THE EDITOR'S VOICE

The best inheritance that a father can leave a son is the training and knowledge necessary to earn a living.

Until we have disciplined ourselves to live within our incomes, we are never really free men. We are tested for such thriftiness at every turn.

The world is changing all around us, and none of us is getting any younger, as several million people have remarked.

Tomorrow will be another day, worth living to see. It will be a different kind of a day more interesting perhaps than all the yesterdays.

The Agricultural Extension Service says: "It is a patriotic duty of every farmer to produce as much of his own food as he possibly can and pork is one item."

Now the farmer is up a tree and really doesn't know what to do. A few years ago the Government killed the farmers' hogs because there were too many and pork was too cheap, and now he is told to increase his production. It just doesn't make sense.

What will happen to the marriage ceremony if a bride can't buy her dinner out of tin cans, for that is what seems to be facing us in the very near future. With a new method of reclaiming tin and scrap steel from tin cans and being able to reclaim the tin considerably cheaper than the market price, we are going to put the can opener away. There will be casualties in the household where the canned food is the main dish if the order that is up for consideration goes into effect. Think of the grocery shelves and your home cupboards lined and spaced with canned goods. Consider that just in canned dog food alone this country uses about 650,000,000 cans a year. That is a lot of tin in anyone's reckoning. The idea is to market those things that will keep as well in other types of containers or can be sold in no containers at all. This is another form of giving our country more of this much needed metal.

When you live in one place for a long time, unconsciously you become overlaid with a patina of routine and habit. You begin to do things by rote, and your mind tends to function in easy, familiar circles. Travel jogs you out of your comfortable lethargy. You are like a cup of stagnant water that has been suddenly and violently shaken. The things that were lying forgotten at the bottom of the cup break loose and come to the surface where they can be observed with surprise or indifference, with delight or dismay. You are transported physically from the little sheltered nest you have built for yourself at home to what seems like a large unsheltered wilderness far away. It is nothing of the sort, of course, but the fact that it seems that way is enough to make you sit up and take notice. From the vantage point of distance you can look down at yourself as you were. It is like looking for the first time into one of those triple mirrors in a clothing store. You see yourself in much the same way that a stranger sees you, and therefore you see things in yourself that were hitherto visible only to a stranger.

There isn't much complaint today about children not knowing the value of money. We were living in a great spending age a few years back with luxuries heaped about us, living on top of the peak and many of us educating our children to expect life to hold the same and more for them. Of course even today there are youngsters who think money can be picked off of bushes and do not know the value of a dollar because they have never helped to earn a part of one. But our present way of life has been affected and there is a greater appreciation of money and its value. Children are surrounded by talk of what effort, time and industry it takes to get the money and they hear of increased taxes, prices of food and clothing, to know that things are coming harder today.

Don't worry, this may be good for them the considering of family finances of valuing cash in coins rather than in bills.

There are few idle hands today, these of every citizen having turned to daily tasks of earning a living and keeping up a home. There are those hands giving extra time to assisting their government in defense, hands doing Red Cross work, hands to carry out orders for civilian defense. Easy work this! And so does it all tend to hearten us for a final victory for our cause. We are told that a military survey of our resources indicates that when our armed forces total 3,600,000 men, that there will be fulltime employment for all of this country's workers. In other words, this removes unemployment from America, removing all idleness by men and women able to be employed. Should we exceed the mark of 3,600,000 fighters there will be a drastic call for workers. It will lead to people who are doing non-essential work being shifted to keeping vital industries going. Then we will find women supplying the labor in mass formation. We are proud to have the number of men needed for the armed forces and civilian labor ready to supply the hands to scrub the decks for action.

