Christians observing the most solemn occasion of their year, give testimonial of the sacrifice of Christ, the tragedy and glorious fulfillment which Easter brings. Hopefully they take heart in His promise of the better life when He said, "Peace be unto you".

As we made our pilarimage to services last year we prayed that another Easter would find us a triumphant nation this year, So it has come and so we shepherd our flock on this special Sunday to our churches and bow in grateful prayer for this blessing. Such is a resurrection for souls that fear had blighted.

However, this anniversary the world has not returned to a peaceful life. Instead, the outlook is dismal with thinking and acting of peoples directed along lines that lead to war. History points to man's greed and evil predominating over his convictions business. tions for good, since the human race has stalked in frustration and fear, dividing its strength between agitation and calm, with the eras of peace fewer than years wasted in war. Peace, it would seem, is just an interlude between battles.

At no other time should hope and confidence be reborn with such force, than Easter. Then, if ever, should we meditate up on our past savagery and be cleansed. World events make us despair for the future. We are entombed in our greed and the spring was in the air, the birds Bomberger, Secretary, R. Fellenstone of malice bars the door.
