Aaron S. Herr
Aaron S. Herr, eighty-five, of Elizabethtown R. D. 2, died at 6:30 a. m. Tuesday at his home after a long illness. He was a son of the late Rudy and Fannie Herr, and was for many years an employe of the Cornwall - Lebanon railroad. Surviving him are his wife, Bertha, and a brother, Amos of Elizabethtown.

David N. Grove
David N. Grove, seventy, Bainbridge, died at 1:30 a. m., Tuesday, at the Columbia Hospital. He was admitted to the hospital a week ago and had been in ill health for the past several months.
He was born in Lancaster county, son of the late Simon and Susanna Grove, and was a retired farmer. He was a member of the United Brethren church at Falmouth.

He is survived by these brothers and sisters: Harry, Paxtang; John, of Findley, Ohio; Minerva, wife of Philip S. Libhart, of Bainbridge; Amos Grove, of Marietta R. D. 1; and Malinda, wife of Clayton Harnish, Lancaster R. D. 2.

Richard W. Leber
Richard W. Leber, sixty, Elizabethtown R. D. 2, died at 7 a. m. Sunday at his home, after an illness of four years. Mr. Leber had been employed by the Pennsylvania railroad as freight and ticket agent at Conewago for thirty-five years until his retirement. He was a son of the late Milton and Elizabeth Leber and was a member of Christ Evangelical and Reformed church, Elizabethtown. Deceased was born here and resided in town for many years.

Adequate School Lunch
To maintain a good food balance, the noon school lunch should include milk, fruit or tomato juice; one protein food like eggs, meat, fish or cheese; bread and butter, and one vegetable, preferably raw. The vegetable may be used as a sandwich filling, or it may be celery stalks, carrot or turnip sticks with salt. Whole wheat bread should be used at least half of the week for these lunches. Cookies or cup cakes are preferable to sliced cake because they carry much better. If the teacher serves one hot dish at noon, the children should know the menu a week in advance so the mother will know just what to send from home to complete the lunch.

Labrador Tea
Labrador tea is the popular name for a small evergreen shrub of the heath family which grows in bogs and swamps in Greenland, Canada and the more northern parts of the United States. The leaves are tough, densely covered with a brown wool on the under face. They are fragrant and when crushed have been used as a substitute for tea.

PENNSYLVANIA FARMERS BOOST WHEAT YIELDS 56%, SURVEY SHOWS

Father and son inspect a bumper crop. Inset (1) Unfertilized root system, (2) fertilized root system gives strength to enable plant to go through the winter with less loss.

Pennsylvania farmers who use fertilizer increase their wheat yields by 9 bushels per acre on the average, or 56 per cent, according to a recent national survey in which 92,000 farmers told of their experience with fertilizer. The wheat growers who were interviewed verified on their own farms the results achieved at experiment stations, which show that wheat is very responsive to fertilizer.
In addition to the increase in yield, 73 per cent of the farmers who were interviewed in 17 States reported better market quality; 85 per cent had noticed that fertilized crops got a quicker start; 45 per cent observed that crops were more resistant to disease; and 76 per cent reported that crops matured earlier.
Experiments carried on at experiment stations show that generally the best place in a crop rotation to make a liberal application of fertilizer is on wheat. In addition to increasing the yield and quality of the grain, fertilizer promotes a vigorous growth and larger yield of the clover or other hay crop which follows, which in turn benefits the crop coming next in the rotation.
Pennsylvania farmers can substantially reduce their cost of wheat production per bushel by increasing their yield. In the eastern part of the United States it costs on the average around $15 to grow an acre of wheat, regardless of yield. If the yield is 15 bushels the cost is $1 per bushel; if the yield is 10 bushels the cost jumps $1.50 per bushel; while a 30 bushel yield reduces the cost to 50 cents. The value of the increased wheat yield in Pennsylvania resulting from the use of fertilizer is equivalent to about $1.67 for each dollar spent for fertilizer.

Behind The Future

BY ELIZABETH M. GARBER
(Research Assistant to Senator James J. Davis)

The second Roosevelt administration has seen many cabinet changes. In this month of September farmers see the head of the Department of Agriculture step into the shoes of a Vice-Presidential nominee and an Under Secretary of Agriculture step forward into a full-fledged Secretaryship.
Henry A. Wallace was the second Wallace to hold the office of Secretary of Agriculture. The elder Wallace, his father, came to Washington in 1921 to serve under President Coolidge. This elder Wallace came to Washington with the idea that the staff of the department were "clock-watchers" and "chair-warmers." He found instead clear-thinking, loyal workers in the department. Son, Henry A. Wallace in addressing his farewell to the present department employees similarly praised them for their "experience ability and honesty."

In turning over the Secretaryship Mr. Wallace paused to review the work of the department under his leadership. The Department wished to serve the farmers of the nation by extending their government cooperation in countless everyday problems: in their incomes, their debt and foreclosures, in bettering their living standards, in soil conservation and distribution of their surpluses. The Department was delegated a large task in the administering of new laws to solve these very problems and in the setting up of new instruments of government. Since 1933, Agricultural Adjustment Administration, Surplus Marketing Administration, Commodity Credit Corporation, Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, Farm Security Administration, Soil Conservation Service, Rural Electrification Administration have been added as administrative units of the department.

These new agencies together with the expanded functions of older bureaus in the department are today headed by a new Secretary of Agriculture, Claude R. Wickard. Wickard is an Indian farmer who has seen much service in new deal farm policies. Back home he was a member of the original corn-hog committee in the corn belt and as such worked hard for the first AAA program. Later he was an assistant in the department working on the corn-hog program. His duties were enlarged to include the supervision of the entire AAA programs in the North-Central states. Prior to his new appointment, which became effective September 5th, he was Under-Secretary of Agriculture.

Since the dawn of man, no man-made document ever so perfectly set down the precepts of human rights than does our Constitution. As a living, working manuscript, as powerful today as it was hundreds of years ago, we are indeed fortunate to live under its protection. Ordinarily, we take with the world in turmoil and peoples everywhere suffering injustice and indignities, it is well for us to pay particular respects to our good fortune on the day set aside to note the Constitution.

It is a foregone conclusion that the policies of Ex-Secretary Wallace will be continued under Secretary Wickard.
