EDITORIAL

Putting industry under ground because of another war, is a new idea, but putting people under ground because of war has been happening since wars began.

The price of cattle continues to soar and the higher it goes the less people worry because so many of them dropped steak from their menu quite some time ago.

During the first eleven months of 1947 the State Liquor Control Board seized sixteen stills and made 1,035 arrests for liquor law violations.

Lancaster County's method of bookkeeping did not meet with the approval of the State Auditor General Wagner and he used that as an alibi for not paying this county its share of the liquid fuels tax for the past eighteen months.

ALL YEAR ROUND

Taking down Christmas greens, storing tree lights and colored ornaments, is an indication of another holiday passing into memory.

AN ACCOUNTING

Inventory deals with figures and taking stock is usually done the first of the year. The Agriculture Department's report for 1947, is one of interesting figures for the farmers around Mount Joy.

Chamber of Commerce

At Monday night's meeting of Boro Council, Councilman Keller called attention, and rightly too, to two very unsightly objects at the eastern approach of our boro.

Our best confirmation of these facts is evidenced when we say that Mr. Ledem, the tenant, received a carload of coal and the shedding looked so dangerous to Penna. Railroad employees that they refused to place said car on the siding unless they were given permission to remove certain parts of the shedding.

would have been a good place to start beautifying.

STUDENT FARMERS

Of importance to our future are the thousands of young men, veterans of the recent war, who are undergoing training for farmers.

This may revolutionize farming here, for these young men are learning many things the generations of farmers before them, didn't know, or could have visualized.

LIVE IN HOPE

The United Nations, which we felt assured two years ago, would be an organization to guarantee peace for the world.

State Farm Show

ors; and expanded educational exhibits by State Departments and the vocational agriculture and homemaking schools and departments.

Four evening programs in the large arena or coliseum will, as usual highlight the farm show activities. While the doors open at 8 o'clock Monday morning, January 12, formal opening exercises will be held that evening.

Lancaster County's fire loss last year was $436,623.00. Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Zerphey, East Zepersburg, celebrated their 62nd anniversary. Both are 84 years old.

HAPPENINGS - of - LONG AGO

20 Years Ago

Daniel B. Brubaker purchased the stock, good will and fixtures of Herman E. Hauer's dry goods and grocery store in the rear of the First National Bank here.

The Grey Iron Casting Company is moving its machinery into its new building.

Auctioneer C. S. Frank sold the A. R. Martin property and milk station on West Donegal Street to Paul Mueller of Lancaster for $8,470.00.

Messrs. J. E. Longenecker, Aaron Leonard and C. S. Frank are buying tobacco. They are paying from 15 to 18 cents for wrappers.

The Christmas number of the Pattersonian, Mount Joy High School's monthly, contained forty-eight pages and cover, the largest issue ever published.

While Harry Williams Jr. and family were having dinner with his brother-in-law, Morris Ginder, near Mastersonville, the dwelling caught fire from an overheated stove pipe and was almost destroyed.

For the third time thieves stole English ivy growing on C. N. Mumma's house on West Main street.

The hotel at Kinderhook owned by the Rieker estate at Lancaster and conducted by Joseph Stoecker, was destroyed by fire.

Harry Frank, of Newtown, ran into a telephone pole with his auto while in town Saturday.

Among the obituaries were John E. Shenk, 78, J. Andrew Haas 54, publisher of the Marietta times; Harry S. Musselman, 77, Florin; Philip Staley 71.

"The Farm Show has an appeal all of its own," Secretary Horst declared in explaining why the giant exposition last January drew farm and city people alike at the rate of more than 100,000 a day.

"The Pennsylvania show now attracts visitors from many other states and foreign countries. We offer no fanfare or ballyhoo. It is display that proves the importance of Pennsylvania agriculture to the State and Nation.

Pulling power of the Pennsylvania Farm Show lies in its miles of wide aisles lined with the latest in farm machinery, silos, commercial feeds, fertilizers, home and barn equipment, farm service agency displays and thousands of competitive exhibits of farm products.

Youth participation will be emphasized through the 1948 Show. Hundreds of 4-H Club boys and girls and close to 1,000 Future Farmers and Future Homemakers will exhibit livestock and poultry.

Outstanding in the coming Farm Show will be the livestock and poultry exhibits. Nearly 1,500 head of beef and dairy cattle, sheep, swine and approximately 4,000 poultry have been entered by Pennsylvania breeders.

The Farm Show poultry exhibit will rank as one of the five largest in the United States. It was banned last January as a measure of precaution against spread of a new poultry disease that made its appearance in the State in 1946.
