Acids Usually Useful

Most people think of acids as harsh, burning substances found only in poisons. But, as World Book encyclopedia points out, acids are among the most useful chemicals. Without acids, man's health would suffer, his industries would lie idle and even his automobiles would not operate.

Iceing Up Railroads

It is estimated that 16 million tons of ice are used annually by railroads of the United States. Of this quantity 13 million tons are used in refrigerator car service and 3 million tons are used in dining cars, commissaries, offices, passenger cars and in other ways.

Light Weight Crutch

Light weight crutch, having a tubular body and tubular base, telescopically arranged for adjustment, and adjustable handles; a support head capable of a cushioned rocking movement and a curved foot piece providing a secure contact for the crutch, recently was patented.

Supply of Ice

More than 30 million dollars worth of ice is sold in the United States every year. Most of this is manufactured ice, made by freezing water in ice plants, although some natural ice is cut from rivers and lakes.

First Marine Zoo

The first marine zoo, in which sea animals can be studied in their natural surroundings, was established by the great naturalist, Louis Agassiz, at Buzzards bay, off the coast of Massachusetts in 1873.

Aluminum Shovels

Shovels made of aluminum and weighing only a third as much as the usual shovels have been found satisfactory in tests of light metal alloys in Russia.

Strength of Masonry

The strength of a brick or other masonry unit wall depends upon strength of the mortar joints. If mortar can be loosened by scratching, the quality is poor.

Children Suffer

Each year more than 800,000 fires break out in the United States. Children are the most frequent victims.

Idaho Scenic Counties

The area of Adams, Idaho and Boise counties in Idaho is about the same size as Switzerland and the scenery is much the same.

C. of C. Taking a Vote

be appointed by President Samuel Dock to each Committee as set up by the Social Welfare Assn. These will be named at a later date.

It was decided that there would be no Directors meeting during the months of July and August.

Ten renewals were added to the membership as of July 1st.

A discussion was had regarding the highway through Mount Joy, Florin and Community, and it was decided to put an article in the Mt. Joy Bulletin and ask the opinion of each citizen whether or not they are in favor or are opposed to the highway through Mount Joy. Quite a few problems were presented in favor and opposed to this highway. Some of these are as follows:

In favor of the Highway: It gives business to Gas Stations and Restaurants. Some business is done by the retail stores, but it was reported that this does not amount to a great deal. It brings people to Town.

Opposed are as follows: The heavy traffic through Mount Joy, especially on Main Street is very objectionable to citizens living on Main Street. It is very hazardous for children crossing Main St. to go to school.

Parking space which could sometimes be used by citizens of the Community is taken up by the heavy flow of traffic. It is very hazardous for pedestrians crossing Main Street, especially since the State Department of Highways has refused to permit the Borough to erect traffic lights regulating the flow of traffic.

A ballot will be found in The Bulletin, and the Chamber of Commerce would be very much pleased if the citizens of our Community would return this ballot to the Secretary, Maurice N. Bailey indicating their choice whether or not they desire this highway to come thru Mount Joy and Community. Remember this is not the Dream Highway, from Carlisle to Philadelphia, but a new highway to take the place of Route No. 239 now going through Mount Joy.

HAVE LIGHTS FOR SAFETY

Proper lighting on the farm is a safety measure says J. R. Haswell, the extension agricultural engineer of the Penna. State College. Conveniently locate all lights and switches so that all work areas and treacherous corners will be well lighted.

Farmers who keep accounts say that an average of about five minutes a day is needed to keep the records up to date, according to E. L. Moffitt who is an extension farm management specialist of the Pa. State College.

SHORT STORY

The Jester's Last Chance

By JOHN T. KIERAN

ONE more chance to play his old role! One more chance to put on the only thing left of the days when he was hailed as the World's Greatest Clown, as Arsel, the Children's Delight!

In a flash Arsel thought of what was in his trunk, for from his shabby tenement room he could hear the little fellow downstairs bewailing his fate. The circus parade! And it was passing a block down, just far enough away that he could not see it, but near enough that he could hear the thrilling rumble of wagon wheels and the delighted shouts of the other children. But to share in the feast of joy was denied the little fellow. A few days before an errand truck had crushed his leg, and there he lay, imprisoned in a heavy cast.

To Arsel the rumble of wheels brought back memories. Again the smell of sawdust was in his nostrils. The stirring music of the circus rang in his ears. He saw the big tent, the prancing horses, the thousands of people laughing at his antics, shouting his name—Arsel, the world's greatest fun maker, beloved by millions—now Arsel the forgotten, the unknown, in poverty and ill health. He sat up now in his bed uncertainly, wobbly.

But only for a moment did he hear the shouts and applause of other days, for they were crowded out by the crying of the boy downstairs. He was inconsolable. The circus was passing him by.

Arsel was trying to carry his thought into action. One more chance to be old self! One more chance to wear the one thing that remained of his days of glory—his clown suit. And for what a cause!

The shabby room became a dressing tent. Out there was the audience he was going to amuse, to make happy—even more this time—to cheer a little boy into a frame of mind that would beckon recovery and lessen the misery of imprisoned limbs.

But could he manage to go through with it? Could he find the strength? The community nurse, having found him when she came to visit the injured boy, had told him that he must not leave his bed.

But another outburst of childish grief decided him. Hesitatingly, gingerly he left the bed and started for the battered trunk in which lay the old clown suit.

When the circus had come into the town a half dozen of the old-timers were still with it. They had been troopers long ago with Arsel before he faded into oblivion. They had last heard of him in this town. He probably was still here. They determined to find out, and to give him a rousing salutation, a regular circusman's greeting.

Arsel had the old suit on now. He wondered again what made him feel so strange. But then as he looked at himself in the dingy mirror he forgot everything. He was Arsel, the Children's Delight.

As he looked at himself in the mirror he forgot everything.

Suddenly he almost collapsed. The flare of strength that had buoyed him up puffed out.

Suddenly a sound re-aroused his flagged mind. Incredulously he listened. Was it just a part of this strangeness that had come over him? Or was it really a circus band? Just outside! They were playing his march. The Circusmen's March!

He relaxed, happily. The boy was getting his circus after all. Shouts of joy were coming from him. For the little fellow was looking out the window almost crying again he was so excited and thrilled.

"I wanna dance," he exclaimed, looking down at his cast. He saw one of the bandmen come into the house. In a minute or two he came out again and the band stopped playing. He said something to the others and then they started playing again.

The boy looked puzzled. He listened attentively for a moment. Then:

"That first piece was so pretty, made you wanna dance or somethin'! But this one is so different. Gee! It sounds like somebody was dead."
