

OWL LAFFS

A WISE OWL

When he was all set and rarin' to go, Elwood went to the kitchen, grabbed a paper bag filled to the top and left. Anticipating a big catch and lots of fun they soon reached Safe Harbor.

They fished, and fished, and fished and the thought of a good big fat sandwich (always the kind Mrs. Martin makes) wrenched down with a quart of Pennsylvania Homogenized Vitamin "D" milk would hit the spot.

They got the sandwich bag plus the milk, took it out on the bridge and you can imagine how their hungry sniffs flunked when they opened the bag to find that instead of sandwiches it contained POTATO PEELINGS.

Elwood had taken the bag intended for the garbage can instead of the sandwiches.

Now since we're on the subject there is a chap here in town took a trip to the country to spend the day. His wife too, made a bag of sandwiches which he grabbed in a hurry. When lunch time came he opened the bag, there were several hundred green pickles his wife had contemplated canning that day.

Don't mention "bird baths" to Pat Rice unless you're prepared for a tirade of words. Only the guys that can take it make the headlines, Pat.

Then again there were two fellows up in Potter Co. last week and prior to a 5-hour ride on the mountains they bought $2.00 worth of baked ham sandwiches to eat while enjoying nature. When lunch time came they discovered they had left the sandwich bag at the restaurant where they ate their breakfast and purchased their sandwiches.

These forgetful men!

While fishing for trout in Potter Co. this spring, the fish weren't biting so two fellows from town decided to visit a nearby school. I couldn't say why unless attracted by a handsome lady teacher they had seen at recess.

As they entered they found the school was also being visited by two of the directors, both back woodsmen with a limited education.

In class, in order to make a good impression, the teacher asked a little boy who killed Abel? After a third request the boy, almost crying said: "It wasn't me teacher. We only moved here a week ago."

Then one director said to the other: "Td question him closer. He acts mighty suspicious to me."

We know of a hen-pecked man at Florin who declares that women start to rule the house from the time they are babies, yelling from their cribs.

Was talking about auto motors and jet propulsion to Eli Ament the other day, Sammy Dock overheard the conversation and said: "That jet propulsion stuff is nothing new, I know a lot of people who have been propelling themselves with hot air for a long, long time."

The bus company has a problem on hand. They are considering installing alarm clocks in their busses so that sleeping passengers will get

THE LOW DOWN

HICKORY GROVE

You know folks, 17 years is no short spell—and especially to be standing on your own foot. We been doing same here in this land of the free and easy. We been our worst enemy.

I am on this subject on account of Korea. In spite of the way we have allowed Govt. to elbow-in on business—make it tough for same, big and little, to carry on—we are still the world's best when it comes to type of Govt., also to when it comes to having the means for turning out fighting machinery.

Now, today, with Korea on our hands, where would we have gotten off if we had no big factories for turning out big shootin' tools. I am for encouraging little business but I am also against discouraging big business. But above all, I am against Govt. in business—little or big. After 17 years of Govt. wandering—interfering here, and tinkering there, with business, it is a marvel that we are today what we are—full of pep and vinegar.

I see in Korea a lesson—one to take home and mull over. We gotta do more to stop the Smart Boys in Govt. from further tinkering with the carburetor—we been halfway lucky up to now.

Yours with the low down,
JIMMY

NEW ERA GIVES OUR BOB KUNKLE QUITE A BOOST

In Friday night's New Era a Sports writer had the following to say concerning Manager Robert Kunkle of our local Midget-Midget Baseball team.

"Speaking of the Midget-Midgets, Bob Kunkle, of Mount Joy, really digs into his jeans to keep his Mt. Joy team in action. In addition to providing the uniforms, furnishing transportation and coming up with the necessary baseballs, Bob always winds up by taking the boys on a trip. Last year, he paid their way in to see a certain game in Philadelphia because that happened to be the game they wanted to see. It wasn't on the "free list" of the Major League club, but rather than disappoint the boys, Bob bought them tickets. Make no mistake about it, the costs of keeping these kids playing through the season is not exactly "chicken feed," yet guys like Kunkle—and there are others scattered throughout the city and county—never hesitate to step in and do their part. They certainly deserve your commendation, for they're the real sports of their communities."

RAFTSMEN GUILD FAIR AT MT. GRETTA AUG. 4-6

Hundreds of Pennsylvania's finest craftsmen in weaving, spinning, pottery making and other arts, will demonstrate their skill during the second annual Craft Fair of the Pennsylvania Guild of Craftsmen, August 4, 5, and 6, at Mt. Gretna in Lebanon County, says the State Department of Commerce vacation and recreation bureau.