Fashions in dress change with the passing of time, fashions in morals differ as well, fashions in war making have suffered variations through the years, but the fashion of celebrating St. Valentine's Day has not altered with the other fads of our generation. The sending of valentines on Feb. 14 has remained a custom that we hope to maintain with or without the attraction and fascination of love and valentines we would be without a sentimental bit that adds charm to the yearly calendar. There has been a change in the types of valentines that have been sent through the varied years, from sugar-coated messages surrounded by cupid and hearts to a present day sort of valentine that shows sentiment but in a more practical sort of way. Lovers of old used to take this valentine means of approaching their fair ones with adoration and with a serious intent. But modern ladies don't necessarily expect a proposal to follow the missive. They tell us that a long time ago they would put the names of the young women and men in a box and those who wished to keep company would draw a name from the box. Those two chosen by chance would be sweethearts for a year. We don't think our young folks today would be so willing to take the chance. So though fashions in valentines and love-making may change, we still haven't altered the custom of observing Feb. 14. Don't let it slip your mind, husbands and sweethearts.

 and there are still a number of unpaid labor and material bills.
 The question of a janitor or watchman for the building was discussed at length and it was decided to have the boro employees keep the "house in order" for the present and council asked the Fire Company to have its members volunteer their services in guarding the equipment same as the Legion Boys are operating the "lookout" on Cemetery Hill.
 At the suggestion of the Supervisor, the Property committee was instructed to dispose of the old road oiler.
 Secretary Bailey was instructed to purchase a recommended list of water pipe and hydrants.
 A public liability insurance policy, $10,000 and $50,000, was ordered purchased from O. K. Snyder. It will be for a term of three years.
 Upon motion it was decided to get prices and information on two agitators, one for each of our filter beds.
 The budget for 1942 was then discussed at length. The various items were amicably agreed upon until they reached the Street Department. The amount set aside for that purpose was $1,500 against $3,700 last year. Of course the latter amount included rebuilding and macadamizing Detweiler Avenue, macadamizing the road to the pumping station, making the spacious parking lot on the Penna. R. R. property, etc., all items which will not appear in this year's expense.
 Messrs. Keller and Eicherly favored placing $2,500 in the street department. With that in mind the former made a motion to that effect and here's the vote: Keller, yes; Eicherly, yes; Loraw, no; Moore, no; Newcomer, no; Bowman, no. Motion lost.
 Mr. Newcomer then made a motion that an occupation tax be assessed on every citizen (21 years or over in our boro) as follows: Single, $5.00; married, $2.50. This would increase the boro's receipts about $1,000, said amount to be divided equally between the Street Department and the fire house expense account. The vote was: Keller and Eicherly, no; Loraw, Moore, Newcomer and Bowman, yes. Motion carried.
 A motion was then unanimously passed to approve the budget as is and advertise same.
 $1,000 was then transferred from the water to the old bond interest account.
 Chairman Loraw re-named all the committees for the year and Council adjourned.

Valentine This Year
 Does a 'Turn-Around'

With thousands of young men in the U. S. armed forces, this year will witness a complete reversal in the valentine idea, with our soldiers, sailors, marines and fliers now America's No. 1 sweethearts, instead of milady, who has occupied the center of the stage on St. Valentine's day from time immemorial. It is a safe prediction that millions of valentines in the form of letters, checks, boxes of candy and goodies, smocks and what have you, will be delivered to our armed forces on St. Valentine's day—postal rush second only to that of Christmas.

 And girls cannot expect too much in return, for $21 a month is a rather slim budget, but the slightest token from America's No. 1 sweethearts will be highly prized and tenderly guarded.

Said by Washington

To be prepared for war is one of the most effective means of preserving peace.
 There is a rank due to the United States among nations which will be withheld, if not absolutely lost, by the reputation of weakness.
 Let us impart all the blessings we possess, or ask for ourselves, to the whole family of mankind.
 It is our true policy to steer clear of permanent alliances with any portion of the foreign world... taking care always to keep ourselves, by suitable establishments, in a respectable defensive posture, we may safely trust to temporary alliances for extraordinary emergencies.
