Limestone Will Save War Crops
It has been estimated that farmers in the United States, excluding the arid and semi-arid areas where the natural supply of lime is adequate, could profitably use 35 to 40 million tons of ground limestone or its equivalent every year. This goal has never been approached. The nearest that American farmers have come to it was in 1942, when it is estimated that they used almost 21,000,000 tons. Of this, 18,971,000 tons, or about 90 per cent, was applied under the AAA conservation program. Owing to shortages of labor and transportation it is estimated that the quantity used fell off to around 16,000,000 tons in 1943. This year, it is hoped that at least 22,000,000 tons will be available.
The active ingredient of superphosphate is phosphorus, which government soil scientists say is the element of fertility most often deficient in corn belt and other American soils. While superphosphate, like other commercial fertilizers, has long been used on cropland, the need for supplying it to hay and pasture land has been less generally recognized. Yet tests have shown that seven 1,000-bushel cartloads of corn or oats take from the land as much phosphorus as is in the plowed surface of the average acre. Ten 13-ton cartloads of mixed hay, or half that quantity of alfalfa hay, carry away as much phosphorus as seven cartloads of corn.
From the inception of the agricultural conservation program in 1936 through 1942, 4,049,000 tons of superphosphate (in terms of 20 per cent available phosphorus) had been applied in the continental United States under the AAA. Of this, 1,073,000 tons were applied during 1942. In 1936, the figure was 121,000 tons.
The estimated United States production of superphosphate, 20 per cent basis, was 5,353,000 tons in 1942. It increased about 20 per cent to 6,400,000 tons in 1943, and a further increase may be obtained this year.

Agricultural Facts
One hundred and fifty thousand farmers will be unable to contribute food to the nation's war effort next year because it will take all their time and labor to raise food for rats.
Count ahead four months and then back 10 days from breeding time to determine when sows will farrow.
Culling of broody hens and early moulting will save the farmers of America millions each year.

Farm Woodlands Good Income Source

Most Wood Items Can Be Homemade

Farmers make up one of the largest consumer groups for forest products. Construction and maintenance of farm buildings require 3 1/2 billion board feet of lumber annually, with another 2 1/2 billion going into boxes and crates. In addition, pulpwood requirements for cartons and bags, plus wagon wood stock, wood for farm machinery, and other uses take still more lumber.
Specific uses of forest products on farms include repair of farm buildings, repair of farm implements such as wagons, wood stock for wagon tongues, everters, wagons, boxes, hayracks, tool handles, new buildings to house expanded crop, livestock and poultry production, fence posts and gates, and new buildups for replacing losses caused by tornadoes, fires and storms.

Marketing the fruit and vegetable crops only in 1944 will require some 190 million new baskets and hampers, 450 million berry cups, 50 million wirebound veneer boxes, more than 300 million nailed boxes and crates, and large quantities of paper and pulp products for wraps, liners, pads, bags and cartons. Additional containers will be necessary for other farm crops.
Increasing farm woodland production will help in meeting such marketing needs which are essential to the food production program, according to WFA, which reports that the many veneer mills, basket and crate factories, and pulp and paper mills look to the farmer for a major portion of their supplies of logs and bolts.
