EDITORIAL

Some men are measured by the size of their body but most by the size of their bank roll.

Folks are always looking for bargains of the five and dime stores wouldn't be spectacles.

Can you remember the time when you got seeds from your Congressman but now you get mostly junk.

A father here told his young son that he was born free but the chances are that before long he will have to fight for it.

DRINKING AND DRIVING

Can a line be drawn between how many drinks a man can take to cease to be a dependable driver? Many drivers are influenced by .05 per cent alcohol in the blood which follows two ounces of whiskey or two bottles of beer. Every driver is under the influence from 15 per cent alcohol in his blood. The 15 per centers have 55 times the accident rate of that of drivers who have taken no drinks. It is a trite saying, a stuffy old wheeze according to some peoples but it seems to have been proven that alcohol and gasoline don't mix.

NOT ON THE SHELF YET

The life span has lengthened on through improved health standards and medical know how and the men that used to be through at 50 or 60 is a person today with years of valuable service ahead of him. But, in many institutions, compulsory retirement is fixed without regard for the individual's experience and need of employment. This is detrimental to business, as well as the person. The National Assoc. of Manufacturers and the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, in conducting a survey among 300 business and industrial concerns in principal cities, found that, as a whole the employers who accepted older men and physically handicapped workers, on the basis of ability, were getting more work, better work and less personnel turnover and less absenteeism. Who said old age!

THERE ARE TWO SIDES

Some teachers and educators feel there is the loss of academic freedom in having to take a loyalty oath in order to instruct in the schools. Some leaders in the ranks of public school teachers, feel it is just, even necessary in certain areas. Since the American schoolroom is the one place where truth and free inquiry is found, those who follow Communism rob the youth of this right. Ask any parent if he or she want it to happen here. Should one who has taken an oath of allegiance to Communism, who has surrendered his freedom of his thought, action, will and conscience to Communism, be guiding the young minds in the public school system?

WILL WE EVER LEARN?

To meet human needs, religion is man's greatest source of strength. In government, various branches serve to answer political and economic needs of the governed. One must have faith in one's religion. This holds true in one's government.

Standing high in influence is the body named Supreme Court.

It is the highest court in the land. Vacancies give the President the right to appoint new justices. If and when this happens, pressure is brought to bear from various sources. Liberals want to strengthen their wing, conservatives exert influence. Is the possible appointee a Democrat or Republican and what state is his home and what is his religion? The supreme qualification for the Supreme Court should be ability. A balanced mind is more vital than a geographical boundary, a man of perception and understanding more qualified than just because he is a party member. A student of humanities, whatever his religious affiliation. A scholar of whatever his university. What is a man's worth if where he resides, what church he attends, is more important than what he can do and be for judgship?

THE HANDICAPPED

Employ the Handicapped Week is not to stress charity but to emphasize the special value and the quality of the handicapped person's capacity for good work. It has been proven that where men and women are adapted to jobs where their handicaps don't matter, they are as efficient and often more so, than the unhandicapped.

Not only does business and industry bring hope and opportunity to others, it benefits itself. By the handicapped we mean incapacitated, physically unfit for jobs of certain kinds. But most of us are handicapped when it comes to certain kinds of work. We spend much of our life seeking to find the right position for which we are equipped. We find we are handicapped in some lines of endeavor.

To place the blind or crippled in employment where they can contribute to society is strengthening both morally and physically. People have various temperaments and skills for different work. Employers seek to suit the people for the job where the skill and temperament can best be utilized. This can be done for the handicapped. The field may be more limited but we should make an effort to not waste human skill, not contribute to less of human self-respect and happiness.

igible. The number of entries in the final contest will be limited to the 12 highest scoring huskers in the elimination trials. Contestants are to report on the field at 10 a. m. for an eight minute period of trial husking.

The dozen contestants who survive the morning elimination will be entered in the final contest that is scheduled to get under way at 1 o'clock and run for 80 minutes.

As in former years, there will be penalties for gleanings collected after each husker, as well as for an excess of husks left on the cars.

The Mount Joy Community Association will award cash prizes of $25, $15, $10 and $7.50 for the top huskers; also $5 to each contestant who completed the entire 80 minute final contest.

Picker Demonstration

A demonstration of mechanical corn pickers has been added as a new feature of the husking contest.

Dealers of different makes of the corn pickers have been invited to show their equipment in operation at this time. The machinery demonstration is timed to follow immediately the regular hand picking meet, while the wagons of contestants are being weighed and final scores tabulated.

A Band Concert

The Mount Joy School band will render a concert in the evening.

Quoit Championship

Always a big attraction are the quoit pitching contests in charge of that veteran and expert H. M. Sweitzer and assisted by John Rice.

Fishing contests are held nightly during the three days on the local Quoit Club boxes on Henry Street. The winner will be decided Saturday evening with three cash prizes.

Saturday's Program

The Soap Box Derby will be run Saturday afternoon at 12:45 on the Market Street hill and at 2:30 the Horse and Pony parade will move.

This parade is always a feature of the show. It is very ably arranged and conducted by Earl Myers who is assisted by M. N. Strickler, Frank Walters and Paul S. Weiser. It will include saddle horses, light harness, both single and double; ponies as well as the draft horses and mules. Twelve heavy teams, the cream of East Donegal, have already been entered.

