MEMO To Mrs. Housewife

NATIONAL PRESS BUILDING WASHINGTON, D. C.

By Anne Goode

A new plastic broom really chases dust and dirt. By producing static electricity when wielded briskly, it pulls dust and lint particles from rugs and floors.

At this writing, it seems doubtful that during this session of Congress the Senate will have the opportunity to vote on legislation which would repeal taxes on yellow margarine. But home-makers can continue to remind legislators, both Federal and State, that you want yellow margarine tax-free. Such great progress was made during this session that it seems impossible that selfish dairy interests can prevent legislation from being passed during the next session.

There's a gold rush this summer - but this time the mine is accessories. Gold bags and shoes that never venture out till after dark are now being featured with informal daytime dresses, particularly white. Gold jewelry, too, is fashionable.

If you sandpaper baby's shoes just a bit on the bottom, the little one won't be apt to slip and fall as often. . . . And sleeping of shoes—keep these diminutive numbers clean with the oil of shina white which both cleans and polishes.

with more than one vote.

The Opposition

All the opposition we could find was that some people didn't feel like waiting half a minute when they wanted to cross Main street. Several others who do not even have a business on Main street objected to the noise. One of these objectors is the same individual who tried to have Main street narrowed down to about twenty feet—a mere cow path—many years ago. At the time the Bulletin bitterly opposed the issue and you all know the answer. Can you picture our present day traffic on a street about half Main street's present width?

A movement to get the present traffic out of town is a deliberate slap in the face of every business man from and including Brown's Mill to the west end of Florin because all these men have paid many thousands of dollars in taxes, wages etc. and have made our present industrial boro and community. They want people to come to town while the by-passers want to keep them out. Why should all these business men and women be the goat just for the sake of a few who "don't like the noise?"

No one hears Elizabethtown squawking. That boro fears a by-pass and from what we can learn is doing everything possible to keep the highway as is. They can park on both sides of the street and have ample room for two lanes of traffic.

Our Main street is just as wide and far wider at many places. If it were leveled same as at E'town, we would have ample room for parking and traffic.

Let's wait and see what the business men at Salunga and Landisville have to say six months after the by-pass is opened there.

Several years ago the road from Akron to Reading was rebuilt and relocated. Ephrata, Adamstown and Reamstown were bypassed. Now interview the business men who were located along the "main drag" and see how they feel. A number have already moved off the old road.

When one considers the foregoing facts we cannot see how they could conscientiously favor by-passing our boro.
