TWO WEEKS LEFT TO ENROLL IN FARM PROGRAM

As the closing date for the 1938 Agricultural Conservation Program approaches, the Lancaster County Agricultural Conservation Committee reports considerable interest among county farmers in this year's program. County farmers have only about two weeks left during which to signify their intentions of participating this year. June 15 has been set as the closing date.

The committee emphasized this date today so that all county farmers who wish to take part in the program this year and not already enrolled may do so at once.

The farmers are urged to get in touch promptly with their county agricultural conservation office in order to supply the county committee with acreage data and other information necessary for listing their farms as participants.

The Lancaster County Agricultural Conservation office is located at 22 Post Office Bldg., Lancaster, Pa.

PUBLIC SALES AT NIGHT
SAVE TIME FOR FARMER

Advertisements in newspapers circulating currently in the rural sections are announcing "Electric Light Sales" of shoats—another demonstration of time marching on.

Just a few short years ago no one ever heard of a public sale of shoats, cattle, farm implements or anything else, being held at night. Today, public sales of all sorts are held at night with electric lights illuminating the scene as brightly as the midway at a county fair or a night baseball game.

In the old days, too, attending a public sale meant a big loss of valuable time for a farmer at a very busy time of the year for him. It took not only the farmer himself away from his work, but his horses also, to take him to the sales. His farm work stood still.

While electricity has already found more than two hundred ways to be of service on the farm, perhaps none is more time-saving than making it possible for the farmer to attend public sales at night. His automobile makes it possible for the whole family to attend the sales while the horses, after a hard day in the fields, are resting comfortably in the barn.
