Oldsmobile Prices Are Reduced

(From page 1)

An unprecedented volume of advance retail orders, together with indications of a general improvement in business, brought about a decision to increase production by placing the Oldsmobile factory on a double shift next week, according to general manager C. L. McCuen.

The brighter outlook was responsible also for a revision in the 1939 Oldsmobile prices, announced today, to levels even lower than had originally been planned.

Recent reports that Oldsmobile is to make a definite bid for business in the low price field were confirmed today by the announcement that the advertised delivered prices on the 1939 Oldsmobiles will start at $777. The new cars, grouped in three series—two sixes and an eight—will be shown to the public later this month.

The new prices for the 1939 six cylinder Series Sixty, shows a reduction of from $96 to $106; the larger six cylinder Series Seventy from $33 to $43 and the eight cylinder Series from $64 to $69, together with reductions from prices of the 1938 six and eight. In all cases the advertised delivered price at Lansing, Mich., is quoted, to which only transportation and state or local taxes, if any, need be added at the point of delivery.

On Sunday, October 30, at four o'clock P. M., in connection with Reformation Sunday, a musical program will be rendered by the choir and guests of Trinity Lutheran church.
