Pity the Poor Geography Teacher!

Sudden changes in the boundaries of a dozen European countries caused by Hitler's military successes and Stalin's expansion movement have rendered geographic maps and atlases out of date. And the result? "It's a headache," says Mrs. Virginia Bongart, a teacher in the Cook county public schools near Chicago, who is pictured above.

K. T. Keller; Lesson For Industry

The BULLETIN is indebted to the Lancaster Sunday News for the following editorial which appeared in its current issue: "Elevation of K. T. Keller to top executive position of the Chrysler Motor corporation comes as no surprise to his friends in Lancaster county. It was the logical promotion of an able man. But there's one thing lots of people don't know about Keller. He is the product of a small Mt. Joy factory whose owner made it a policy to take in and train one boy as a machinist every year—regardless of whether the firm needed more men or not. Keller started as an apprentice (Turn to page 2)
