

OWL LAFFS

A WISE OWL

You may not know it but Charlie Roth is one guy who is always declaring war on mice and rats. When he baits a mouse trap he uses anything from gum drops to limburger.

Recently he baited one with limburger and he declared that the cheese was so strong that next morning he caught a mouse that had actually backed into the trap.

A man here claims that his wife actually charged him $5 for a kiss. We feel certain he can do better than that on the open market right here at home.

Back at the Fire House the other evening a guy said that when a girl is as pretty as a picture, almost any man would like to have her hanging around.

I just read in the papers that an authority on flies claims they taste things with their feet.

Now we've all heard that some people's feet smell but don't think anyone wants to know whether or not, like the flies they taste.

You've got to hand it to a certain business man from town who had a date to meet his wife at 3 p. m. Monday, but for the life of him, he couldn't remember where. So rather than have her find out he'd forgotten, he said to his secretary:

I've forgotten where I'm supposed to meet my wife at three o'clock. You call her up and ask her where you can reach me at that time.

An E-town couple are having trouble deciding what to do with their son since he finished college. His father suggested: "Now that Junior has graduated from college, couldn't you take him into business with you?" And his pop replied: "I think that is asking a little too much. Couldn't you use him for a b-idge prize?"

Met a Senior who told me he quit smoking, but asked: "Lemme have a cigarette, will ya?" I said: "I thought you quit smoking cigarettes." And he explained: "I'm in the first stage of quitting. I've quit buying them." Pardon Me!

Here's one an eighth grader is telling:

A doctor's son, a lawyer's son and a preacher's son were bragging about how much money their fathers made.

Doctor's son: "My dad just talks to a person and charges him fifteen dollars."

Lawyer's son: "My dad just talks a little, writes a little and charges forty dollars."

Preacher's son: "That's nothing. My dad gets up, talks a few minutes, then sends six men out to carry back the money."

Mrs. G. downtown was telling me about an experience she had while shopping in a paint and a hardware store at Lancaster yesterday. She called to the clerk: "Have you any wallpaper?" "Yes, said the clerk. "Here's some of that new kind with the paste already on the back!" "Oh I like that. Can I put it on myself?" she asked. "I guess you can," answered the clerk. "But I think it would look better on the wall."

You can't beat labor now. When one of my men came in unusually late from lunch, I grabbed him by the shoulder and bellowed: "You're seventeen minutes late. Where have you been?" "I've been getting my hair cut down at George's," he replied. "You mean you got your hair cut on the office time?" I exclaimed. "Well, it GREW on office time," he said. "Ah!" I answered. "But it ALL didn't grow on office time." But

Clair Sharpe made his first solo flight during the week.

Warren Greenawalt and Phares Landis flew to Wilkes-Barre to the Veterans Administration office.

George Minick and John Hawthorne visited the Lancaster Municipal Airport. Mr. and Mrs. Howard Clark of Valparaiso, Ind. stopped off at Donegal enroute home from a vacation at Atlantic City. Their all metal Luscombe carries the flying farmers insignia. They left the shore at 8:30 and expected to stop for lunch at Youngstown, Ohio.

A certain Harrisburg physician does not neglect his patients when they are out of town. He travels by Simson and Saturday attended one of his patients living temporarily near Donegal Airport.

Mr. Ogburn flying from Springfield, Mass. to Hagerstown, Md. stopped off for a cup of coffee and gasoline.