Both the East Donegal High School Band and the Mount Joy School Band will furnish music for the parade.

All these features are among the added attractions for the three days event. The "big top" housing the many displays will be situated on the P. R. R. parking lot as in previous years.

that the meeting next week would be an evening affair with the Lions Club as our guests. The speaker for this occasion is Marvin Brandt, former principal here, and now Assistant County Supt. of Schools.

The speaker Mr. Robert Donaldson, was introduced by Curvin Martin, chairman of the Rural Urban committee. Mr. Donaldson is from State College and his profession is marketing extension specialist. In his talk Mr. Donaldson stated that the period of easy sledding for the farmers is over, that it is fast returning to a buyers market. Mr. Donaldson went on to say that it is now important that the farmers spend more time in marketing their products. He also stated that there is a trend in modern merchandising, with a demand for a continuous supply of uniform products. There is also a trend in prepackaging items in the store which is past the experimental stage, but is here to stay. The question however is, should this be at the source of supply which is the farm or at the store where it is sold. He closed his talk by saying that the Penna. farmer is meeting these and many other problems and that the outlook should continue to look very good for the farmer.

I believe this talk was just what the farmers wanted and they all went away very well satisfied.

SHORT STORIES

Mister Gill

By Richard Hill Wilkinson

AT FIRST Mr. Otis Gill had seemed to take a liking to young Arthur Forbes. But he changed his opinion when the choppy seas of the open Atlantic. She was not a large liner, and the waves were running high. Arthur Forbes turned away suddenly and, clutching the deck rail for support, shaped an unsteady course for the companionway.

Mr. Gill burst into guffaws of laughter. "Seasick!" he said, addressing a young couple nearby and nodding toward the companionway.

"Should have stayed home and tended to his knitting."

The young couple smiled politely but with a lack of enthusiasm. Neither of them felt equal to the task of getting up and following on young Arthur Forbes' heels.

The dining saloon was located beneath the forward deck; Mr. Gill's table was at the extreme end, near that section where the vessel's bow began to narrow. He had hardly seated himself when he saw that young Arthur Forbes was placed two tables away and slightly behind. There was a plate of food on the table before the youth, but it was untouched. Like one in a trance Mr. Forbes was sitting with eyes widened greatly beyond their normal size, cheeks as pale as death.

After a time Mr. Gill saw that the youth at the other table was staring toward a port-hole, and his grin broadened. The port-hole was located far forward, and with each dip of the vessel one could see the entire slope of a wave, from trough to crest. Then for a space there would be nothing but open sky. It provided a sensation similar to riding on a roller coaster.

Mr. Gill knew that as long as young Forbes continued to stare through the port-hole his seasickness would steadily grow worse. And he chuckled at the thought.

After a while Mr. Gill found it was easier to stare straight ahead than to sit half-turned in his chair in order to watch young Forbes, who, after all, wasn't the most pleasing sight in the world. And in staring straight ahead Mr. Gill found that he was looking directly through the porthole at the swishing seas.

Mr. Gill was sober now; his face pale, his eyes glassy.

HE WATCHED idly for a few moments and then looked away, conscious of a feeling in his stomach not wholly normal. The sensation passed and he looked again at the port-hole, feeling more comfortable in this position. Instantly the same strange sensation attacked him again.

Mr. Gill was sober now; his face pale, his eyes glassy. Realization of what was happening to him came like a shock. He was seasick! Helplessly, miserably ill. Never in his life could Mr. Gill remember feeling so utterly at the mercy of anything.

Miraculously Mr. Gill reached the doorway and disappeared up the stairs. Instantly the dining saloon was a bedlam of laughter. Up toward the bow young Arthur Forbes was wiping some white substance from his cheeks and grinning broadly. Several men came over and spoke.

"I'll change your order, sir. Bring you some hot food."

Mr. Forbes smiled. "Thanks. And say, steward, that was a smart idea of yours—asking me to play the role of the helplessly seasick passenger and placing Gill at that table directly opposite the port-hole."

The steward nodded, eyes a-twinkle. "We have a man like Mr. Gill on board every voyage, sir. And we have that table placed there for just his type. No one else is asked to sit so far forward."

Mr. Forbes chuckled. "Think of everything for the comfort of your passengers, eh? Well, if you didn't I'm afraid this voyage would have proved almost intolerable—with Gill talking the way he was."

AMERICAN BANKING IN ACTION

HERE COMES A CAPITALIST!

It could be the president of a big corporation . . . or the president of a bank . . . or the President of the U. S. A. But it isn't any of these.

It's the worker who helped build the car he owns . . . who has stock in the company he works for . . . and cash in the bank for the future. In America, everyone who earns and saves is a capitalist. No American wants to be anything else!

CUSTOMER'S CORNER

Who wants to put A & P out of business?

Not our customers. Many thousands of them are writing and phoning us and telling our clerks and managers that they want to continue to enjoy quality A & P foods at low A & P prices.

Not our suppliers. Farmers and manufacturers alike are telling us that they want to protect this efficient outlet for their products.

Not our 110,000 employees. They want to keep the high wages, good working conditions and security they enjoy with A & P.

Not labor. Union leaders are wiring us to ask what they can do to defeat this threat to labor's living standards.

All these people are telling us they don't want the anti-trust lawyers to put A & P out of business.
