

OWL LAFFS

A WISE OWL

Officer Mike Good has a problem. He "blew down" a motorist for passing at an intersection, but when he went to the car and explained why he had stopped him the motorist pointed to his ears, indicating he could not hear. So Mike wrote it and showed it to him and left him go. After the fellow was on his way, Mike began to wonder. If he was so deaf how did he hear the whistle signal?

Another picnic day! After a while, it gets monotonous.

There were four very red faced local matrons on the beach at Atlantic City during the Grocers picnic, and it was not due to sunburn either. The ladies were enjoying a friendly game of poker, when a policeman happened by, and it seems gambling on the beach is not allowed. For awhile the ladies were in hot water as to what the officer would do, but after much uneasiness he warned them and let them go. —Maybe next week I'll give you a hint who they were. C'mon ladies, bribe me.

Protect the birds. The dove brings peace and the stork brings tax exemptions.

A farmer near Maytown, watched in amazement as his dinner guest, an Army officer, devoured an astonishing amount of chicken. After dinner as they sat on the porch, a rooster came strutting by. My that is a proud looking rooster, the officer exclaimed. He should be, he just gave two sons to the Army, said the farmer.

After all, we men should be grateful that we cannot understand women. Women understand women and they don't like them.

If by chance you see Burton Shupp eating off the mantle, or drinking from a shelf, it is not because he was horeback riding. No, indeed! Believe it or not, he sat in poison ivy! Aw, now Shuppy, I thought you would know better than that.

An east end lad ask his dad: What was your greatest ambition when you were a little boy?

To wear long pants son, and I have gotten my wish. If there is anybody in this country who wears his pants longer than I do, I would like to see them, his Dad replied.

Then there was the cute little Scotch girl who stuck a strawberry in her belt buckle and went to the fancy dress ball as a strawberry short cake. —Help!

So now it comes. Just because I have been asking tough questions lately, a nearby farmer wrote in and asked: How many kernels are there on an ear of corn? Naturally, I did not know but darned if I will be called dumb, so I went down to Reists corn crib and started to count so the answer is: The number varies with the variety. Field corn has the greatest number—about 800—sometimes as many as 900. Sweet corn has about 475 1-2 kernels to the ear. —The 1-2 in the little "knuttie" you find up near the end; — Alright, you count em!

Scientists agree that life on Mars is practically impossible.... just as it is on Earth.

Two youngsters heard the ones parent complain of indigestion after eating a big Sunday dinner. What is indigestion the one had asked. And the other explained: It is failure to adjust a square meal in a round stomach. —Smart boy!

Play Ground News

By Eleanor Eshleman

As the fifth week of the Mt. Joy Playground drew to a close, one would find the children in the midst of a very busy schedule.

A Hobby Show was sponsored on Wednesday afternoon with quite unusual display of hobbies. The children displayed collections of shells, match covers, animal pictures, boats, stamps, dolls, miniature animal fancy work and also scrap books.

The following prizes were awarded by Mr. Charles Bennett and the playground supervisor: The best hobby, a very good collection of stamps to Asher Halber.

The largest collection, match covers to Tommy Zimmerman. The neatest displayed hobby, a collection of miniature rabbits, to Shirley Eby.

During the week, the girls were busily engaged in craft work. The projects which have been completed thus far are painted plates, animal pins, luncheon sets, woven pocketbooks and belts. During the next week the girls will work with gimp and will make attractive bracelets.

The children are making plans for the event of the sixth week which will be a circus. The ten children having the highest number of points during the 4th and 5th weeks are: Vernon Oberholzer, Ronald Williams, Charles Zeller, Arthur McCown, Kenneth Engle, Peggy Zimmerman, Thelma Snavely, Mary Jane G-off, Marlene Garber, and Winona Markley. These children were awarded ice cream cones.

SEC. 2 CO. LEGION LEAGUE

Manheim clinched the Section 2 title in the County American Legion Junior base ball league Tuesday by defeating Ephrata 1 to 0. It was a no-hitter for Bill Haines.

In a Section I league game E'town defeated Maytown 7 to 1.

At Mount Gretna

Harry A. Huguenot, veteran actor now appearing with the Gretna Playhouse Co., Mt. Gretna, Pa., can tell you where he has spent virtually every night for more than forty years.

The reason is simple for Harry has kept a scrap book which shows every performance and part since he first stepped on the stage 41 years ago.

As for those nights when he is 'at liberty', he can be found in the Lams Club, New York, the place where he makes his home.

Although possessing an excellent voice, he has never appeared in the talks, but was filmed with such silent stars as Mary Pickford, John Bunny, Flora Finch and the others.

JIMMY ESHLEMAN, TOWN SINKS A HOLE-IN-ONE

James W. Eshleman, one of our local golfers, joined goldom's select "hole-in-one" club Sunday when he sank his tee shot at the first hole at Johnny Hiemenz' Country Club Heights course. He used a seven iron.

He was playing with Charles Shade and Eleanor Eshleman.

ied by his family and mother they were driving through Va. when they stopped at a service station. Everyone was milling around and after awhile they started off. They had gone many miles when they suddenly made a startling discovery! His mother was missing! Around they turned and went back to the service station where mama was patiently waiting.
