Farmers Can Enroll In State Corn Club

Farmers in Pennsylvania this year will have the opportunity to enroll in the first Penna. Corn Club which is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Crop Improvement Association and the Extension Service cooperating.

The purpose of this new club is to give recognition to corn growers who produce not less than 75, 100 or 125 bushels of sound corn per acre depending upon the county in which the farm is located. Lancaster Co. growers will undoubtedly be judged by the 125 bushel standard. This project will serve as a demonstration on proper seed bed preparation, the use of adapted hybrid varieties, the intelligent use of land, manures and commercial fertilizers, sufficient stands of plants, and efficient weed control and cultivation.

Suitable recognition to those who qualify will be given at the next Farm Show at Harrisburg by the Crop Improvement Association.

A few simple rules will govern the contest should be mentioned.

1. A farmer can make one entry only.

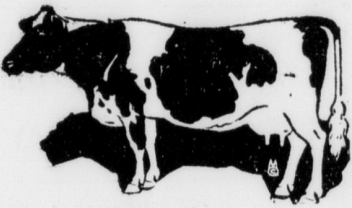

2. All contestants must register with their County Agent Office not later than August 1st. This can be done by either calling at the office in the Lancaster Post Office or by calling 2-7977 Lancaster.

3. There shall be no less than five acres of one variety or hybrid at one location on the farm. If the farm or the corn fields are laid out in strips, three strips may be entered providing the two intervening strips are grown to close growing crops.

The total contest acreage in this case must total at least 5 acres.
