

OWL LAFFS

A WISE OWL

Say fellows, jowanna laugh? An attractive armful of brunette is telling one on herself. She was smoking a cigarette and without holding it with her hand, inhaled deeply and at the same time squeezed her lips together, tilting the cigarette up so that it burned the tip of her nose and now she's sporting a nice little red burn where X marks the spot.

Harry Hauenstein has decided to put a radio in his cow stable this winter. He says with all the "corn" you hear over radio today the cows should get enough to cut down the feed bill considerably.

Just received a card from an old friend of mine now living in Jersey. He's a defense worker and writes, "Like it down here. Having a wonderful time and a half."

A lot of these newly trained pilots may be able to fly like birds, but they'll never learn how to sit on a barbed wire fence.

A local Casanova has one very bad fault. When he sees a girl with wrinkles in her stockings he can't resist telling her about it. But, it has now been his downfall for the recently met the girl of his dreams and for their first date he kindly asked: "Dear, do you know your stockings are wrinkled?" And the dame slaps his face and says: "I hate you, you cur, I'm not wearing stockings."

A brand new G5 went to his CO and timidly asked: "Will you blame me for something I didn't do?" And his CO answered: "Oh course not." And GI Joe answered: "Well, then I must tell you, I didn't get up for reveille." - - - Isn't he a good boy for telling?

There're a lot of men who are "cleaning up" in the Army - with a sharp point at the tip of a stick.

An uptown Mamma is very happy because her son wrote and told her he gained sixty pounds since he went into the army. What she couldn't read because it was blurred was the next line explaining that two pounds of it was flesh and the other 58 pounds equipment.

Bob Hope says a yardbird is a guy who would like to drown his troubles but he can't get the Sergeant to go swimming.

A Marine took his gal to the shore for the weekend and thinking he'd buy her a seafood dinner he asked: "Do you like cod fish balls?" And the gal (she lives right near us) answered: "I don't know, I've never attended any. - - - No, he overcame the desire to throw her in the ocean, and brought her a hot dog, she could understand that."

At the Harry James dance at Hershey Jimmy gasped: "This place is really jammed," as he gasped for breath and blew his handkerchief on someone else's nose.

In my office this morning I tossed a piece of paper into the waste basket and as I did so I heard it moan: "I feel like an awful scrap."

Watch for big happenings on Poplar Street most any day now.

A Salunga lady was telling her neighbor about her current ailment when the latter, not believing she was ill at all, called her bluff by nut Street Auditorium.

Here's a clever advertisement just came across. A whiskey dealer had a huge sign in his window which read: "Don't buy whiskey, but buy war bonds, but if you have to buy whiskey, buy from us so we can buy war bonds." - - - Not bad!

Did you hear about the dogface who backed his jeep into a buzz saw? Now his outfit has two motor-cycles.

REG'LAR FELLERS—Double Duty Idea

The Low Down From Hickory Grove

Day by day, we get bossed more and more from our nation's capitol. At the present clip we can soon close down local business in each of our 48 state houses and sell everything to the highest bidder. And court houses and city halls, clear them out, too—lock, stock and barrel.

The latest Govt. idea is to edge in on fire insurances. Since soon after the Mayflower, fire insurance has been on a solid and safe basis. Each state up to now has been supervising its insurance outfits. It has worked good. If you smoked and dozed in bed and your house burned down, you collected. Or if you didn't collect it on account of being laid out at the morticians, your heirs or somebody did so. The insurance didn't fall you. And anybody thinking insurance is a luxury, let him try burning down his house once, and having no policy.

More and more each state is playing second fiddle. More and more we are looking like Europe—everything bossed from one office.

Yours with the low down, Joe

The Scout Troop had pitched their tents Sunday afternoon and camped in the park until Monday morning.

A picnic was enjoyed by members and friends of the U. B. Sunday School on Saturday at Twin Oaks Park. Swimming and games and contests were features of the day and a band furnished music in the evening.

LEGION CONVENTION AT HARRISBURG IN AUGUST

Frank X. Murray, Pennsylvania American Legion Commander, Scranton, announced that the Keystone State will be one of twenty-six to hold annual conventions in August.

Harrisburg will be host to the State gathering on August 17, 18 and 19, with Legion headquarters in the Penn-Harris Hotel and Auxiliary members convening at the Harrisburger Hotel.

Meetings by the Legion will be held in the Forum of the State Educational Building. The women will hold their rallies in the Chestnut State building.

Almost 3000 delegates are expected to attend the affair but the quick-acting ODT and other war efforts have caused the Legion to dispense with the traditional parade holding the convention to a streamlined business session.

New Guinea July 2d, 1944 Dear Mr. Schroll: I received your paper of April 6th and even though it was late it was good news. I wish to thank you for it. I am sending you my new address so you can continue to reach me. The home news is welcome when you are so far away.

Yours Sincerely, T/s Roy Wagner

Dale Harvey Fuhrman, Petty Officer 1/c, twenty-five, son of William M. Fuhrman, Marietta, has been wounded the fourth time in the present war. According to a telegram received from the Navy Department by his father he was recently wounded again in the European Theatre, presumably in the invasion area. No details were given.

Fuhrman, a veteran of seven years in the Navy, is a survivor of the sinking of the carrier Lexington, the battleship West Virginia and the freighter Kelllogg.

A brother, Sgt. William M. Fuhrman, Jr., turret gunner on a Fortress, was killed Nov. 13, 1943, over Germany and another brother, Pvt. Charles E. Fuhrman, is now in the Admiralty Islands.

To Mt. Joy Bulletin. A Ninth Air Force Troop Carrier Base, European Theatre of Operations—Cpl. James F. Schatz, a native of Mt. Joy, now a radio operator on a C-47 in a squadron of the IX Troop Carrier Command participated in the troop carrier plane flight which dropped paratroopers over the Normandy peninsula. The paratroopers' invasion preceded the invasion by Allied amphibian forces by several hours.

"Undoubtedly, it was my greatest experience," commented Cpl. Schatz on his participation in the invasion. "The thousands of ships, air and naval, presented an amazing spectacle." Cpl. Schatz thought the "plane umbrella" particularly reassuring.
