Mastersonville 2-Room Fire Hall At Landisville

met Tuesday evening, at which time the chairman of the building committee announced plans to construct a fire hall, consisting of a 2- risburg Pike, eight miles west of room concrete block building of one story construction. One room to be used for meetings and the other for fire apparatus.

The plot of ground offered by H. W. Hess as a gift to the company is to be the new building site and is located near the Hess dwelling.

A number of residents in the rural area surrounding Mastersonville offered to donate large trees for roof timbers for the new fire hall if firemen assumed costs of cutting and hauling. Another resident volunteered the free use of his saw, truck and sawmill facilities on condition that experienced sawers were employed. The total cost of the lumber, the company computed Music. He will be assisted by Miss to handle about 35,000 gallons of waste per day would be only a small fraction of the current retail price.

Ray Myers, chief of Friendship Fire Company, Mt. Joy offered for $25.00 a reconditioned pump and section of suction hose no longer needed by his company. Myers al- out the Camp Meeting. # A Larger Local

This is the fourth of a series of essavs written by Ninth Graders at East Donegal High School.

By John Musser A larger high school offers many advantages. One of the most important of these is in the field of farm.

First, there would be a larger variety of sports. At the present time we have only baseball, basket-hall, and a field hockey team. In a larger consolidated school with more students we could have sports such as football, soccer, track, wrestling and girls' basketball. A few years ago we had tennis courts. but there was not enough interest shown by the students to keep this sport going. With more students, there certainly should be enough enthusiasm shown to make this sport worthwhile. Most important of all, we could have a swimming pool. This would be enjoyed by household effects to Columbia Sat-more students than any other kind of activity or sport.

Secondly, there would be keener competition for positions on the different athletic teams. Only the best students would be chosen and would raise the standards of teams. This would also make there would always be other stu-dents ready to take their places it they let down on the job. But, then (Turn to page 2)