In the Chautauqua Community House at Mt. Gretna, and on the surrounding grounds, will be displayed the works of leather workers, rug makers, stitchers, jewelry makers, lace makers, woodworkers, gem cutters, glass blowers, china painters, toleware painters, metal-smiths, iron forgers, textile painters, weavers, spinners and pottery makers.

Products of the craftsmen also will be offered for sale to visitors attending the fair, which, last year, attracted vacationists, recreational travelers and collectors from other states, as well as Pennsylvanians. A greater number of visitors is expected to attend the second fair.

awake and get off at their destinations. Joe Habecker is quite in favor of it since last week when he came up from Lancaster and slept right on through to Elizabethtown.

Camels must have water, horses must have oats, birds must have worms, people must have food, and automobiles must have gas. These are absolute "musts" as we all know from years back, yet George Liebshultz tried to drive his car with an empty gas tank, and it just wouldn't cooperate. --So-o, George got some gas.

"Buss" Kramer's keenest delight is to get someone in this column, but this week, the worm turned, this strappin' guy lugs hunks of ice around every day and is out in every kind of weather, but when he sleeps at the cottage out in the woods—HE WEARS BOOTIES to keep his feet warm.

Weekly Letter

By Penna. State Game Commission

In extending the 1950 grouse and turkey seasons, the Game Commission was influenced by reports from game protectors and outdoorsmen that Pennsylvania's 1950 grouse and wild turkey increase was satisfactory. Fair to large-size broods of both of these magnificent game birds have been observed in many areas, leading to the belief that turkeys and grouse populations are definitely on the upswing.

Bear Damage Claims

The Game Law authorizes the Game Commission, following investigation and certification by its officers, to pay for any damage done to livestock or poultry or for protection to or damage done to bees by bears upon the lands open to public hunting.

Quail Hardening Foes

Following the severe winter of 1935-36, b.b. white quail failed to come back in Pennsylvania and in other states, even where they were extensively stocked.

BEANS NEED NITROGEN

The Fordhook variety of Lima bean requires more nitrogen to mature a heavy crop than do other varieties, says J. O. Duff, Pa. State extension vegetable specialist.

Man Bags Turkey With Auto

Residents of Patton and vicinity have been seeing wild turkeys on one of the roads near Game Lands No. 108, says Game Protector Jack DeLong of Ebensburg.

Birds Are Enemies Of Worms

Game Protector Carl Jarrett, New Stanton, Pa., says that many Westmoreland County farmers who formerly condemned ringneck pheasants as corn-pullers now heartily approve of the birds' part in reducing the vast number of army worms devouring their crops.

Beaver House Is Snake Den

Game Protector Duane Lettice, Honesdale, tells: "In Decker Marsh, on State Game Lands No. 183, there is an abandoned beaver house within 30 yards of the site of a new dam now being constructed by beavers. The old lodge has not been used by beavers for the past two years. It apparently has been taken over by a large colony of water-snakes. During the past month more than 50 of these reptiles have been killed while sunning themselves on the house and old beaver left by the beavers. Almost all of the slain fish eaters were large snakes."

Deer Endanger Motorists

Game Protector A. J. Zaychsky, reports: Deer on highways in northern Indiana County are causing frequent motor accidents. A buck was road-killed on May 22, a doe on each of the dates June 3, 9 and 28. Two of the does so slain carried twin fawns. The third evidently bore young a short time before meeting death.

VAUDEVILLE SHOW AND CARNIVAL AT RHEEMS SAT.

Rheems Fire Co., has another stellar vaudeville show and carnival this Saturday night August 5.

Roy Reber's orchestra will provide the music and five popular vaudeville acts will be on the stage.

WILLIAM B. THIELICKE

William B. Thielicke, Texas born actor who spent several years in Australia and England, is proof of the fact that a theatrical company is only as strong as those who play the minor roles.

Bill, who is cast as Sergeant Towers in the farce comedy, "See How They Run" which opens Thursday, August 3, for a week at the Gretna Playhouse, Mt. Gretna, has contributed his share of fine performances given on the Gretna stage.

One of his outstanding roles this summer was that of Kiwi in "The Hasty Heart." He has been on the stage on the west coast as his home is in Seattle, Washington, but he hopes his stay at Gretna this summer may lead to a chance to play on Broadway, the Mecca of all actors. Bill also is responsible for props at the Playhouse.

CONTROL GARDEN INSECTS

Penn State extension entomologists urge gardeners to save their vegetables by killing insects. They recommend: Apply rotenone to your garden vegetables once a week. Apply it carefully and thoroughly. Use other insecticides where needed.
