—BY— A WISE OWL

I see by the New Holland Clarion that a fellow there mislaid his pipe. Several jokesters found it, removed the tobacco and filled it with dried leaves. The owner found his pipe, lit 'er up and then smoked without even detecting the difference.

Something similar happened out around Donegal Springs about the time Harry Nissley, Doc Garber, Frank Watson and I were boys. But you have my word that none of them had anything to do with this little episode.

Old Henner, a Dutchman who lived as a hermit in Cameron's woods, also smoked a pipe. He too, laid it aside about half finished, and some one (right here I plead guilty) removed the tobacco and replaced it with dried mule droppings.

Believe you me when Old Henner lit that pipe he immediately knew it wasn't loaded with any leaves.

And that also reminds us that Henner, while farming tobacco on the Cameron farms, wormed his crop as carefully and consistent as any grower in these parts. When ever Henner found a big fat worm it was the easiest thing in the world to throw it on the ground with a little force and see the gooey fly.

But this was too good for some of those young Donegalers so they got a number of these big green worms, squeezed the gooey out of them, then inserted a straw in one end, blew them up and tied the open end with thread. These inflated worms were placed on the stalks and along came Henner hunting worms. He threw them on the ground but instead of them bursting they simply bounced like a rubber ball. He tried it a second time and when they failed to explode would put his foot on them and what he said in German was more than anybody ever called Hitler.

Now those were the HAPPY DAYS.

Sitting in the back row at the movies is most enlightening. Especially during the second show, which is when I happened to overhear the following conversation:

"Why don't you marry me?" the young man demanded. "There isn't anyone else is there?"

"Oh", she sighed, "there must be."—He can't be that bad!

Fay says: The best year's of a woman's life are between twenty-nine and thirty.

Made a social call near the Union National Bank and just as I got there the man of the house had finished tanning his son's hide. Then he asked: "Know why I had spanked you?" His son answered, "Sure - you're bigger'n I am." Can you imagine answering your pop like that when you were young?

I just read a lengthy item on Burma and have definitely decided that's one place I'll stay away from. Why? Cause both men and women dress alike! Long colored wrap-around skirts that are folded in front. Imagine givin' the wolf whistle to a skirt and discover she was a he. Oh Brother!

I think I know the trouble with child psychology.—Children don't understand it.

Walked into our living room last night and saw my daughter sitting at one end of the room and her boyfriend at the other. Knowing this was very unusual, I asked: "What's up?" And my daughter explained: "I just penalized him fifteen feet for holding." — May-

LOCAL SOCCER TEAM LOST FIRST GAME OF SEASON

While Mount Joy's soccer team defeated New Holland earlier in the season, the downcounty lads evened the count Tuesday afternoon by a 3 to 1 count.

The result left both clubs sporting identical season records of five victories and one defeat, Mount Joy was responsible for New Holland's lone setback.

Each of the two leaders have two more games remaining on the program and indications Tuesday night were that barring upsets, they would have to meet in a post-season playoff for the title.

Several hundred fans, the largest crowd of the season, was on hand to witness the game played at New Holland.

THE LOW DOWN from HICKORY GROVE

You know folks, sittin' under a tree once in a full moon and thinkin'—not just sittin'—could pay more dividends than putting in all the time reading how we are to be saved via one more new trick law to be cooked up by Uncle Harry and his boys.

And as you sit and ponder you will maybe become a little dubious as to whether you have been as smart as you thought or have been a sucker all the time, as you look back on how you been voting. For my ownself I got mad 'years ago when it was the fashion for the guy making the speech to say, "friends, I will now tell you all about it in simple words so everybody will understand." That got me—me, needin' kindergarten language—insult, I calls it. And still do.

But to proceed—the guy who is to be hurt worst via a Big and Fancy U.S.A. Govt., is the same kind of guy who was hurt worst via Herr Hitler, and J. Stalin, and Mr. Atlee—Mr. Average Guy—us—we will be the goat.

So, the next good day that comes along, go on out there and sit. And while pondering, maybe you can also unravel how-come a limber naylor allows a picket to clutter up the sidewalk and maybe throw rocks—but you can't do likewise.

Yours with the low down,
JIMMY

USE DEEP LITTER
Poultrymen find that built up deep litter is a labor saver; in the laying house. When properly managed, it will provide a soft, dry and deep floor covering all winter. Put a small amount of litter on the floor and when the chickens have worked in it and broken it up, add another light layer and repeat as needed.
