Twelve Elements Control Fertility
Vital Soil Chemicals Determine Growth
Fertility was described as the "fourth dimension" of the soil by Dr. William A. Albrecht, chairman of the soils department of the University of Missouri, in a recent statement.
"The soil has taken on a new meaning in the light of present war conditions," he pointed out. "Ration points on food and the scarcity of items like meat, milk and butter are giving soil a significance beyond that of mere dirt."
"Soil has long had two dimensions—length and breadth. As land, it has commonly been measured in terms of acres. The Soil Conservation Service first emphasized that our lands have a third dimension—depth. Erosion studies as early as 1914 by Dean Miller and Dr. Duley at Columbia made us see the soil profile with its rich surface being scraped away and washed to the sea."
"To these three dimensions, however, should be added a fourth—fertility—for food production essentially depends on this factor.
"Crops are a form of creation. Like the Biblical story of creation itself, crops must also begin with the soil. About a dozen different chemical elements are required of the soil by any crop. These make up the ash, amounting to approximately 5 per cent by weight of the dry matter. Yet, it is this small amount contributed by the soil that determines whether the plant can gather from the air and water, by means of sunshine power, the other 95 per cent of its total content.
The Controlling Elements.
"These 12 chemical elements making up 5 per cent by weight are thus able to control the other elements which make up 95 per cent of the total weight of the plant. Consequently it becomes evident that the soil rather than the weather wields the controlling hand in crop production."
In discussing further this "fourth dimension" of the soil, Dr. Albrecht pointed out that in a series of tests for producing soybeans as a seed crop, plots without fertilizer treatment on one farm yielded 20 bushels of seed, whereas adjoining plots supplied with extra soil fertility plowed down as fertilizers, yielded 25 bushels, or an increase of 25 per cent.
"When it is considered that both plots had the same weather," he concluded, "there should be little doubt that the crop depends on the soil rather than on the weather. We thus need to see our responsibility to the soil more, and to blame the weather less."

Sulfaguanidine Saves Chickens and Calves
A new addition to the sulfa drugs, all of which are derived from coal, will soon be used to increase the nation's supply of poultry and dairy products by combatting cecal coccidiosis, deadly disease of chickens and dairy calves, which costs farmers millions of dollars every year, according to the Bituminous Coal Institute.
The drug is sulfaguanidine which, in tests supervised by the United States department of agriculture, not only prevented development of the disease in healthy birds but cut the mortality rate among infected poultry to 12 per cent of the former figure, the announcement said. In each case, the chickens were fed a mash containing from one-half to one per cent of the drug.
"One of the advantages indicated by the experiments is that the treatment builds up immunity against reinfection," the institute pointed out. "Instead of killing all of the infecting organisms, the sulfa compound merely arrests development of the disease, thus enabling the body mechanism to build up an immunity."
