

OWL LAFFS

—BY— A WISE OWL

A fellow from town went to Lancaster to see a ball game the other night. The game was so dull that he fell asleep and only woke up next day at noon. . . .

He was locked into the park and hadn't a thing to eat but milk for three days, as Lancaster was playing out of town. . . .

I asked him where on earth he got the milk and he said he had the umpire's goat.

Now that we're on the subject of baseball I think the manager of the Middlets or even the Middlet Middlets overlooked a darn good prospect.

We have a linotype operator at this office who would be a valuable addition to any team when it comes to getting runs. Flossie says she has three or four-in her horse daily.

Any man may fall several times but I don't think he's a flop until he accuses some one for pushing him.

I don't know why I even bother to write a column this week cause most of my readers will be at the Grocers' Picnic. But, come to think of it, I don't have much choice. The boss expects a column so here 'tis.

I joined the ranks of sidewalk superintendents at a construction job in Lancaster on Monday, and the workers were carrying bags of sand down to the easement. Each man took two bags, all except a guy who only carried one bag each trip. . . .

Finally the boss noticed it and then said: "How is it that you are the only carrying one sack, when the other workmen are carrying two?"

The laborer replied: "Well, I suppose they're too lazy to make two trips like I do."

Gramps was getting married again. Asked why he was marrying a nifty chorus girl instead of a woman nearer his own age, Gramps said: "Well, son, I'd a heap rather smell perfume than liniment."

A doctor was making his daily call at a Kinderhook home, when he asked: "Well, how is your sick husband this afternoon? Did he relish his lunch?"

The lady of the house replied: "No doctor, he creamed his coffee, and mustarded his hot dog." ---Bright isn't she?

Babe: "You can't fool all the people, but who wants to? One man at a time is enough."

An inebriated man at Columbia was trying to get into his house without success, when a passing policeman asked if he could handle the key for him.

"Nope," the drunk replied, "I can hold the key but the door keeps swinging open."

Little boy from next door, calling on neighbor: "If the little boy next door ever bothers you practicing on the piano, you might try complaining to my mother."

Blond's boy friend: "I know nobody is perfect, so I'll just keep looking until I find something wrong with you." That's as good an excuse for getting an eyeful, as I've ever heard.

A stooge reports that at last he has found a true music lover. This guy puts his ear to the keyhole when his girl sings in the bath tub.

Met a fellow from Falmouth who looked mighty green around the gills. When I asked him what the trouble was he explained: "Well, I was feeling weak and rumbledown so I sauntered into the bathroom one dark night. I picked up a familiar box and helped myself to one of its contents. . . .

Next morning his wife came in to the breakfast nook in considerable excitement and asked: "Did you take a pill last night?"

"Yes," he answered.

"Well," she cried unhappily, "those pills were for my penurias!"

Choking spastically, our friend dashed hastily to the doctor. "Nothing to worry about," said the medico, after a brief examination. "You've merely taken the equivalent of 15,000 bushels of sheep fertilizer." --- I'd look sick too.

Elam Bomberger tells us that he always admires a tight rope or wire walker. They always have a good balance.

It so happens four of our local baseball fans went down to Shibe Park, Philadelphia to see the Cardinals play. After the game they waited outside the park to get Stan Musial's autograph. All the players walked out including Red Schoendienst. Our one fan thought he'd get Reds autograph. He got about even with him and remembered he had no pencil. Before he could get one, Red got in the bus and our pal didn't get his autograph.

Coming back to join the other three he saw Stan coming up the walk. When he got there our other three friends were dumbfounded after seeing Stan, and until our pal located his pencil Stan was in the bus which was pulling out. He never did get an autograph.

If you don't believe me ask Frey back at Sico.

The day that Clayt Newcomer installed his television set at his home on Donegal Springs Road, one of his neighbors, seeing the complicated aerial laying on the ground, but not realizing what it was, called to her son: "If you want to take a bath, you'd better do it now, before Newcomer turns on that new fangled lawn sprinkler laying in his yard, because we'll never get any water when that's on." --- Just a case of mistaken identity.

One of the regulars at Newcomer's Gas Station said he is thinking of studying palmistry.

If you want my candid opinion, I think that's just an indirect way trying to hold some girl's hand now and then. . . .

During an open conversation among a bunch of fellows the other day, Doc Stone put the damper on 'em. He said there wasn't one guy in the crowd can remember when a nickel would buy a good cigar, soda, shoe shine, beer or sandwich. . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Warren H. Bentzel returned from a trip touring all the New England states, seeing points of interest such as the Plymouth, Gloucester, Portland, Lake Champlain Ansable Chasin in New York.

At York a 16 year old boy held up a drug store, using a toy pistol, and got away with $37 cash.

An irate lady stormed into the butcher shop and scolded: "That chicken I bought from you yesterday had no wish bone."

Smooth butcher: (Could have been Jim) "Madam, our chickens are so contented that they have nothing to wish for."

Another nice thing about silence is that it can't be repeated.

REG'LAR FELLERS

THE LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

You know, somebody, if they can, I wish they would let me know why it is that our USA must do the advising and worrying for the whole world. We are the champions on barging-in with free advice. We want to help everybody do their local chores. We tell 'em how -- we furnish half the cash for the job. We are the wise guy and windy. We are the quick-rich to the rest of the world---a cinch for a touch. That is us.

For "horse sense" an IQ test would not show us as too stupendous. Horse Sense you know is minding your own affairs and also keeping your mouth closed, at least part of the time and thus not expose too much of your ignorance. That is what a horse does that is how the saying got started. Yep.

Instead of supporting 600,000 or 700,000 on the Gov't payroll, to think up fancy thoughts and ways to impress the world we should be rummaging in our sock to see how near it is to the bottom. We also should calm down. The atmosphere would clear up mightily if we would remove a flock of our heavy thinkers. Around 650,000 of 'em are costing us around 3,000,000 bucks per annum in cash--cold cash that is--yours and mine.

That Mr. Harry Byrd--that old Virginia democrat--he is doing his level best to remove some of all this deadwood. A postcard to him would be a nice gesture--that is unless you think 3 billion is just chicken feed.

Yours With The Low Down,
JIMMMY
