A WISE OWL

These kids today sure beat me. While looking at a map of the U. S., George announced: "I can tell you how much water is in Lake Michigan to a quart." Disbelieving, Johnny stated: "Bet you can't," and George answered: "Okay, Two Pints."

Just remember, the man with the dual personality can always go chase himself.

The boys up at Van's sure have their hands full with their temperamental service car and tow car. About a week ago one of the boys used the service car (that white coupe) to come down town on an errand. But he made a bad mistake. He parked it at the curb in front of Shetz's funeral parlor, and when the errand was completed, and he attempted to start it, the thing had gone dead.

Yep, completely and definitely dead, and no amount of coaxing could change it's mind. So an SOS was sent for the tow car and it came down and shoved the service car around until it got so black and blue it gave up and started.

And then the tow car thought this over for a week or so and one day Johnny Zink started down town in it and is stopped completely but not for the same reason, the service car stopped, oh no! you see, the tow car from the service station was out of gas—embarrassing ain't it?

I guess I'll have to give the boys a hand. There seems to be a bet on concerning who declared war first—the U. S. or Japan. So here's the stuff, taken from a Philadelphia paper of Dec. 8, 1941.

Japanese Imperial headquarters announce at 6 A.M. (4 P.M. Sunday EST, Dec. 7) that a state of war existed among these nations in the Western Pacific as of dawn;

Canada declared war the night of Dec. 7th.

Washington first learned that the Nation was actually—though still not formally—at war at 2:22 P.M. Dec. 7. Congress was called to meet at noon, Dec. 8th and it was expected the formal declaration would follow—and it did—Does that help?

I was awfully disappointed that the boys at Leedom's didn't call up the office and give them that laugh they promised. Whatta matter loose your nerve?

You know I was going to learn to skate this winter, but I decided to let it slide.

You folks all know how popular doughnuts are during Lent, Well, I was at a place in Florin where they bake them every Tuesday and the folks asked me if I'd like to "Dunk" a couple. I declined more than two and the man of the family thought I was being a little bit of a snob; "I ate thirty-five doughnuts for lunch," I looked at him and asked: "Why didn't you eat another one and make it an even three dozen?" He became quite offended and exclaimed: "Humph, do you think I wanted to make a hog of myself for just one doughnut?"—Of course not.

After Thursday's First Aid Session, I asked a fellow student: "Did the instructors questions bother you?" And she answered: "No, it was the answers that caused me trouble—Odd, isn't it?"

Remember people, you've got to have faith in democracy, the same as you do in hash.

Here's a part of an ad that because of a slight typographical, is quite amusing: "Ladies: Clean healthful recreation. Join a bowling (bowling) team."

The people who are always dragging other families' skeletons from the closet are always very careful to hide the bones of the ones in

Good Health Will Whip War Worries

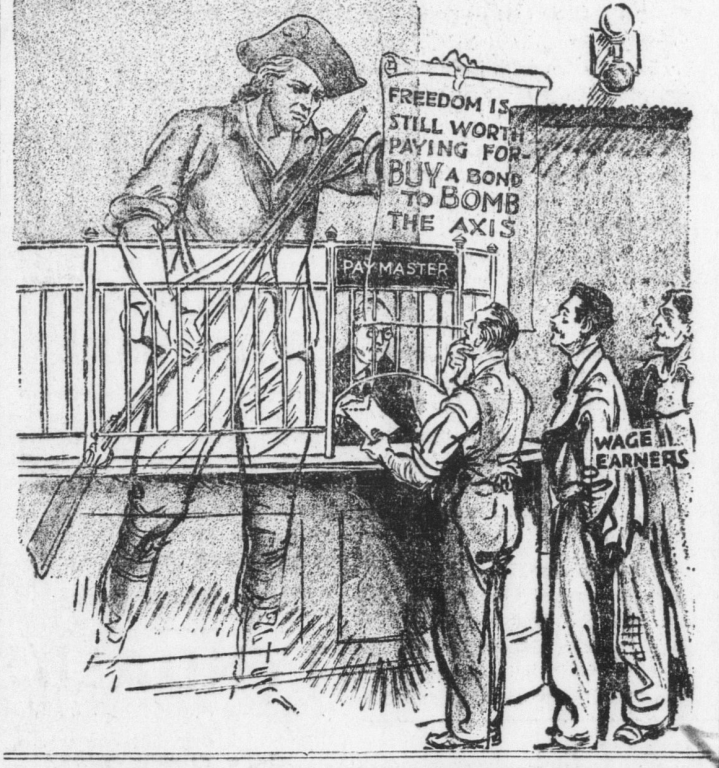

Y.M.C.A. Director Tells Service Women

By ELEANOR WILSON
Director of Women's Activities of the Army and Navy Y. M. C. A.

America has been at war now for months. With spring coming on, we who are carrying on the Women's Activities of the Army and Navy Y. M. C. A. must continue our program with renewed energies. Through the Women's Activities Program of the Y. M. C. A. we are showing the women who serve on the home front how wise physical activity and proper nutrition can help to insure the sound health and steady nerves they need in this crucial moment of our nation's life.

In the winter now drawing to a close colds and the diseases resulting from colds have been widespread. With spring approaching, a new wave of colds appears imminent, unless we make every effort to ward off this most common and costly of national afflictions.

PEDESTRIAN CAUTION URGED BY AUTO CLUB

With "war worry" and growing night work increasing habits for the pedestrian - still America's No. 1 traffic victims - the Lancaster Automobile Club appeals to motorists and pedestrians to co-operate in an effort to reduce traffic deaths and injuries involving those afoot.

"Pedestrian hazards are increasing," an Auto Club statement points out, because 24-hour production of war materials greatly increases workers walking in hours of darkness when the majority of pedestrian fatalities occur; more soldiers are walking along the highways; more drivers, many in a hurry and thinking of other things, use routes whose hazards and school crossings are unfamiliar; and emergency duties are taking police from traffic and other regular police work.

"Blackouts also tremendously increase pedestrian hazards. Despite a decrease of 31 percent in vehicle registration in England during the first fifteen months of war, traffic fatalities involved pedestrians. In the United States during 1942 every effort should be made to convince pedestrians that they must assume greater responsibility for their own safety. This does not mean that drivers have less responsibility for, as a matter of fact, drivers should be more careful and should reduce speed to safe levels.

The Auto Club gives the following rules for safe walking: 1. Carry or wear something white at night to help drivers see you. 2. Cross only at crosswalks, and on proper signal. 3. Be sure the way is clear before crossing. Look both ways. 4. Watch for turning cars. 5. Never go into the roadway from between parked cars. 6. Where there is no sidewalk, and it necessary to walk in the roadway, walk on the left side facing traffic.

The Low Down From Hickory Grove

We sure been hearing plenty about morale. Everybody that bobs up with a new idea or new scheme, and edges in onto Uncle Samuel's payroll, says it is for Morale. How we have got along so far without experts on morale, is hard to savvy. And Mr. George Washington, how he ever got up the courage to cross the bolster him, is also a big question.

Today you can hardly turn around without trampling on a Govt. uplifter of some stripe. It is getting tougher and tougher to find a place to park, with E-cars at every curb.

But when all is said and done, maybe some good will come from it. If too dancer can make Congress show its teeth, even just a little, versus being docile, then I guess it is money well spent.

Yours with the low down,
