EDITORIAL

Every man has his price but there are a lot of them who don't get it.

Did you ever realize that some people don't know as much about their own business as they do about others.

MORE CORN

A year ago, the dry, hot weather, caused a loss in the nation's corn crop. Since corn affects the cattle and hog market price, as well as production, a smaller corn crop made meat more costly and scarcer. There were late plantings and summer droughts to cut production about 600 million bushels below the goal set by the Department of Agriculture. This year, it is believed the country will have a bumper crop to compare with 1946. It still rests with what comes in sun and rain for the remainder of the season. At least such tidings lift the spirits of local housekeepers.

TOMORROW

Prerogative is a human failing found among many of us. We overwork that "putting off until tomorrow what we can do today". Each day's passing finds something accomplished, but not enough attention is given the jobs that arise next month. Winter slips upon us and we look to the roof's repair, the pipes to be fixed, furnaces checked, window caulked. Much of this can be done today when repairmen aren't busy. It is nothing new, this putting off until the last minute. We wait to the deadline to renew licenses, get auto tags, register to vote, do Christmas shopping.

Week's Best Recipe:

Tomato Ketchup: 1 peck (12½ lbs.) ripe tomatoes, 2 medium onions, ¼ t cayenne pepper, 2 c cider vinegar, 1½ t broken stick cinnamon, 1 t whole cloves, 3 cloves finely chopped garlic, 1 t paprika, 1 c sugar, 2½ t salt. Wash and slice tomatoes and boil about 15 min. or until soft. Into another kettle slice onions. Cover with small quantity of water, cook until tender. Run cooked onions and tomatoes through sieve and mix the pulp. Add cayenne pepper. Boil mixture rapidly until it has been reduced ½ original volume. Place vinegar in pan with spice bag containing cinnamon, cloves and garlic. Allow to simmer 20 min. then bring to boiling point. This leaves 1¼ c vinegar mixture. Remove from heat, cover until ready to use. When tomato mixture has cooked down add vinegar mixture, paprika, salt and sugar and boil rapidly about 10 min. Pour boiling hot into sterilized jars and seal immediately.

Take A Tip:

To have red cabbage keep its color cook it with an acid. Add a few tablespoons of vinegar for each cup of shredded cabbage, to the cooking water. . . . Make cole slaw and add dressing about an hour before serving, chilling it in refrigerator. The flavor of dressing will go through the cabbage. . . . Add a teaspoon of butter or margarine for each serving of steamed or boiled green vegetable. . . . Combine sautéed mushrooms, and diced cooked ham in a cream sauce for a supper dish. Flavor with finely minced green pepper and a few teaspoons of prepared horseradish.

Watch For Mildew:

Leather often shows mildew in hot, humid weather. Keep shoes on high shelves since they will keep drier than stored on floor on low shoe racks. Air closets frequently with an electric fan. A container of calcium chloride helps keep contents of closet dry and also absorbs moisture from air.

Inspirational:

Truth is not only violated by falsehood; it may be equally outraged by silence. —Amiel.

THE SMALL FARM

"Progress" of civilization seems to have built up big business and stifled the little business. This has been most apparent in industry in cities. But, in the country, the small farm can not seem to compete with the large one, especially since the national food program has become such an important economic issue. With production of wheat, corn and potatoes, on a vast scale, the small acreage farm is lost. However, look what this "little business" does for the individual needs of the family and you recognize its importance in the scheme of things.

If a man has an independent income, though small, perhaps a pension, he can better farm the small acreage and add to his income. It brings added material things the pension won't cover. How many small families are living comfortably on such farms, with fruit, vegetables, a cow or more, a few chickens, a couple of hogs. By managing well, caring scientifically for the soil, they get a surplus from the farm. The able man finds the day occupied with hours of wholesome toil, not too tiring. He finds the growing of things, interesting. Many a city man looks forward to retiring and continuing to be active by having such a small farm. It gives one a feeling of independence, which is an important offering from this life.

WOOLING THE VOTERS

Prices are still rising and by the end of the year they will be higher. That is a pessimistic statement. But it is an accurate capsule summary of what most economists are saying and writing. All the forces that make for price inflation—higher wages, tremendous government spending, near-record purchasing power in the hands of the public—are still in effect.

High prices constitute the most serious problem of millions of families. But the American people must not be carried away by the kind of hysteria that believes that more laws, more controls and more political domination of the economy can provide the answer. This is an election year, and many a candidate will use price control as a device to win the voters. What those candidates will not point out is that nobody will produce goods at a price which is too low to return a profit—and that the greatest beneficiary from price control is the black market racketeer.

The common argument that high prices are largely the result of conscienceless profits should be scotched. Competition is the best means of limiting profits that ever existed. As an example, the typical retailer in general merchandise earns a profit of around five cents on each dollar you spend with him. In the food field, with its fast turnover, he earns less than two cents. The profits of manufacturers are usually about six percent, and are often less. Certainly, no one can say that this is an excessive wage for the enormous service business renders America.

UNITED PARTIES

Whatever we may have to say against the speeches, promises and fanfare of the political conventions, we praise the line taken by both Democrats and Republicans, in making the foreign policy a bi-partisan affair. This country is growing wiser, more seasoned, in international situations. The United States has matured. With both our political parties conferring, consulting, together, in the interest of the nation, government is strengthened, respect for politics increased. Those who lean toward Communism at one end of the scales, these who are confirmed isolationists at the other end, will find this bipartisan stand too strong to hear their voices.

JUNIOR POLICE

Certain cities have taken a forward step in curbing juvenile delinquency, in forming a junior police force or appointing junior deputy sheriffs. Since adults haven't done so well in solving the problem, some towns have decided to let the youngsters see what they can accomplish. Already there are about 250,000 juveniles serving in the law enforcement jobs and doing a fine job. Their duties range from being traffic guards near schools, handling crowds at public functions and at scenes of accidents, hunting lost children, guarding against Halloween destruction. Yet, the most important role is in crime prevention among youths.

After being given a view of police records, learning crime statistics, seeing criminal's pictures, studying case histories, learning the outcome of criminal tendencies in the young, these junior sheriffs sign for duty. They set examples by abiding by the laws, work to build a

FIXING UP the HOME

By Diane Greeter

Kitchen Is Food Laboratory

I LIKE to cook, but all the joy is taken out of this most interesting of household tasks if I don't have the proper equipment and tools to do the job. Then, too, I must have everything within easy reach and the kitchen has to be so arranged that I can keep every working surface clear and clean without too much trouble.

I clean things and put them away as I go along. It's no fun to finish the interesting part of the job and then have to buckle down to washing up a lot of messy pots and pans, dishes and bowls.

I like to look upon my cooking as laboratory work and each recipe an experiment in chemistry. A good cook knows what chemical reaction takes place in a mixture with the addition of each ingredient and it is fun to work out new combinations. When proper mixtures are achieved, it is an easy step to convert them into palate teasing foods by the application of what the chemists call "thermal treatment." This means heat and heat means cooking.

Cooking with gas is easy, whether you are in the city or country. The country gas is even richer and hotter than the city gas. It is delivered in cylinders (bottled gas) or in a tank truck just as it comes from the refinery. They call it LP-Gas, but dealers all over the country have it under a wide variety of their own trade names.

better community by organizing against juvenile crime. Already, in cities where this sort of police force has been active, there is a noticeable decrease in juvenile delinquency.

If this method works in cities, we have every reason to believe it would work well in towns such as Mount Joy. Such juveniles could be a great help. Why not give it a trial?
