied, and often the most inexpensive substance that poultrymen can give to their hens.

Piccolo, Old Instrument

A German invention, the piccolo is just about 400 years old. But its ancestry goes much further back. For, as the name indicates, it's a "little flute," and flutes were probably the first musical instruments. Flutes were popular in ancient Greece, where, legend has it, they were invented by Athena, goddess of wisdom. The story goes that Athena threw her creation away after seeing in a stream how her face was distorted while playing. But the flute came back when another god, Marsyas, found it and became proficient at it.

Pekingese Dog Favorite of the Chinese Rulers
One of China's three contributions to the dog fancy is the haughty-appearing little Pekingese. This waddling little "kou," as a dog is known in that land is one that has been 100 per cent pure-bred throughout the centuries, writes George Butz in the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Peke's were the coveted court dogs in the regimes of Chinese emperors. They were once the pampered pets of the mandarins, and perhaps that is the reason of their aristocratic expression. Chows and pugs are the other two dogs which originated in China.

The Peke's luminous eyes, set far apart upon his broad skull, serve as a mask of his real disposition. He is a jolly fellow and faithful. Because of his diminutive size the Peke has sometimes been wrongly called delicate. However, he is not by many miles, because he is one of the sturdiest of toy dogs.

Peke's are active, they are strong for their size and would this dog be larger he would be fitted for police work. The Peke has a massive coat for a small dog. The frill of soft hair around his collar suggests a lion. In fact, in his native China, the dog has been called the little "lion dog." That was probably due to the fighting heart of the dog.

Pekingese were first imported to England from their native land.
