Dividend checks beginning in January has been sharply criticized by several members of Congress. They have charged that the dividend will be a political bonus if payment is delayed until 1950 — an election year. They demand that payments be started in October. VA officials, however, have repeatedly denied this political charge and stated that it will be physically impossible to start distribution of the dividends before the first of the year.

Commander Bailey pointed out that the dividend will be paid out of 20 million N.S.L.I. policies. According to this total the average dividend payment will be about $175, Bailey said. He explained, however, that the amount of the dividend for each policy holder will be based on the length of time the policy has been in force and the amount of premiums paid on the policy.

An important point which veterans must keep in mind in computing the length of time which their policy has been in force is the cut-off date on the policies established by the VA for dividend purposes. This cut-off date has been set for the anniversary date of each policy in 1948. Thus, a dividend will be paid on the policy from the date it was taken out until the same date in 1948. Commander Bailey cautioned veterans not to count the time the policy has been in force between the 1948 anniversary date of the policy and the date on which they received the dividend.

Corn and Grain Drying Becoming Routine Operation On Many Farms

By IRA MILLER
 Farm Electrification Bureau

Corn drying once was one of Mother Nature's exclusive farm chores. But she wasn't always very conscientious about it. There are too many wet springs and early falls in her seasonal grab bag. And they spell immaturity corn at harvesting time.

Farmers didn't like it. They took their corn to the nation's top agricultural engineers, who met in emergency session to solve the problem. And solve it they did.

Using their experience in barn-drying hay as a starting point, they shifted electrical fans and motors from mows to cribs; made some comparatively minor changes in the existing structures, and blew the excessive moisture right out of the kernels. In single cribs, wooden ducts or "A" frames are laid down the center of the floor and the air is blown directly into them. When double cribs are used, the air blast enters through one end of the driveway. The opposite end is sealed up, and heavy paper placed on the walls of the cribs from the peak of the roof to the top of the corn layer. Openings around the fan and in the floor also should be closed. These precautions assure a maximum amount of air being blown through the corn.

Drying is successful without supplementary heat when the temperature is 60 or above and the relative humidity is 65% or below.

And now, with problems of corn drying and hay curing under control, agricultural science is moving on. Grain drying, on average farms, is receiving increasing attention. And no wonder. For losses of more than $4,000,000 occur annually because grain has been damaged by unfavorable pre-harvest weather.

In drying grain, supplementary heat, generally, is needed. Buildings used for drying operations, must be insulated against heat loss, and ventilated properly. Heat is provided by oil burners in many grain drying units now in use on a number of farms. Warm air is blown into storage sheds by motor-driven fans. Thermostats and other controls automatically keep the temperature and flow of air at efficient drying levels. They also provide for economy and safety of operation.

Mechanical drying enables farmers to hold the moisture content of their crops within accepted limits, provides insurance and results in higher yields per acre.

Memo To Mrs. Housewife

If you long for your make-up to look as smooth as a movie queen's, here's how: Apply powder base sparingly and smooth on well, then with finger tips work in creme rouge. Lastly, with a piece of cotton press on powder. With another cotton square carefully remove excess.

Iced tea a bother? Not the latest kind. Already sweetened, all you have to do is mix a spoonful of the prepared tea syrup with water and ice, stir and sip.

A handy lit for any boy or girl going off to college this fall can be easily made up of several colors of shoe polish, brushes and cloths. Comes in so handy for the sure shine of success.

Fishermen figures indicate that salmon is going to be scarce this year. Tuna, though, is more plentiful and should soon be cheaper at your grocery.

Make party potatoes this way. Mash potatoes and season well with vitaminized margarine, salt, pepper and a little onion juice. Then add mashed onion and beat till fluffy. Delicious and decorative on a dinner plate, too.

If you don't have a pastry blender handy when needed, just use two knives. Holding one in each hand, cut crosswise so that fat and flour will form small particles.

A suggestion for tonight's dessert. Make it a soft custard poured over fresh peaches or pears.
