World's Fair At Your Door, York Fair Week

York Fair Week - - - there's a thrill in those three words - - - a thrill you can't equal with a million phrases. It means five days of excitement - - - five days of education.

Greatest in History

This year's York Interstate Fair is destined to be the greatest in history. All exhibitor's space is completely sold out. Hour by hour, day by day there will be events to interest you. Stock judging contests - - - agriculture exhibits - - - thrilling horse racing - - - free vaudeville - - - gay midway - - - gorgeous revue nightly on the moon-nouth new all-weather covered stage.

Super Entertainment

This year's grandstand attractions are exceptionally outstanding. They include featured Broadway acts and the cream of stage and circus specialties. Frank Wirth's spectacular nightly revue "Swing Out the News," a mighty musical show introducing headliners of vaudeville, radio, stage, screen and television stars, headed by Don Cummings, one of America's most versatile entertainers; the O'Flynn's, featuring the old and new in novelty; Dae and Babs, juvenile dance team; the Harmacrats, male chorus; Pack's Baby Elephants, famous Spanish Poodle dogs, that famous black horse, "Starless Night," 16 beautiful dancers from Ballet theatre, plus many other well-known acts.

Extra Features

The usual custom of a top name for Wednesday afternoon and night is followed this year in the personal appearance of an old-time favorite, Tony Martin. And returning again by popular demand on Thursday and Friday afternoons and nights will be Phil Spitalny with his Hour of Charm all-girl Orchestra featuring Evelyn and her magic violin.

Fast Racing

The program of horse racing on the fastest half-mile track in the country include some of the best steppers in harness competition for attractive purses on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. There will be thrilling running races daily.

About The Young Men In Service

Pvt. Paul Allen McGarvey 18, son of Mrs. William G. McGarvey, Water St., Florin, has reported to Lackland AFB, the "Gateway to the Air Force," to begin the AF basic airman indoctrination course, there.

Lackland, situated near San Antonio, is the world's largest air force base, center of WAF's basic training, indoctrination station for prior service reenlistees and home of the AF's Officer Candidate School. Here, too, is headquarters of the Indoctrination Division, Air Training Command.

His thirteen weeks of basic training will prepare him for entrance into Air Force technical training and for assignment in specialized work. The course will include a scientific evaluation of his aptitude and inclination for following a particular vocation and career.

SHORT STORY

Terry, The Fox

By Richard Hill Wilkinson

YOU CAN'T POOL an old fox like Terry Oakes," Ansel Actell was saying. "Not even if you're the smartest bank robber and gangster in the country." He chuckled, reflecting on the story he was about to tell.

"Glenville was pretty well wrought up that summer. In June government agents came through, warning all the small town banks in the countryside to be on the lookout, and advising what to do. Duke Insabato and a couple of his henchmen, driven from their haunts in the large cities by a concentrated effort of local and federal agents who were dead set on bringing an end to the current wave of crime, were hiding out in the sticks and whiling the time away by staging spectacular daylight hold-ups of small town banks.

"The trouble was that no one knew where the varmints would strike next. Duke Insabato was smart. He understood small towns because he was brought up in one and, he chose as the object of his pifering banks that were pretty well isolated and unprotected.

"June passed and part of July. Gradually the fear of Glenville citizens began to subside. Only one other small town bank had been held up, and that more than 150 miles away. The depositors who had withdrawn their accounts re-established them.

"Terry Oakes, the trust company president, didn't gloat. He was an old-timer at the game and he understood human nature. Early in June he'd had some signs printed and hung around the lobby of the bank. Such things as "Save for Your Old Age," "Deposit with Us and Your Money Will Be Safe." The citizens smiled a little. Terry was trying to reassure them. One other sign was printed and inserted behind the glass in the front door. This, too, amused them, but it didn't annoy them any.

"On July 15 the quietude of Glenville's main street was abruptly and harshly interrupted. A high-powered black sedan suddenly appeared at the town's south entrance, roared down on the bank and came to an abrupt halt. Loungers in front of the General Store jerked erect. Three men had leaped from the car. Two of them, one carrying a machine gun, ran toward the bank. The third stayed on the curb, a second machine gun nestling in his arm.

"The loungers, pop-eyed and frightened, watched in stupid fascination. To their utter astonishment they saw the two bandits turn at the bank door without entering, rush back to the car, pile into it and drive away.

"IT ALL happened within seconds. For a moment or two the loungers sat transfixed. Then of one accord they leaped up, raced across the street and entered the bank. Terry Oakes was talking on the telephone. He hung up and smiled at them.

"Two to one," he said calmly. "Sheriff Irons picks up Duke and his gang at Jepson Corners. I just phoned him." He looked from one pop-eyed citizen to another. "No harm done, boys. They didn't even get in."

"But why didn't they? What happened?"

"Terry grinned broadly. "Duke Insabato knows small towns. He was a small-town boy himself. That's why he picked this hour to do his hold-upping. Right after lunch."

"That's where I fooled him," Terry paused to chuckle and glance toward the front door. "It's lucky Duke knows small towns. Otherwise he might not have taken any stock in my sign."

"The bewildered citizens turned toward it and read. They were a little dazed, and not quick to understand.

"The sign read: "Bank Closed. Out to Lunch. Return in One Hour."
