and decided to sit on the upper deck.

They went gingerly up the narrow stair and apparently sat down. Suddenly they came clattering down, eyes wide with fright. The conductor inquired: "What's the matter—no seats?" And the one soldier nervously replied, "Plenty of seats, but it's too dangerous up there. No driver!"

A man from this community visited a famous psychiatrist with a problem: "My family thinks I'm crazy," he informed the doctor sadly because I like pan cakes. The doctor was amazed and exclaimed: "That's ridiculous. Why, I like pancakes myself." Quite happy at finding a fellow pancake liker, the man asked: "You do? Would you want to come to my home sometime and see mine? I have three trunks full!"

Remember that thick fog last Thursday nite? Well, along about twelve o'clock I was walking downtown with Firpy and up at the Post Office corner down on his hands and knees in the middle of the street was an East End citizen crawling around. I naturally inquired what he was doing there and he replied: "I'm looking for my watch which I happened to drop." "Did you drop it right around here?" I asked? "Nope," he replied, "I dropped it somewhere up around Trimmer's in that devilish fog, but there's more light down here." "You can bet I didn't help to hunt it."

And then down the street further we came across a ragged individual sitting in the gutter, crying his eyes out. Always interested in sad stories, we approached and asked his trouble. "It's my father," he blurted, "My father is a failure." Hoping to encourage him Firpy said: "Cheer up. Maybe he's not such a failure as you might think." But, unconsoled, the fellow sobbed: "Oh, yes, he is! For thirty years he has tried to make a gentleman out of me, and I'm still a bum."

A henpecked husband I know will only go to a woman dentist. He says it makes him terribly happy to hear a dame tell him to open his mouth instead of shut it!

Which reminds me of the tale one of our countrymen brought home just before things began to hum. This man went to a Berlin dentist and asked how much he would charge to pull a tooth. The dentist wanted $100. "Why, that's outrageous!" exclaimed our Yank, "Back home my dentist would charge only $2 or $3 dollars, $5 at the most. What's the big idea?" And the dentist explained: "Over here it's different. We pull it out through your ear. You can't open your mouth in Germany."

A panhandler walked up to me in the street and grabbed me by the lapels. "Gimme a dime, mister," he said.

"What's the idea?" I said to him. "What's the idea of stopping people in the street asking for money?"

"What do you want me to do," said the panhandler, "open an office?"

And just remember—Late to bed, early to rise, makes a man saggy, draggy and baggy, under the eyes.
