Cooperation also pays on the telephone party line

Telephone party line cooperation has a wonderful way of spreading. If one neighbor uses the line sparingly, the others have a better chance to use it. If another neighbor always hangs up the receiver carefully after calling, it means the line won't be needlessly "out-of-order" and others can make or receive calls. If calls are reasonably brief, everyone can make more calls.

All of these little courtesies add up to better party line telephone service for everyone. Why not try them on your party line? You'll be delighted with the improvement it will make in your service.
