WORLD WIDE MISSIONS OBSERVANCE SUNDAY
 On Sunday, October 2nd in connection with World Wide Communion, World Wide Missions Sunday will be observed in all Evangelical Congregational Churches. In the Mount Joy Church at 7:30 p. m., a motion picture entitled "The Story of Bamba" will be shown to the public.

"The Story of Bamba" is centered around a native boy who lived with his witch doctor uncle in the heart of Africa. The picture depicts the African in all his superstition and darkness. An epidemic having come into the village and taking its toll, the villagers flee and leave little Bamba, who was stricken, to die. However, the missionary from a neighboring village arrives and through treatment is saved. After years of Christian training Bamba returns to his own people and leads his witch doctor uncle to Christ.

The Pastor, L. Dallas Ziegler extends a cordial invitation to the public to attend.

RAT-PROOF CORNBIBS
 Look over your corncrib before harvest time to see where you can prevent losses caused by rats. E. J. Udine, extension entomologist of the Pa. State College, declares that the cost of ratproofing on some farms would be less than the loss caused by rats during a year.

PREVENT APPLE DROP
 Extremes in weather conditions may cause certain apple varieties to drop before they get proper size and color. C. S. Bittner, extension fruit specialist of the Pa. State College suggests use of hormone sprays to hold the apples on the trees until they are more nearly ripe.

FIELD MICE DESTRUCTIVE TO MELON CROPS, SEED
 Untold damage is done each year to cucumber, cantaloupe and watermelon fields by mice destroying the seed which are planted and also the plants which are up and bearing fruit. H. A. Bowers, Clemson college crop specialist, says:

Bowers explained that the meadow mouse destroys the seed after they are planted, and the pine mouse cuts off the plants at the ground.

New Plastic Foam Used in Insulation

Material Is Called Lightest of Solids
 The world's lightest solid an amazing plastic foam that swells up when baked like a cake to 100 times its original volume—has been developed by Westinghouse scientist for use as a new insulating material.

The new product is expected to find its way into many uses in appliances used in farm homes and about the farm.

Even lighter than some gases, the new material weighs from 10 to 20 times less than the fluffy meringue on a well-baked pie.

Robert F. Sterling, 29-year-old chemist, and the man chiefly responsible for the new product, said it is the result of a three-year search for an effective insulating material that will fill large areas, yet weigh "next to nothing."

The foam is made by heating a molasses-like synthetic resin at about 350 degrees Fahrenheit until it expands to 100 times its original volume, then solidifies. Thousands of gas bubbles entrapped in the foam "buoy" it up and give the plastic its lightness.

Foamed into pre-fabricated metal wall sections, a two-inch thick layer weighing only 300 pounds would be enough to insulate a complete six-room house, Sterling said.

Resistant to fire, moisture, fungus growth and insects, the foam is low enough in cost to be practical for many applications and uses, the scientist said.

Not only do imprisoned air bubbles give the new plastic great lightness, but they also provide it with its excellent insulating qualities. So-called "dead air" is one of the best insulators known among commonly available materials, Sterling said.

Shown here is a refrigerator completely insulated with the new plastic-foam insulation material. This is the way the refrigerator looked after the insulation job was done, but before door liner and other parts were put back in place.

Cover That Cough

"Cover that cough, smother that sneeze" is not only good advice for people in public places, it has practical meaning in the cow barn, too.

Danger that coughing cattle may spread respiratory infections to their stablemates is highlighted in a research report from the American Veterinary Medical association.

The report describes an unusual case of tuberculosis of the eye in a heifer. A tuberculosis cow with a bad cough, stationed next to the heifer, is believed to have spread the disease.

AVMA points out that this case occurred in England, where bovine tuberculosis is widespread. Although tuberculosis has been reduced to a minimum in United States herds, coughs and sneezers are nevertheless a menace because they may spread all kinds of respiratory infections. Isolation of any animal showing respiratory symptoms is urged, therefore, to protect the rest of the herd.
