BETTER LIGHTING
Lightens WINTER
FARM CHORES

What price would you put on a badly sprained ankle... or a broken leg... or a rifled storage room... this winter? One dark set of stairs, one badly lit pathway and you're inviting an accident... a darkened farm and you're inviting thieves and vandals.

Why take any chances... when sensibly planned lighting can provide protection at a cost figured in pennies.

Light up the farm this winter! Light it with self-contained portable lampholders as shown. No special wiring is required; just connect into any convenient electric outlet. Mount them anywhere for flood lighting or spot lighting. Use them with support arm and base plate to hold Infra-Red (heat) Lamps—or with new Ultra-Violet (sun) Lamps. And they are completely waterproof!

Protect yourself and your farm by keeping your farm well-lighted this winter. Contact your PP&L Farm Representative or your local electrical farm appliance retailer today... either will be glad to give you full details on the economy of good farm lighting... indoors and out!

More Evidence
That Our Ads Pay

Here is more of that real conclusive evidence that Bulletin advertising pays. The following classified ads appeared in our columns for the first time last week and here's what happened.

The following ad was inserted with instructions to insert weekly until ordered otherwise:

FOR SALE: 30 gal. water tank suitable for bucket-a-day stove. Good condition, reasonable price. Phone Mt. Joy 3-5471 or call at 228 N. Barbara St. 38-1f

The above ad cost 50 cents and within a few days after it appeared we were ordered to discontinue same as the tank was sold.

In the same issue we inserted the following ad to be run until forbidden:

Who wants a Good Hopper Type COAL STOVE? You'll soon want heat and here's your opportunity. Has been heating a dwelling and shop, just recently completely overhauled, has ash remover and burns any kind of fine coal. Can be seen in operation for the next few weeks. Will take less than one-third its cost. Don't delay but apply once at the Bulletin, Mount Joy, Pa. 38-1f

Within 24 hours after the Bulletin was printed the stoker was sold. Here's further evidence:

WANTED AT ONCE — Man to wash dishes and two waitresses.

We had no less than a dozen men (all married) who answered this ad. All were willing to wash the waitress but balked on the dishes. We must confess, however, that the ad was a phony. We were anxious to learn if these ads read.
