X-Ray Equipment Maytown Apr. 14

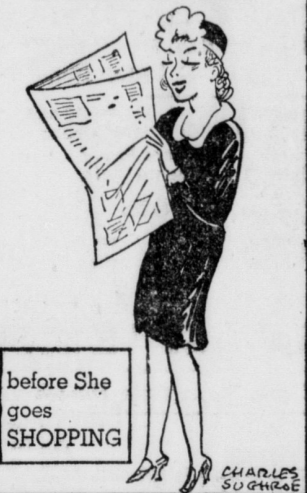

The Tuberculosis Society of Lancaster County will have its X-Ray equipment set up in the schools of Marietta and East Donegal on April 14. They will be in the East Donegal Township High School Auditorium at Maytown from 9 a. m. till 12 noon, and in the Marietta Auditorium from 1 p. m. to 5 p. m. This service is open to every person in the community at a nominal charge of $1.00.

The following students from East Donegal Township High School will take part in the county band which will present a concert on April 24 at Nefsville: Clarinets—Anita Swords, Hazel Crankshaw, Lilly Ann Greider, Flute—Shirley Warfel, Oboe—Isabelle Young; Saxophone—Kenneth Barnhart; Trombone—Jack Peck; Alto—Peggy Hicks; and Melophone—Lucy Kauffman. These students are under the direction of Mr. Morrell Shields, instrumental music instructor.

FORCE DAHLIA TUBERS

Dahlia tubers may be forced into growth during March to produce young shoots which, when taken off as cuttings and rooted, will produce separate plants for setting out later, reminds A. O. Rasmussen, extension ornamental horticulturist of the Pennsylvania State College.

The Coming Crisis. Beginning an extended series of studies in the Word of God. The emphasis in these studies will be primarily prophetic. The Scriptures will be seen to be quite clear concerning events of the immediate future. These studies should be especially timely and helpful in the light of Universal Military Training and the rejuvenation of Selective Service. These and other world shaking events are a clear indication of the "last days."

SHORT STORY

The Dog and His Master

By FERN AUBLE

THE dog stood motionless, soft brown eyes riveted on the small figure lying face down. Sobs racked the thin young shoulders as the boy's clenched fist pounded the hard earth.
Slowly the dog moved toward the boy until he stood over him. Tentatively then, he nuzzled the youngster gently.
Thad Lacey lay motionless for a moment and then, slowly, almost fearfully, he rolled his head to one side and stared up at the dog standing over him. For a space, time stood still as boy and dog took each other's measure. Then, the dog lowered his head and with a flick of his tongue on the boy's tear-stained cheek, lay down on the ground beside him, his nose buried between his forepaws.

Thad raised himself on one elbow and stretched out a grubby brown hand.
"Au, gee!" he breathed softly. "Gee, where'd you come from, boy?"
Thad's fingers gently fondled the silky ears. "You're just about the most handsome dog I ever seen." Only a hint of the storm of tears lingered.

Then in a floodtide of remembrance, his eyes filled once more and he rubbed his knuckles into them angrily. His voice roughened as he said, "Spot wasn't nearly as pretty as you, but I loved him anyway. Old man Benton needn't have shot him. Spot never hurt his old sheep. Spot never hurt nuthin' less it was rabbits or 'possums or varmints of some such kind."

A TWIG snapped in the underbrush. Thad jumped to his feet and the dog rose quickly, a low warning note deep in his throat.
The man's quick eye noted the tear-streaked face and then dropped to the clenched hands. "Hi, sonny," he said in a friendly voice. "Don't think I've seen you around here before, have I?"

"Guess not, Mister. Dad and me just moved here a couple of months ago. And Spot," he added forlornly. "Spot? He your dog?" The man's voice was pleasantly interested.
Thad's head came up and he made no effort to hide the heartache in his eyes as he said with a shaking, indrawn breath, "Uh-huh. He was my dog. Old man Benton shot him yesterday. Said Spot was runnin' his sheep." Chin not quite under control, he continued, "Spot never run nuthin' but varmints. I trained him myself an' I know." He stared defiantly at the man who gazed back at him with troubled eyes.

