On Thursday, May 30th, we celebrate Memorial Day in the Southland the friends of the confederacy, observe a different day to honor their dead. But whenever we have loved ones who fought in the days of '61-'65; during the war with Spain or the World War; or, whatever the day, we observe a Memorial Day; a day set apart for memories of gallantry and valiant action.

We set apart the day for the strewing of flowers on the graves of those who gave up their lives in battle; on the eternal altar of willing sacrifice! The day sometimes ignorantly is called "Decoration Day" by those whose only thought is the decorating of mounds in our cemeteries.

But whether we strew our floral offerings on land for the army, or water for the navy; we do so in sacred remembrance of the deeds of valor on the part of our armed forces. In so doing we thus rededicate ourselves—as President Lincoln said—to love of country and those who gave up their lives in the attempt to preserve freedom and the rights of individuals to live their lives in accordance with their God-given convictions.

We cannot bring to life our departed loved ones. We can, though, hold them in sacred memory: we can resolve to emulate their example of heroic unselfishness: we can and do keep fresh and green the memory of those who only have gone on before, leaving behind examples of patient, unselfish lives. We cannot all be heroes, but each one can enter into sympathy with those who have died that we might live in peace, prosperity and freedom from tyranny.

More than this! We here and now should repeat our vow to the Almighty that this land never again shall be engaged in combat: that the lives of our youth never again shall be offered as sacrifices to the sodless spirit of warfare. This will not be easy for the hope of gain and the American spirit of conquest burns bright in our lives; yes! and sympathy for those who are suffering from oppression sways our lives. But; life is precious and, in being snuffed out, we lose though we may win!

EFFICIENCY, AND SHORT CUTS
 One mistaken idea of efficiency is that it is only a search for the little short cuts in business, in industry, and in life. Personal Efficiency is fuller living. It means much more than mere short cuts, but the short cuts are often helpful.

Can you think of one or more stunts, ideas, plans or short cuts which you can apply to yourself or your own work?

There is no better way to boost your business than by local newspaper advertising.
