

OWL LAFFS

A WISE OWL

Well, folks, another office picnic is over and we sure had some hi-spots. Our "foreign" correspondent "Stuffy" Klugh took all honors in bathing costumes with his multi-colored Tahitian "shorts" with bra top.

Paul, our linotype operator, gave a thrilling exhibition of how not to stay dry during a water carnival—while Paul Dufferder was champion machine gunner (pea shooter model).

Firpy's summer costume fit so perfectly that he was hampered considerably—Gene Crider vows never to answer another telephone call and Gene McClure put in the only complaint of the day . . . he didn't get enough coco colas. . . Abner proved to be the perfect gent in the crowd and everyone suffered sore muscles from laughing so much.

A fellow out Sporting Hill way says it doesn't wonder him that his wife is losing her mind cause everytime he comes home she gives him a piece of it.

A lot of our local men have come to the conclusion that marriage is an endless chain . . . ball and chain.

On the Lancaster bound bus yesterday a lady and boy occupied the seat in front of me. About Landisville the boy got real naughty and noisy, so finally his Ma said: "If you don't be quiet and be a good boy, I'll slap you." . . . And her boy came back with: "Huh, you smack me and I'll tell the bus driver my real age!" . . . you can't win mom.

Some people go through life with a lot of hard-hips but a little colored boy I talked to today sure got a tough one. After a short conversation he announced: "Yassuh, Ise named foah my parents. My pappy's name was Ferdinand and my Mammy's name was Liza." I thought for a minute and then I asked: "What's your name, then?" And he supplied "Ferdiliza"—Can ya imagine?

A newly married couple over Kinderhook way were having their first spat when she said through her teeth: "It wasn't for one thing I'd go home and stay with mother." What's that one thing? her hubby crossly demanded. His little bride sniffed and answered: "Mother's coming to live with us. She's left Father." . . . Well!

Here's the questions asked about every new car—
Father—How many miles to the gallon?
Mother—What color is the upholstery?
Son—How fast will it go?
Daughter—Has it a cigarette lighter?
Neighbors—How can they afford it?

We've learned that there really are a number of honest grafters—they're tree surgeons.

One of our young men was invited to a large but private dance at a nearby Country Club. The dance was in full swing and at the conclusion of one number the youth walked over to the punch bowl and joined an elderly man standing there. Wiping the perspiration from his forehead he said: "Well, thank goodness, that's over with." The old gent, not knowing the lad, asked: "What is?" To which the boy explained: "I've danced with the hostess. Have you gone through with it yet?" The gent looked him in the eye and answered: "No, I don't have to. I'm the host." . . . So the boy fell through the floor.

When a man says he got his auto for a song, he probably means he gave several notes for it.

MESCAL IKE

Immigrant Is No. 1 Army Shoe Repairer

Greek Has Largest Contract For Mending Brogans.

FORT WORTH. — This success story concerns Tom Peters, a Greek immigrant, who today holds the nation's largest contract, nearly $250,000, for shoe repairing.

Peters, who still has more than his share of trouble with the English language, came to the United States in 1911. He had little money and little knowledge of the language. He came across country and settled in Waco, Texas. His first shop spread 9 by 7 feet with two shine chairs.

Two years later he had saved enough money to get in "the big time." He came to Fort Worth and opened a "seven-chair shine parlor."

Since 1913 he has shined and repaired shoes here. His business grew with each season. Then came America's defense program. Today Peters' shop repairs more than 1,500 pairs of soldiers' brogans daily.

Effluent Tom can't account for his sudden success.

"I am doing a nice little business here," he said, "and I hear about army shoe business. I bid here. I bid there, then I bid another place. Now see what I got," he continued pointing to a stack of run-down army shoes covered with the red dust of three great army camps and 27 CC units in the Southwest.

He has "stepped up production" so that now he gives overnight service to Camp Berkeley, the 45th division's new training camp near Abilene, Texas. Each morning vans dump 1,000 pairs of shoes in front of his repair shop. Each night trucks pick up the repaired shoes and head back to Abilene.

Timber's Gone, Village Fades Into Oblivion

NATALBANY, LA. — This tiny town in the heart of the strawberry country, once rich because of its unlimited timber lands, soon will be a thing of the past.

Where once the Methodist church stood, only the rubble of a foundation can be found. The church has been moved on to Tickfaw, where it has a chance of survival.

All up and down the streets of the town, which once echoed to the tramp of men going to work in the sawmills, homes are being dismantled and carted away. Some residents are boarding up their houses —not even bothering to move them in their search for employment.

At one time more than 1,000 men were employed in the sawmills, but gradually, as the land was cut over, they moved on. Soon only a skeleton force operated the rip saws.

Now even they are gone. The Natchez, Natabany and Northeastern railroad once hauled the logs to the mills. But the railroad plans to remove the tracks.

Many of the residents have moved to Hammond, center of the strawberry belt, and others are seeking a living cultivating the berry that has made this section of Louisiana famous.

Humidity Gage Protects Bust 4,600 Years Old

BOSTON.—The 4,600-year-old bust of an eccentric Egyptian priest minister is pampered with stream-line air conditioning at Boston's Museum of Fine Arts.

Uncovered at Giza in 1925, the bust of Prince Ankh-Haf is so fragile it is encased in a special glass bell from which a humidity reading is taken by a special hygrometer attached to the side.

Should humidity reach more than 30 per cent the bust of painted limestone saturated with water would crumble to dust. Air set in motion by moisture charges keeps humidity even.

Museum authorities say the piece is remarkable because tombs usually reveal only full-size figures, with possibly a few spare heads to replace the original. Faces usually are conventionalized, but that of Ankh-Haf is the most realistic portrait study to come to their attention.

A LABOR DAY SPECIAL

Even though it's a little early, John "Daddy" Keener wants to remind you that he will hold another shoot on his ground at Maytown Labor Day. $65 in cash will be given as prize money and if you don't get your share it will be your own fault. Details later.
