EDITORIAL

Well there's at least one thing we can't blame on Washington, the soaring price of coffee. Dear Housewife you are bringing that upon yourself.

You should all remember the sugar hoard. Coffee isn't scarce, buyers are just pretending.

GOOD INSTEAD OF EVIL

We can't say with truth that we are hearing our swords into the plough-shares, if the sword is the atom bomb which we are furthering for greater destructive measures. But, through chemical know-how, concerning atomic energy, we are diverting it into peaceful channels. For two years this nation has made foreign shipments of radio active isotopes, to 22 different countries to be used in medical and scientific research. About 50 per cent are used as plough-shares instead of swords. It may be for cancer therapy in Switzerland, yellow fever control in Africa, agricultural research in Australia, but it is in the name of peace, to save life and improve living conditions.

ARE WE ASKING FOR IT

You can't have your cake and eat it. This goes for a socialized state or free individualism. You ask for cake in government control of public utilities, natural resources and education and for free medical care, low cost houses, pensioned war veterans, increased farm subsidies, higher old age social security benefits, unemployment insurance, high minimum wages. But by eating it, we lose much of the valued individualism, highly prized free enterprise. We wouldn't have our country without certain necessary benefits. Conditions sometimes mean a relinquishing of some rights. But it has been proven that in many instances where government steps in and private operation out, the government service is generally higher. The government isn't a give-away program, the taxpayers foot the bill. The trouble with many of us is that we don't look at what is under the icing on the cake, before we eat it.

TV TAKES OVER

Television is coming to more and more towns, and from what we have seen, will the townlife ever be the same after TV takes over? It is laudable when it draws a family closer together, when everyone wants to stay home instead of any place but home. Television becomes an obsession with many people. The art of conversation is apt to suffer. The mechanical marvel is an attraction that binds the family group, but convivial groups that found pleasure in friendly discussion, will now sit in silence. It will mean less time for reading books, interfere with study hours for the children. One said these same things when radio was about to sweep all before it. But radio didn't interfere with mending and knitting, even reading for some folks who had uncanny power of concentration. Now we give attention to television from both ears and eyes. Furniture styles are changing with revolving chairs, chairs on wheels easily moved for grouping. But, we are living in a great age, and so far, most of us have been able to meet it half-way, at least.

ROCK BOTTOM THURS.

Nov. 13, 1929 was a day that will never be forgotten by many oldsters who suffered through months of mental anguish. Look back twenty years ago and recall the spring and summer of 1929. It was the time of prohibition and speakeasies and gangsters, golf knickers, short skirts for "boyish" figures, shingled bobs and cloche hats. Lindberg and Earhart, Tilden and Willis, Garbo and Guinan, Dragonette and Amos and Andy, were as big names almost as the former engineer in the White House named Hoover. What a summer it was, with folks talking stock market and easy money, investing in a big way or a small way, but investing. The booming stock exchange had financiers wrapping clerks buying and selling. You couldn't lose with all the big money that was there for the talking. Production in industry was about double, national income had increased 93 per cent in ten years. It was all simply wonderful, a gilded summer. There was a slowing down but not enough to worry the investors. It gave them time to catch their breath. In September some of the heavy stock holders started to unload. A small rally and then Black Thursday in October, when all records were broken in the stock exchange. Frenzy, panic, sweat and suicide. The small investor was met with broker's cry of "more margin, more margin", but he had nothing to meet the crisis, in many cases not even his nerve. Rock bottom was hit, Nov. 13 when the paper house collapsed. So ended the '29's to give way to the depression and the '30's.

THE PRICE FOR PEACE

The Nobel Peace Prize of 1949 goes to a farmer. Once a plowboy who grew up loving the soil, understanding farming, the present Lord Boyd Orr has devoted his years to studying the food problems that plague man and countries. A graduate of Glasgow University, in arts, science and medicine, owning a large farm in Scotland, he has a sound foundation for his knowledge of food, its bearing on peace and war. A career of public service at home and abroad lead to his being named president last year of United World Federalists, the movement to favor development of UN into a world federation "to preserve the peace and prevent aggression through enactment and enforcement of world law". Lord Orr, knowing seeds of war are too often sown where food is scarce, is trying to promote a world food policy.

To most, the farm has always been a symbol of the peaceful, tranquil life. The quiet and serenity of the pastoral scene has brought calm to many troubled by the fast pace of modern, city living. Whether it is a rustic view in a magazine, a painting on a wall, a picture in a movie, a description through words, it speaks of a peaceful way of life. Perhaps this is so because we think of these farms producing enough to keep millions fed. But, hunger of a nation can lead to war over these same quiet, productive acres of the farm scene. It is fitting that a farmer be given an award for peace.

Potato Crop

The potato crop for 1949 is about 2.5 bushels per person for the country, about the same per capita as in the previous drought year of 1936.

Home Pasteurization

Milk can be pasteurized at home and a cooked taste avoided if the milk is heated in a clean container to just 165 degrees, and then left to cool.

Children's Interest

The six subjects of paramount interest to children from five to 12 years of age, are animals, plants, stars, the sun, moon and the weather.

Cooking Steaks

For a full-flavored, attractively-browned steak, cook it at a constant and moderately-low temperature—about 350 degrees.

Safer Explosives

A new explosive made of hydrogen peroxide, glycerin, and water is as effective as nitroglycerin, yet not so dangerous to handle.

Mushroom Soup

Canned mushroom soup combined with canned chicken soup produces a combination that is unusual and tasty.

Cookie Dough

When cookie dough is too soft to handle easily, it may be placed between two pieces of waxed paper (floured) and then rolled.

Dial telephone service

Spring Into Winter

Stiffly starched white collars and cuffs can be ripped from last summer's frock and worn, in high style with winter wools. Belts are decorated with real or artificial flowers, small bouquets arranged around the buckle section. Fasten flowers on the back of the glove at the wrist and attach same to your felt purse. Violets are used with tweeds and gabardine suits. Sprigs of berries can be fashioned into a necklace. Wide silk sashes are shown on very dressy clothes with big, flat bows in the back. Many of these touches can be taken from summer frocks and hats.

What Goes On

Local gardeners are busy planting all kinds of spring flowering bulbs, putting in new shrubs, sowing seed and mulching beds. Now is the time to cut off tops of asparagus and peonies and of the plants turned black from early frosts. Weed flower beds now to save time in the spring. Trim extra long canes on the rose bush.

Inspirational

Not that which goeth into the mouth defileth a man; but that which cometh out of the mouth, this defileth a man.

At Middletown an autoist made a mistake, drove his car up a ramp on a platform from which it fell to the railroad tracks. A long came a train and threw it some distance.

Dr. Distler Named Chairman Co. Comm.

Dr. Theodore Distler, President of Franklin and Marshall College in Lancaster has accepted chairmanship of the Lancaster Co. Citizens Committee for the Hoover Report. Announcement of Dr. Distler's acceptance of this important office was made today by Francis J. Chesterman, Eastern Pennsylvania chairman of the group.

The findings of these investigations were reviewed by the Hoover Commission and as such reported to Congress. Pres. Truman has already recommended to Congress seven of these reports, one of the most important of which was the consolidation of the armed forces.

The purpose of the Citizens Committee in each of the states is to inform the voting public of the contents of the report. It is felt that the public realizes the economies and efficiencies which can be had as a result of the recommendations and they will support them and see that Senators and Congressmen act favorably upon recommendations of President Truman with respect to them.
