EDITORIAL

As soon as the Government restricts installment buying, many folks will not be able to live beyond their means.

Monday was Labor Day but according to our way of thinking the Labor Unions didn't set a very good example. Exactly 58,000 were made idle by three major labor tie-ups. Of that number 28,000 were maritime workers, 16,000 refinery workers, and 14,000 teamsters.

MORE NEW STAMPS
Politicians, during an election year, have a way of garnering votes by commemorative stamps, celebrating events of states, of organizations. During 1949, an election year, 41 different ones were issued, as well as special ones for the president and other friends of the Postmaster. So far this year, 12 commemorative stamps have been put out, 18 more shortly to be released. These have been authorized by Congress and through the Post Office Department. A publication, the Western Stamp Collector, puts it this way "Politicians and the Post Office Department are especially vulnerable in a campaign year."

CONSTITUTION DAY
Our Constitution was not something dreamed over night, just an obscure government paper, a flimsy piece of paper, a flimsy piece of paper for men who desired publicity for themselves. It was on September 17, 1787, that the 39 founders, put their signatures to the document. It was presented to the states for consideration, was ratified and went into effect March, 1789. The convention spent four months drawing the instrument, the colonies gave 18 months for study. Time in drawing, in referring, in study, in ratifying. Such consideration proves it a work to represent the highest aspirations of the people. This charter of freedom is our defense against tyranny, bigotry, transgression. It regulates and formulates the rights of our citizens. Time will but strengthen its principles for liberty.

ADD A GADGET
People who have been buying automobiles, have been doing a lot of kicking about the accessories they must buy, along with the car. All kind of gadgets have been added, to increase the cost and must be purchased if they want the auto. Some blame the dealer for it, but they are wrong. Perhaps all you ask for is a means of transportation, but there are seat covers, spot lights, radios, heaters, fog lights, special kinds of steering wheels, one to three kinds of special heaters. One new car comes equipped with matched luggage to fit into the rear and adds $350 extra for the distinction.

A member of automobile dealers of New York, informs the public that they can't place all the blame on the dealer. He, the dealer, gets the car's decked out, from the factory, and if he tries to remove many of the gadgets, he often damages the car's appearance. Also, he takes a loss on the resale of the accessories, in most instances. So, share our disapproval with the manufacturer. In the meantime, if you don't like the set up, we can continue to drive our old bus around, or put in our name for a horse and buggy.

POETS, TAKE HEED
Not as many of us read poetry, enjoy it, appreciate it, understand it, as we should. There are simple, sweet verses, that are comprehensible to the most uneducated man, that usually deal with love and flowers in bloom. A man says that too many poets extol the beauty of the spring flowers, the violet, the anemone, the valley lily, the daffodil, the crocus, all for their delicacy and loveliness, but neglect to praise the beauty and hardiness of the fall flowers. Much can be said for the wayside bloom that nods pleasantly, during summer's heat, that greets fall with a steady stalk. We consider Queen Anne's Lace or wild carrot, as beautiful as the choicest cultivated beauty. Consider the bloom of the sunnich, the glory of the golden rod, and they take their place in your heart. Way overlook the round faced sunflower, that used to grace the yard to edge the chicken yard? It hid unsightly spots, grew to large proportions, dropped its seed for grateful poultry, and added its charm of yellow color to the local picture. We think poets have passed up some pretty good material, in their making of verse.

WORKING TOGETHER
The interdependence of the $29,000,000,000 oil industry and the $111,000,000,000 agricultural industry is the subject of a recent news release. The changeover from man and animal power to petroleum power has been one of the basic causes of a remarkable increase in farm production in late years.

Last year, there were nearly 3,000,000 fewer workers and 5,000,000 fewer draft animals on American farms than in 1940. Yet food production was 35 per cent greater. Today American farmers use more than 3,000,000 tractors, 1,830,500 trucks and close to 5,000,000 motor cars. On top of that oil powers a long list of other tools from gigantic self-propelled combines to such specialized equipment as cotton pickers and nut harvesters. Agriculture, therefore, is one of the oil industry's best and most dependable customers. But the buying isn't all on one side. The industry consumes more than 40,000,000 pounds of agricultural products each year, not counting food. Tons of animal and vegetable oils are used in the manufacture of special greases. Wheat bran, cottonseed hulls and other products are employed to plug porous underground formations found when drilling wells.

This is just one excellent example of how all elements in a free enterprise economy work directly and indirectly to the betterment of each other. And that, in turn, is why this country leads the world in the production of goods of every kind, and in the living standards of the people.

nearly 7,000 cubic yards of concrete. In addition, the job will use 372,000 pounds of steel bars and 706,000 pounds of fabricated structural steel. The three-mile section is the first of three which engineering firms employed by the commission have been planning for several months. Planning also is going ahead for construction of a bridge to carry the new toll road over the Susquehanna River, some 1,900 feet East of the point the first section ends. In announcing the call for bids, Evans noted it will be 40 years next month since the first bids were asked on the present 160-mile turnpike, linking Pittsburgh and Harrisburg. That highway, with its seven tunnels through the Alleghenies, was completed 23 months later at a cost of $75,000,000. The Eastern extension, which will run from Middlesex, Cumberland County, to King of Prussia, Montgomery County, will be completed by December of 1950, if the commission sticks to present plans.

KILL MORNING GLORIES
Little trouble will be experienced with morning-glories in the potato field next year if they are killed this month. G. H. Berggren, extension agronomist of the Penn State College, recommends 1 to 1 1/2 pounds of the ester form of 2,4-D per acre applied to the sod which is to be plowed down next spring.

That cash in the bank certainly looks good to me.
