EDITORIAL

A big man is big as long as he doesn't let his head get that way.

When we contemplate what the gas engine did to the horse, we wonder what some of these new inventions may do to the human animal. Maybe we won't be needed, either.

4-H MOVES FORWARD

After their National 4-H Week celebration, clubs begin new programs for the year, busy with plans for raising better and more productive animals, furthering homemaking programs, adding to the many lines of fruitful endeavor covered by 4-H clubs. Through the 2 million members of young boys and girls, many parents have been influenced in farming methods. In this community we have seen the quality of livestock improved through the Club training. We congratulate the leaders, the adults who are so helpful in the work, the youths who can proudly point to membership. May their new program add further to their ever-increasing popularity and good works.

DON'T COVER UP

Laxity of law enforcement can hamper and retard the development of any community that strives to move forward to a better, stronger neighborhood in which to live. In the wave of campaigning to enforce gambling laws, to show that organized crime stretches from coast to coast, permeates cities from north to south, the subject of law enforcement and lack of it is the keynote in attacking the problem. Some people dislike bringing the shortcomings of their community into the open, but without publicity, revealing instead of guarding, the solution is made more difficult, the authorities more lax, civic mortality endangered, individuals wronged. Newspapers are a strong weapon in fighting crime and should be vigilant. They should not be hysterical, should not exaggerate, but serve in truth and fairness.

WHAT PRICE SPRING!

Swallows arrive at Capistrano, spring returns to Mount Joy. Spring goes first to a lady's head and do we have some surprises this year in the way of Easter bonnets? Spring stands for gardens and gardens mean crops, so mildly springs a handful of garden crops, carrots, green onions, strawberries. Think nothing of perching an imitation carrot crosswise on the hat top, group roses with a foliage of artificial long-stemmed onion tops. The past has given us hat trimmings of cherries and grape clusters, so a mile ought to be able to look at a cloche decorated with apples, peaches or oranges, without flinching. There is a picture hat with brim covered with greenery like water-cress, a smaller number with a festoon of string beans and radishes 'round the crown. We can get used to the price. As a man votes, so do we, for the austerity hat of rugged burlap, available in many colors, and selling at hat bars for $3 - $4.

IT PAYS TO BE POLITE

To reward salespeople for courtesy, some firms have bonuses, some customers have 'tips'. Courtesy is supposed to be a part of a person's make-up as in honesty, is considered essential in a gentleman and gentlewoman. A child is trained to be courteous with the learning of "thank you" and "please". Courtesy is not always easy especially when needed in dealing with the public through the medium of selling. Salespeople are daily called upon to face exacting circumstances where being sympathetic and attentive is a drain. The woman who tries on scores of

RHEEMS

Revival services are now in progress in the local church and will continue until Sunday evening. Rev. Norman Patrick is the evangelist. There is special music every night throughout this week.

Miss Della Hoover daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Hoover of this place and Mr. Guy Farmer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Farmer Sr. of Bainbridge, will be married in the local Church this Sunday afternoon at two o'clock. The reception will follow the ceremony and will be held in the basement of the Church. The spelling bee which was to be held in the local school this Friday evening, March 24th, has been postponed till Friday evening, March 31.

Miss Beulah Gible of Lancaster, visited with her mother, Mrs. Ida Gible here on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Fike and daughters, Donna Lee and Charlotte and son, Billy of Shippenburg visited with Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Hollinger Sunday evening.

Mrs. Charles Shank, Mrs. Russell Shank, Mrs. Leroy Leedom and Mrs. Emery Miller of this place, attended the flower show at Philadelphia on Tuesday.

When in need of Printing, (anything) kindly remember the Bulletin hats and doesn't buy, who tries on scores of dresses and is "only looking", who tries shoes and shoes and "will look around", tests a clerk's patience. Courtesy is an important factor in business, to the store, the shopper, but especially to the salesperson. Courtesy can be its own reward without tips and bonuses to repay it. Courtesy brings satisfied customers and that brings more business and more business should mean advancement for the courteous salesperson. We have long felt that tipping has helped to break down courtesy in service. An employer should pay their help enough that they need not depend upon the customers gratuity to meet the salary. This tends to make courtesy something that is purchased through charity. Courtesy is a part of every job, not a tap that is turned off and on as running water, only when it is going to pay off.
