Farm Topics

Average Farm Family Sees Income Recede
Buying Power Higher Now Than Year Ago

What, if anything, is happening to the average U. S. farmer with regard to the money he gets for what he raises, and does he have anything to worry about?

Although there has been a moderate drop in income of farmers, the average family has more purchasing power today than it had a year ago, a reliable monthly survey of "real income" reveals. "Real income" is the relationship of revenue to living costs.

The national figures indicate that the average home has 2 per cent more buying power than last year. Wage-earners, salaried people and those with investment income are equally well off, while the farmer is now about 3 per cent below his status of a year ago.

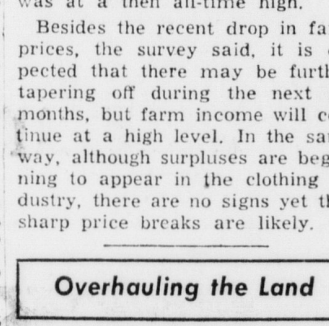

It should be remembered, however, that such status a year ago was at a then all-time high.

Besides the recent drop in farm prices, the survey said, it is expected that there may be further tapering off during the next six months, but farm income will continue at a high level. In the same way, although surpluses are beginning to appear in the clothing industry, there are no signs yet that sharp price breaks are likely.

Overhauling the Land

Ten years' work in rebuilding the soil-depleted 300-acre Rio Grande College farm at Rio Grande, Ohio, were compressed into 13 1/2 hours recently by 600 workers and hundreds of pieces of mechanized farm equipment. In this hilly Ohio valley country, chief problem was removal of excess water which had been carrying away top soil. Diversion ditches and sod water outlets were prepared. Two ponds were built. The course of a stream was altered. Years of cultivation had taken much of the life from the farm's soil, so the horde of workers also attacked the problem of soil rejuvenation. Great areas were tilled, limed, fertilized and seeded and overgrown pasture land was reclaimed and prepared for seeding. In the picture, a jeep, equipped with bush and bog harrow, is engaged in mulching as part of the work done on the farm.

2, 4-D Winter Spraying Destroys Stumps, Weeds
 Successful winter spraying with an ester of 2,4-D is the newest twist to the ever-broadening field of chemical weed control.

At East Lansing, Mich., agronomists Keith Barrows and L. L. Coulter of the Dow Chemical company announced that stumps sprayed in near zero weather during the past three winters have responded to treatment in the same manner as stumps sprayed during the summer season. The chemical used was Esteron 44 which contains 44 per cent of the isopropyl ester of 2,4-D.

Weak Egg Shells Mean Hens Require Calcium

Feeding oyster shells to laying hens to furnish the calcium needed for making strong egg shells is suggested by Irving J. Mork, agent of the North Dakota Agricultural college extension service.

"Hens that lay steadily will, as time goes on, lay eggs with weak shells," he said. "Usually this is due to a lack of calcium in the ration. It can also be due to a lack of vitamin D, however."

SHORT STORY

The Give-Away
 By JOHN T. KIERAN

THAT little bag was Plunger's chief concern. As he sat down at the table he placed it carefully between his feet. Then he looked at his two companions with the elated expression they knew of old. His face always lighted up like that when one of the ambitious dreams had hold of him.

"What's up, Plunger?" one of them asked with a smile. Is it a mint or a diamond mine this time?"

Plunger looked around quickly. "It's not a diamond mine. But it's something like. Only better."

The second of the two men turned partly away. He was in no mood to listen to one of the glowing, never completed plans that had given the young fellow his nickname. But the first man led him on.

"Better than a diamond mine?" he asked with mock incredulity.

"Yes. A whole sackful of rocks as big as your fist. And only a flimsy wall safe in the way. Tonight—"

He stopped short as he noticed that a stranger was sauntering toward their table. Plunger's first companion nodded to him and then said to Plunger: "Don't mind him. He's all right. He's cracked a few himself. That's Al Dryser."

DRYSER sat down in the fourth chair and Plunger recovered his enthusiasm with a rush. Rather it increased. He was in great company. A successful crackman, that's what Al Dryser was, or at least he had been before they caught him.

"I've got the address here," Plunger went on, taking a slip of paper from his pocket. "The maid put me onto it. A whole sackful of shiners!"

"What's all this, young man?"

It was Dryser who spoke. Plainly he was disapproving of the boy's excitement.

"Why a swell chance for a rich haul! The maid said there was fifty grand in that sack. Fifty grand! And mine for a little work—"

"Little, but dangerous, young fellow."

"Not this job. The maid said there wasn't even a houseman on guard. They thought nobody knew about the rocks being hid there and didn't want to draw attention to them."

"Don't tell me there ain't no danger. I've been in this business, see? And I'm advisin' you to stay clear of it."

"How do you think you're gonna get by with it? You don't know nothin' about crackin' safes."

Plunger reached for the black bag and opened it proudly. "See them tools? They told me how to use 'em where I got 'em. Besides, this wall safe ain't much more'n a tin can."

Dryser's lip curled. "What did the rocks you gotta divvy with 'em. If you don't get 'em they ain't out nothin'. Heads they win, tails you lose. No wonder they're willin' to have you try. I know those birds."

PLUNGER'S confidence was fast oozing away. But he held on. Plunger fumbled with the address. "But maybe your jobs wasn't like this one," he ventured hopefully. "I'd be afraid of any other myself."

Suddenly he leaned forward and looked directly into Plunger's face. "Listen, young man. Let me speak to you like a father, I'm an old hand at this business. I know all its tricks and false hopes. You don't even know its first principles."

Plunger crossed his legs nervously. He kicked the bag under the table. Then he pursed his mouth regretfully and cast the wadded address slip to the floor.

"Guess maybe I'd better be goin' home," was all he said as he arose and walked away.

Dryser sat there meditatively until the other two had left. Then he reached down for the address slip. Carefully he smoothed it out. Rising, he slipped the little black bag under his coat, pulled his cap lower over his eyes and started out.

1950 STATE FARM SHOW WILL BE HELD JAN. 9-13

Pennsylvania's 1950 Farm Show will be held the week of Jan. 9-13. The date was fixed by the State Farm Show Commission.

The 1949 exhibit, one of the largest in the nation, brought a record attendance of 580,000 visitors during the five days.

ENVIRONMENT HELPS

Sensitive to environment, the farm family produces more and gets more out of life under improved living conditions. Those reasons justify more emphasis on better rural housing and attractive farmsteads says J. R. Haswell, Pa. State extension agricultural engineer.

USE GOOD PLANTS

Gardeners when buying plants should insist on well-developed root systems no plant is better than its roots. J. H. Boyd, extension vegetable specialist of the Pa. State College, urges use of Transplants rather than seedlings. Select short, stocky plants hardened to outdoor temperatures.
