

OWL LAFFS

A WISE OWL

I expect to see all you folks here in town on Memorial Day. It's a big day, so be sure to come and visit all your friends, see the parade and watch the fireworks.

This you've got to read. It was a term paper turned in by a local Frosh on nature.

Worms haven't much personality except to another worm. But they must have feelings and think another worm is pretty and they must love family life. There's always little children worms. The first beautiful spring day came along at last. The ground was warm and moist and a worm stuck his head up out of the dirt and looked all around. And he said: Oh my, sunshine all around. Look at those dandelions. Oh, if I only had a little girl worm to wiggle through the flowers with. Suddenly he looked over and right close to him there was a worm. He said: 'Hello, toots, how are you?' How about a kiss? And the other worm said: 'Oh, be still you darn fool, I'm your other end!' — — — Some term paper!

Things are getting so nowadays that you don't know who your friends are until your television set breaks down.

Out at the park the other night a little shaver came running up to his Pop and exclaimed: 'Hey look Pop, I found a penknife up at the swings.' His father examined the knife and then asked: 'That's a very expensive knife, are you sure it was lost?' 'Sure it was lost,' replied the lad. 'I saw the man looking for it.'

Perhaps it is just a dream I had and remember vaguely. Or perhaps it is a subconscious memory that crawls out of its little hole in my mind to scare me now and then. Anyway it helps to explain my interest in animals. But—as I seem to recall it, on the day I was born, the stork buzzed the monkey cages at the zoo three times before I could talk him out of making a landing.

Comes this story to our desk from a fellow nearby who has a very homely wife. No, ugly, by gosh. Ugly as homemade soap. In fact, she was so ugly that when she went out in the field where the crows were accustomed to ordinary scarecrows, they scared the crows so bad they brought back corn they had stolen three years before! But, her hubby took her every place he went. Asked why, he replied: 'Well, it's a matter of personal preference. I'd rather take her with me than kiss her goodbye.'

It takes work, and lots of it, to keep manners drilled into children's heads. Recently a little fellow was guilty of an offense against manners at supper, 'Bobby', his father scolded, 'you eat just like a little pig. Do you know what that is?' 'Yeah,' answered Bobby, 'It's a hog's little boy.'

There's a little guy got his trousers warned yesterday by an indignant mother. He was watching her apply face cream and lotions and asked: 'Why are you putting all that stuff on your face, Mom?' 'To make myself beautiful,' his mother replied, as she began to remove them with tissues. When she was all finished the boy took one look at her face, shook his head and remarked: 'Didn't work did it?' — — — But the handy hairbrush did.

I'll have a good fish story for you next week.

And in parting—Be sure that pain in your stomach is not just a thought that proved indigestible.

Brown and comrades Miles Fink, Charles Mateer, Warren H. Foley as well as Glenn Funk—first grader and runner-up in the Mt. Joy competition.

Last week the Mt. Joy Post 5752 Veterans of Foreign Wars were featured in a special assembly in Washington, D. C. as Sunday visitors to the new Mount Joy Champions, Commander Brown introduced the visiting committee and explained the purpose and aims for future VFW sponsored events in town.

Comrade Fink expressed appreciation and thanks to Mr. Heaps and the children for their help in making the 1950 tournament a success. Athletic officer Foley then awarded medals to the first, second, and third place winners, Carl Rahn, Glen Funk, and James Pennell.

Our local VFW Post is young and fairly new to this community. It is their desire to expand their civic activities as the post grows within the Community. Such an achievement can be realized only with cooperation of the kind displayed during this past marble tournament.
