WHAT'S A "I DON'T KNOW"?

When a kangaroo is born it is so small that it measures scarcely an inch in length. Besides that it's blind, furless and must spend several months in its mother's pouch. When full-grown, however, it will stand almost as high as a man and can leap 10 to 12 feet. It is said that the name kangaroo is the Australian native word meaning "I don't know."

West Indian Mahogany

A major cabinet wood in England and America until approximately 1775, West Indian mahogany, declined in use as supplies from Jamaica then Santo Domingo and finally Cuba, became scarce. Until World War II, minor supplies were available from Cuba. War restrictions stopped its importation and since the war, an export embargo has kept supplies from coming to this country. It is the heaviest and hardest of the mahoganies and is the favorite of the old-time cabinetmaker for his hand made furniture.

Miss Florence A. Erb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Erb, Mannheim R2, and John K. Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Z. Miller of Bainbridge R1, were married at the home of the bride Saturday. Bishop Homer Bomberger officiated.
