OWL LAFFS

A WISE OWL

Just a few more days until the small game season is wide open. We oughta have some interesting luffs after the first couple days. Somebody's bound to pull a boner or two.

Course we don't have to wait for the hunting season for luffs. Lets take fishing for instance. Now we know a fellow (name's Elwood Martin) who went fishin' at the river Friday and wasn't satisfied to sit on the bank and wait for the fish to bite, he went in after 'em — — — You guessed it — — — fell in. And it's not the first time either.

Hoping to get a rise out of a Back Run farmer who was plowing near the fence, a Barbara St, man driving past, stopped and asked: "Hey, you old by-theecker, did you see a wagon load of monkeys go by here?" And the farmer, quick on the comeback, answered: "No! Did you fall off?" — — — The smarty drove off plenty fast.

Here's a sad, sad story folks but knowing the guy, I can verify the fact it's true. Recently at Lancaster a jury was being impanelled, when the judge asked: "Are you a property holder?" Our local Mr. Meek answered "Yes, your honor." "Married or single?" continued the judge. "I have been married for five years, your honor," was the reply. "Have you formed or expressed an opinion?" queried the judge and our hen-pecked gent admitted: "Not for those five years, your honor."

Which reminds me of an incident told to me by a county clerk. A colored man approached the clerk in the court house and said: "Last week I paid you two dollars for a marriage license to marry Sadie Glutz. Now I want to exchange it for a license to marry Tillie Dawson." The clerk smiled and answered: "I'll give you another license, if you've decided to change girls, but you have to pay another two dollars." The colored gent thought it over for a moment and said: "Well, give me back my first license. There ain't no two dollars worth of difference between them two gals nohow, so I'll use the license I got."

Did you hear of the fellow at the track meet who won the pole vault tho' he never jumped before? He backed into a javelin-thrower.

Dick Mumper isn't going into the plastering and painting business. No, indeed. All that stove pipe, paint, plaster, etc., you saw him carrying up town was very urgent-ly needed. Why? Because Dick was trying out a loaned pump gun, to see if it would work and had put a shell in for the purpose, but kept his finger on the trigger. Net result—stove pipe shattered and down, plaster also down, and a newly purchased horn a near miss. Too close for comfort. Well, anyhow, he found out how it works.

The bride was barely able to totter down the church aisle. Gray-ing hair straggled wispily down wrinkled cheeks and you could hear her cackle with happiness. The groom needed help—he arrived alongside her in a wheel-chair—too weak to walk. As he mumbled to himself, his store teeth chattered in happy cadence, and his bald spot shone with highlights. Then they were married: the two who had waited until they could afford to get married.

Did you know that a deaf man cannot legally be committed of a crime? Why? Because its unlawful to condemn a man without a hearing. Smart, ain't it?

Here's a modern revision of Hia-watha by Clarence W. J. He killed the noble Mudyokinis. Of the skin he made him mittens. Made them with the fur side inside. Made them with the skin side outside. Put the inside skin side outside.

85th Birthday For A&P

ADHERENCE TO ECONOMY PLEDGE CITED BY 'VETERAN OF FOUR WARS'

Eighty-five years as pace-setter in the field of food distribution will be celebrated throughout the nation this week by the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company.

Announcing local observance of the anniversary! V. G. Perrin, sales manager for this area, pointed out that the institution founded by Hartford is a veteran of four wars and has been committed to an important role in the present conflict.

The company's pledge over the signature of John A. Hartford, president of the company and a son of the founder, affirmed its intention to continue efforts to deduce the spread between prices paid the grower and prices charged the consumer; to continue its aid to farmers in the orderly marketing of their products at fair prices, and to maintain high wages and good working conditions for its employees.