"That's too bad, son. I'm sorry you lost your dog. Mr. Benton was probably too hasty, but there've been a number of sheep killed around here lately and the farmers are pretty touchy."
"I know, but Spot didn't hurt his old sheep none. Not ever."

Slowly the dog moved toward the boy until he stood over him.

THE man was silent for a moment, watching the boy fondle the bound. I've never seen Bucky with such an idiotically happy look about him, he thought.

Suddenly, he made his decision and looking hard at the boy said, "Look here, son. You've lost your dog through a mistaken notion on the part of Mr. Benton. It looks like you and Bucky there understand each other pretty well.

"You take Bucky for your own dog. A boy needs a dog and all dogs need a boy for their master. You and Bucky belong together."

He stopped, smiling at the light in Thad's gray eyes and before he could repent of his offer, turned on his heel and started rapidly across the field.
Thad looked after him wordlessly. He sprang to his feet and raced after the man, Bucky loping at his heels.

"Hey, mister!" Thad's voice reached the man as he walked with downbent head. He stopped and turned slowly.
"Hey, what's your name, mister? I never seen you before neither."
There was a note of apology in the man's voice. "My name's Lawrence Benton." Not waiting for a reply he turned and strode on.

TRICKS TO SAVE WEAR ON BED LINENS
"Homemakers can use many tricks to get more wear from their bed linens," says Miss Emma Eastman, home management extension specialist of the Pennsylvania State College.

The use of sheets can be rotated by putting the fresh supply from the laundry in the linen closet. Top sheets will be used from the pile and wear will be evenly distributed.

The upper half of the sheet gets the hardest wear. A homemaker can equalize this wear by switching the bottom hem to the top every other time she changes the bed.

Keep beds in constant repair so that sheets won't catch on unprotected springs or broken or splintered bed parts, reminds Miss Eastman. Angled corners of springs can be covered with gummed paper or adhesive tape for extra protection.

Miss Eastman advises loosening all edges of a sheet before stripping a bed. Rips and strain on the fabric result from yanking sheets off the bed.

Sheets won't be soiled unnecessarily if the children's cleanliness is checked before they go to bed. When there is sickness in the family, bed linen should be changed frequently and washed promptly.

HEALTH HINTS FOR LIVESTOCK

PREPARED BY AMERICAN FOUNDATION FOR ANIMAL HEALTH

TAKE NO CHANCES IN TREATING STOCK
Livestock health is a serious dollars-and-cents proposition. The farmer who fails to pay proper attention to disease hazards and nutrition problems is making a mistake which may prove tragic and costly. Neverless, needless losses are being reported every day. Animal husbandry authorities are more and more concerned over the problem of careless, indiscriminate "tinkering" with the health of valuable livestock and poultry.

Be sure he has proper credentials.

Flying is one of those things which you learn from the bottom and up.

Here is a summary of the most reliable advice on the right and wrong ways to tackle disease problems:

(1) Beware of impostors. In some localities, unscrupulous individuals are reported preying on livestock owner, and claiming to be veterinarians. Before an owner permits anyone to treat his stock, he should be sure that person has the proper credentials and is licensed to practice veterinary medicine in his state.

(2) Go easy on "home remedies." Many disease of livestock are so similar in appearance and symptoms as to require careful clinical examination, and frequently laboratory tests as well, to tell them apart. New "wonder drugs"—like penicillin, the sulfas, or hormone compounds—are useful in certain conditions but in others they are wasted, or may do actual harm. When animals become ill, it is frequently better to do nothing than to do the wrong thing.

(3) A loaded vaccination syringe may be a deadly weapon unless used by a per on with proper scientific training. Indiscriminate vaccination or improper selection of products to be used may do more harm than good—sometimes actually spreading serious plagues of livestock while attempting to control them.

Some songs never die, but most of them are killed by radio poisoning.
