EDITORIAL

It appears to us as though a borrowed book could be classed as a long time loan.

At last I've learned why President Truman is so blamed hard to convince. He's from Missouri.

Schools to teach men and women "How to Fish" are proving popular wherever they have been started. This indicates that there is a certain amount of skill connected with the pastime.

But this does not coincide with the United States Government's version of fishing. It claims fishing is all luck and will not permit literature going thru the mails offering prizes for big catches.

Now, kind readers, whether or not you fish, we'll let you decide as to whether a catch of any kind is just plain luck.

WE'RE DOING BETTER
Questions statistics is usually with regard to something that costs us, for a loss rather than a gain. However, the National Safety Council gives some encouraging statistics. In 1949 we set our best safety record, even though the number of dead and injured in automobile accidents was still greater than the losses and injuries of World War I. One out of every 16 persons suffered a disability injury last year. After automobile accidents come home accidents, with a 3 percent drop. Occupational accidents are third. In home accidents, falls that kill, head the list, burns drownings and firearms follow in order. We might concentrate on these and when the 1950 report is due, show marked improvement in our record.

TRACE THE SOURCE
Sometimes you wonder how it started. One of the best known terms, perhaps THE best known, is O. K. There have been various theories in reduced of its beginning, from the Greek, French, German, Fins, Danes and Choctaw Indians. None of the explanations have been correct, according to H. L. Vencken, who, in a past issue of the New Yorker, writes that O. K. goes back only to 1840, to Martin Van Buren when he was running for re-election. He was called "Old Kinderhook" and there was an O. K. club formed by his supporters. This made the phrase popular and it has never died, reaching into all parts of the world. We should give credit to Martin Van Buren for being O. K.

THE HOPE FOR THE MORROW
Through the progress of science we might have a dreamlike future, live in a rosy world. Scientists expect to conquer all infectious disease within the next ten years. They are penetrating further into the secret of growth of knowing what happens when plants turn carbon dioxide and water into trees, vegetables, grains. So will they conquer the dreaded cancer. Already life expectancy has been extended from 25 to 40, from 50 to 60, at present to 70 and within a few decades, to 80.
Our food supply will be helped by science even though today there is lack of it in many places. Scientists tell us we can grow an abundance of food in the sea, that eventually we can have a number of palatable and nourishing foods from wood. We have recently been informed of the future aircraft travel of thousands of miles with an atomic fuel supply that weighs less than an ounce.
The trouble is that the same science that can give us those things, can quickly destroy them, that instead of increasing life expectancy can commit wholesale slaughter. Americans have proven themselves the greatest killers, taking over 75,000 lives, without warning, in a fleeting moment. That was science at work, too. Such destruction as happened with the atom bomb becomes an orgy of killing with the hydrogen bomb.

To live to enjoy a richer heritage that science points out for us, we must first find a way of solving the problem of human relations. This is beyond the power of science, it is in the field of political policies and religion.

SHOULD WE MAKE AN ATTEMPT
Since the announcement that we would develop the hydrogen bomb as a weapon of defense there has been hysteria through the land. Whether we are the sole possessors of such knowledge, we do not know. Men may have successfully planned to destroy themselves in foreign laboratories, also. Bearing in mind the danger of such fearful equipment, there is much settlement in favor of our country making an effort to come to an understanding with Russia on atomic bombs. Russia has not proven herself dependable or trust-worthy since the end of the war. The Soviets may seem willing to reach an agreement with us, but can we trust them as being sincere and cooperative? Some feel, here, that in building up our strength through great power, we can hold back aggression and through such power compel agreements on atomic bombs. Meanwhile Russia is spending triple what we are spending of national wealth on armament. She has 40,000 tanks to our 7,000. She is speeding up production of jet fighters and long-range bombers. She has 7,000 planes including 300 heavy bombers of our B-29 type. This is a challenge to power, is a threat to civilization. For the sake of civilization, we might try a conference, not as an act of appeasement but as an attempt at peace. (We have not forgotten what happened thru appeasement with Germany and Great Britain.)

Bill of Rights
Our Bill of Rights was adopted four years after the Constitution, but it was not ratified by Georgia, Connecticut and Massachusetts until 150 years later.
Berlin Airlift
When the Berlin airlift was in operation, coal was flown in paper bags and often the bags were serviceable enough to be used three times.
Gin Rummy
Gin rummy was invented nearly 40 years ago by an accountant in Brooklyn, N.Y.

DAIRYMEN STOP LIFTING HEAVY MILK CANS
This Spring and Summer will find milady pitter-patter in many different shades of shoes—tangerine, honey-blonde, cherry bounce, even blushing pink and violet. They're lovely to look at, but worrisome to clean. For there's always the danger the pretty color won't be so pretty after cleaning. Just put your faith in the 'ole' shinos—a thin coat of neutral shoe cream and they're safe.
Next time you're cooking spinach, dress it up with a little onion juice and bits of crisp bacon.
