Double Sentences
The sentence included 15 days in jail and a fine of $10 and costs on drunken driving charge; six months in jail and a fine of $250 and costs on the suspension charge.

Impressive Record
Mumma had compiled quite a record of infractions of the Motor Code, too, the record showed. In fact, his complete record was enough to make a highway safety director take a drink.

Here's a list of his motor code violations, all of them committed in Dauphin and Lancaster counties: May 13, 1938, indefinite suspension; February 3, 1941, 90-day suspension for speeding; July 22, 1941, 90-day suspension operating during suspension; July 30, 1942, 6 months suspension as an habitual violator; September 21, 1943, 90-days suspension, speeding; February 14th, 1944, indefinite suspension, failure to maintain proof of financial responsibility. Then followed the "permanent" suspension of 1946 and the three-month suspension of 1948.

And then the charges preferred by patrolman Beck of New Cumberland—drunken driving and operating during suspension of license.

Mumma "piled up one too many violations," a court attaché said in summing up his case. Or maybe, he just made the mistake of committing a violation in Cumberland County.
